U. S. TO ROSENBERG: 'NO DEAL'

EXPANSION OF RFC DISCUSSED BY ROOSEVELT

Consider Increasing 'Easy Money.'

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—A gigantic expansion of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to enable that institution to lndie out more billions of public money on recovery projects was the subject of a conference late today between President Roosevelt and Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the corporation.

A. L. DEANE.

Under the plans being considered the RFC would come to dominate to an enormously increased extent the banking, industrial, and transportation structure of the country.

Among the projects included in the plan are the refinancing of the railroads and direct loans to industry, although when asked about the latter proposition Mr. Jones said:

"I would like to stay away from direct loans if I can."

Consider Job Insurance.

Preceding the call of Mr. Jones the President had a two hour conference on another far flung project—a long term job insurance system with an emergency issue of credit to expand purchasing power immediately. With the President were the sponsor of the plan, A. L. Deane of New York, president of the General Motors Holding corporation; John J. Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic national committee; Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator; Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, and Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget.

After the conference Mr. Deane said that his plan, commonly called the Deane plan, was a method of eliminating unemployment and maintaining the consumer power of the masses. Its purpose was to accomplish an ironing out of the peaks and valleys of economic life, he pointed out.

"The plan would have to be carried out by industry, but implemented by the government," he said. "It is simply a plan to use a central insurance fund to build up in good times for use in bad times to supplement the mass consuming power. It would be a revolving fund, which industry would create through a premium."

Urges Immediate Action.

Mr. Deane said the plan ought to be placed in effect now. "In good times people don't prepare," he said. "It would be supported by credit now."

The sponsor of the plan thought employers could be forced into the fund, but he declared his belief that they would enter voluntarily. "I think it is something that would appeal to industry," he said, adding that legislation would be necessary.

General Johnson's comment when asked about the plan was, "I have not had time to find out about it," although the conference lasted for two hours.

Another new deal scheme—the consolidation of all systems of communication under government supervision—was considered at a conference between the President and Sosthenes Behn, president, and Frank Paige, counsel for the International Telephone and Telegraph company.

Mr. Jones declined to go into detail on the proposed expansion of the RFC. He said he merely was submitting to the President the various projects and the amount of money involved in each, after consideration of which Mr. Roosevelt would decide upon the extent of the program.

Estimate Is Erroneous.

In response to questions about railroad maturities in 1934, Mr. Jones said that the estimate of 2 billion dollars was erroneous and that while he did not know the exact figure, "it is less than 500 million dollars and probably about 400 millions."

"I do not think we ought to have to go over 25 per cent," Mr. Jones went on, adding: "If we went that far and the banks did their part, that would be very satisfactory. And that is as far as we should go."

Mr. Jones said he was uncertain whether the President would recommend extension of the life of the RFC in his budget message or in a special message. The life of the RFC expires on Jan. 23.

GOVERNMENT TO RUSH TRIAL ON TAX CHARGE

Will Not Accept Penalty Offer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—The federal government today flatly rejected an offer of more than $65,000 in settlement of the income tax evasion charges against Moe Rosenberg, Chicago Democratic ward politician.

Rosenberg will be brought to trial in Chicago Jan. 2 on criminal charges of evading the federal income tax laws in 1929 and 1930.

Rejection of the Chicago politician's settlement offer was announced by the department of justice today following a lengthy conference between Rosenberg and his attorneys and Dwight Green, Chicago district attorney, and officials of the income tax law division of the justice department.

Decide to Push Charges.

Mr. Green, according to the announcement, has been instructed to proceed with Rosenberg's prosecution on the criminal charges.

The cash settlement offer of the full amount named in Rosenberg's indictment, it was learned, was not boosted by his attorneys. Reports that a sum as high as $300,000 would be proffered were denied.

It was evidence of criminal intent to evade the federal tax laws, and not the insufficiency of his cash offer, it was understood, which resulted in the government's refusal to compromise. Rosenberg, according to reliable information, was regarded as guilty by officials of the department and, in view of the evidence piled up against him, could not be permitted to escape prosecution by a cash settlement.

Department's Statement.

The department of justice announcement regarding the Rosenberg conference was as follows:

"In accordance with the usual routine procedure in alleged income tax law violations, upon request of his attorneys and with the consent of the United States attorney at Chicago, a conference was held in the tax division of the department of justice to consider an offer of compromise made on the part of Moe Rosenberg.

"The conference was granted upon the definite understanding that Rosenberg would waive immunity, which he did, and that it would not be used as an excuse to request a postponement of the trial, which is set for Jan. 2, 1934.

Green Conducts Conference.

"This conference was conducted by United States Attorney Green, who has direct charge of the case, before Mr. Key, acting head of the tax division, and other representatives of the department of justice, and Mr. Irey, chief of the intelligence unit of the bureau of internal revenue, and other representatives of the treasury department.

"After an extended hearing and full consideration the offer in compromise was rejected. Mr. Green will press the case for immediate trial.

"At the conclusion of the conference the taxpayer and his representatives were advised of the decision of the government representatives."

The conference was conducted in utmost secrecy and none of the principals would disclose the exact nature of Rosenberg's offer. It was learned, however, that the 24th ward committeeman declared himself prepared to pay the full $65,000 in income taxes which the government charges he sought to evade in 1929 and 1930.

Proffered Penalties, Too.

"In addition, it was understood, Rosenberg was willing to pay the interest which the government customarily charges in such settlements as well as the federal cash penalties usually imposed for late payment of taxes. These amounts added to the $65,000, it was reported, would have brought the total settlement to approximately $100,000.

Although government officials maintained strict silence regarding the reason for the rejection of Rosenberg's offer, it was learned on highest authority that District Attorney Green's insistence that the politician be brought to trial was responsible for the action. The Chicago district attorney was said to be confident of convicting Rosenberg of criminal evasion of the income tax law.

SMASH STATE ST. WINDOW, ESCAPE WITH $5,000 GEMS

Loop pedestrians were menaced last night by a shotgun in the hands of one of four bandits who swooped down on State street shortly before 8 o'clock and robbed the Basch company, Inc., jewelers, at 218 South State street, of jewelry valued at $5,000.

The bandit gang whirled up to the curb in front of the store and left one of their number at the wheel of their car while the others jumped out. The leader, who had been carrying his shotgun beneath his overcoat, smashed the store window with its butt and then turned it in the direction of passersby.

The other two robbers snatched 16 trays of diamond rings, bracelets, and watches from the window. The store was open at the time, but the robbery was committed with such speed that none of the employés inside had time to act before the bandits had escaped.

When the two robbers at the window had filled their arms with trays, they ran to their waiting car under cover of the shotgun. They sped south in State street and turned the corner at Quincy street so fast that they scraped fenders with an eastbound automobile. The bandit driver straightened out his car and continued west.

Cop Surprises 2 in Holdup; Shoots Both

Two armed robbers, busily plying their trade with three employés and a half a dozen patrons of the Tavern inn at 3438 North Clark street as their victims, were rudely interrupted early today by Lincoln Park Policeman Harry Neelis.

Passing the inn and surmising from the deserted air of the front part that a stickup was in progress, Neelis with his pistol drawn tiptoed into the bar in the rear, where the victims had been herded. Pushing open a swinging door and spying the two bandits, he fired quickly, striking both men in the legs.

"Drop those guns and be quick," he shouted, "or I'll shoot to kill."

Almost Shoots Policeman.

One of the robbers, later identified as Steven McDermott, 33 years old, 2214 Lincoln avenue, fired a single shot which struck the policeman's coat and barely missed his side. Then he dropped his weapon. The other man, Roy Jett, 25 years old, 4119 Westminster avenue, St. Louis, made no resistance.

The victims, who had been forced to kneel on the floor, included William Allen, owner of the inn, and two employés, Leonard Carlson and Louis Vanigos. Allen had surrendered $40 before Neelis arrived and the other victims were being searched when the shooting started.

At the Town Hall police station McDermott and Jett were identified as the robbers who had held up the Rubin inn at 3206 North Clark street. Police records showed that McDermott had been arrested Dec. 7 for threatening to kill another tavern owner and that he was dismissed Dec. 19 by Judge Erickson of the Municipal court.

Wounded Cop Shoots Gunman.

In another shooting affray between a policeman and hoodlums last night the hoodlums came out second best. Patrolman Daniel Broderick of the Fillmore street station was shot in the left leg by one of three youths whom he halted for questioning at Homan avenue and Douglas boulevard. As the trio fled Broderick fired, striking one, Tony Salvo, 17 years old, 2852 Fillmore street, in the back, the bullet penetrating the right kidney.

For the time Salvo escaped. He was taken into custody when he applied to a physician for treatment. A little later two men alleged to have been his companions were arrested by Sergt. John Hanrahan. They are James Kveton, 19 years old, 2214 South Kolin avenue, and Albert Tewrye, 22 years old, 1234 South Troy street. The police asserted that Salvo, at the Bridewell hospital, identified them as participants in the attack on Broderick.

LANGUAGE USED BY ROOSEVELT IS CALLED BEST OF AMERICAN

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—The speech of President Roosevelt is an example of the best "American English" spoken in this country, in the opinion of educators attending the eighteenth annual convention of the National Association of Teachers of Speech.

Lee Emerson Bassett, president of the association and professor of public speaking at Stanford university, described the President's speech as a standard form of English, yet lively and varied and with excellent pronunciation and enunciation.

"No one could say he comes from the south, the east or the west," Prof. Bassett said. "He is just an American citizen who uses English well. His is an example of what our speech can and should be—the speech of an educated and cultured man."

Cold Waning; More Snow Is in Prospect

Zero at Airport

The temperature eading at the municipal airport at 2:30 a. m. today was zero. At the same time unofficial readings in various suburbs were:

Evanston	0	Winnetka	—1
Forest Park	10	Berwyn	0
Melrose Park	—2	Riverside	—2

Temperatures far below normal, but relatively comfortable compared to those of yesterday, when a minimum of 9 below zero was registered on the official thermometer, are expected to prevail in Chicago today and tomorrow. There is also a possibility, according to the forecast, of light snow on both days.

"We do not look for readings below zero either on Thursday or Friday," said Forecaster J. R. Lloyd, "but on the other hand it is unlikely the temperature will get above 20. There may be a sharp drop Thursday night from the afternoon high, but there should be a fairly slow but steady rise of the mercury on Friday."

Cold Wave Moves East.

The extreme cold wave had passed on last night to the snowbound east and was concentrated in the Appalachian region. A new northwestern high pressure area, with its accompanying cold wave, had moved southeastward to the western Canadian provinces. There was some question on Tuesday whether this high would head for Chicago and pile a second cold wave on the middle west. Mr. Lloyd said that it now appeared this cold might pass to the north.

"If it does we may get northeast winds by Friday or Saturday," he added, "and if that happens the air coming in off the lake will mean real moderation of the cold."

The highest temperature recorded yesterday was 9 above zero at 8 p. m. The mean temperature was an even zero 26 degrees below normal for the date. The minimum was far above the record cold day in December, the 23d in 1872, when 23 below was recorded here.

Street Traffic Near Normal.

Traffic in Chicago streets was nearly back to normal, the snow which fell Monday and Tuesday having ceased to be an important factor.

Suffering among the needy was intensified by the low temperatures.

Much of the CWA work requiring men to be outside was discontinued and an announcement was made that there will be no resumption until the weather moderates. The workers will not lose any pay as a result of temporary discontinuance, as the time will be made up by working on Saturdays or by overtime work.

Firemen Kept Busy.

Firemen were kept busy, a total of 128 alarms having been sounded between midnight Tuesday and 10 o'clock last night. Most of the blazes were due to the overheating of furnaces. Normally only about 85 calls are received by firemen at this time of the year in the same period.

Several deaths in the city were attributed in part to the cold. One man, Chris Sparazochi, 45 years old, a wanderer, was found dead on the sidewalk at 13th and State streets.

The south, west, and Lincoln park systems announced that their small ponds will be ready for skating today.

ABOLISH STATE PROPERTY TAX; USE SALES LEVY

Savings in Chicago About 15 Millions.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Illinois today abolished real estate and personal property taxes for state purposes.

It is the first complete substitution of a sales tax for property taxes any state has made.

The step was taken after state officials decided a two per cent tax on retail sales, with perhaps some help from liquor taxation, would be adequate to replace the 35 million dollars levied annually in recent years on general property.

The decision affects state taxes only. Cities, counties, park systems, sanitary districts, and other local units will continue to tax real and personal property. But abolition of the state's share of the revenue bill will result in a saving ranging from 7 to 19 per cent to property owners in the state.

Effective on 1933 Taxes.

The abolition is effective on 1933 taxes. Property owners will be billed for 1933 taxes early in 1934, except in Chicago, where 1932 taxes have not yet been put into collection.

Taxing authorities said they hoped the action would be of beneficial result in Chicago and Cook county, where 200 million dollars is overdue in taxes for 1929, '30, and '31.

Although Cook county's saving will be only 15 million dollars, or about seven per cent of the total general property levy, officials believed the reduction would be considerable encouragement to heavily burdened taxpayers.

The state's share of the total property tax for 1932 was 50 cents on the $100 valuation, an increase of 15 cents over the previous year. Were it not for the sales tax, officials said, the rate would have had to be between 70 cents and $1 in 1933, due to the fact that the valuation of general property has dropped from 7 billion dollars to around 5½ billion dollars.

Decision by State Board.

The decision to discontinue the state's "cut" was made as the board, composed of Gov. Henry Horner, State Treasurer John C. Martin, and State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, met in annual session.

"Illinois for the first time in 115 years has been able to relieve real estate and personal property of the state tax," Gov. Horner said. "The reduction in individual tax bills is the largest in dollars and cents that Illinois property owners ever have received in a single year."

Horner said the reduction was made possible in part by reductions in governmental expenses, but he gave most of the credit to the sales tax, which was declared constitutional recently by the state Supreme court.

Will Aid Special Funds.

Among the benefits which the governor said would come from elimination of the state tax rate was an improvement in the finances of certain special funds, including educational units, which have depended on the state rate.

"With adequate revenue assured for 1934," Horner said, "the elimination of the state tax rate means that the state, for the first time in several years, can pay the school distributive fund in full, make payments of blind pension funds to the counties, and pay the principal and interest charges on the soldiers' bonus and the waterway bonds for the state.

"Payment of the $10,500,000 school distributive fund in 1934 will go a long way toward relieving the serious financial difficulties of the elementary schools of the state. These schools have suffered from lack of revenue for several years.

"The removal also will eliminate in 1934 the inequalities of state tax payments that have existed for many years under the ad valorem system of taxation." The governor referred to the fact that assessed valuations were not equal on comparative property throughout the state.

Greater Savings Downstate.

Savings to property owners will range from 3 to 12 per cent greater in downstate counties than in Cook county, due to the heavy drain in Chicago for the support of parks, playgrounds, the sanitary district, and other projects which require levies.

Collections from the sales tax have averaged 2 million dollars a month since it became effective last summer after Jan. 1. That revenue can be used only to replace the general property tax, and the revenue is expected to increase because of better enforce-

CUT VALUATIONS 25 PCT.

County Assessor Jacobs yesterday finished the 1932 real estate assessment books and announced that the assessed valuations of all real estate in Cook county for 1932 taxes have been cut 25 per cent under the figure for 1931. As the 1931 figure represented a cut of 26 per cent over the previous year the total reduction amounts to 45 per cent in the last two years, Jacobs said.

These reductions, he pointed out, have had the effect in combination with increased assessments on personal property of reducing by a considerable proportion the share of the total tax burden borne by real estate. In years before 1930, real estate paid approximately 85 per cent of the county's taxes. For 1932 it will pay only 61 per cent.

Real estate assessments in the county total $1,912,639,242 for 1932 tax purposes. Those for the city of Chicago are $1,554,413,020. Since personal property and railroad assessments had already been completed by the assessor and the state tax commission, completion of the real estate books made it possible to announce final figures on all classes of property. These assessments total $3,067,288,525 for the county and $2,583,351,523 for Chicago.

Real estate and personal property assessments in the county for 1930 tax purposes totaled $3,459,068,569.

The announcement of the assessed valuations will permit the city, county, and other taxing bodies to go ahead with more assurance in the preparation of their 1934 budgets. The assessor's figures as announced yesterday are somewhat lower than the preliminary estimates on which the budget makers have started work.

Further Reductions Seen.

Before the taxes are extended the totals announced by Assessor Jacobs will be further reduced by the revision of personal property assessments, now under way in the board of tax appeals. Real estate assessments will not be revised until after the first installment of taxes are paid. This installment, as well as full payment of personal property bills, is due on March 1. The second installment of real estate taxes is due July 1.

"It is the duty of the county assessor to find the fair cash value of all taxable property and to assess such property on a fair and equitable basis," said Assessor Jacobs. "The assessor does not fix the tax rates. This plain fact has been stated over and over again, but apparently many taxpayers are still confused on this point.

"There will be fewer complaints against assessments when it is fully realized that the only question to be determined by the assessor and the board of appeals is the question whether property has been assessed on a figure that uniformly and fairly represents fair cash value. A high tax bill is the result of an assessment multiplied by a high tax rate. And tax rates are the result of the expenditures of local governments.

Shrinkage in Wealth.

"In making this 25 per cent reduction in real estate assessments for 1932 I have recognized the shrinkage in the taxable wealth of the county since 1931. It is reasonable to assume that this shrinkage of value is evidence of at least an equal decline in ability on the part of our people to pay taxes. It is my hope for the taxpayers of Cook county that policies resulting in the substantial reduction of public expenditures will be adopted to preserve in full measure the benefit of lower assessed valuations.

"The reduction of real estate valuations plus the reduction in public expenditures will reduce the taxes of the real estate owner. It will reflect the decrease in the value of his property. It will enable many owners to pay their taxes in full."

Two Years Behind.

Assessor Jacobs pointed out that the abolishment of the state general property tax rate, announced yesterday at Springfield, would not help Cook county taxpayers for at least a year. This is because of the delay in collecting taxes.

The bills to be sent out, based on the assessments announced yesterday, will be for 1932. The abolishment of the state tax rate is not effective until the 1933 tax bills are submitted, probably some time early in 1935 in Cook county. When the saving does become effective it will amount to about $15,000,000 in Cook county, about 7 per cent of the total 1931 tax bills.

3 Years' Tax Valuations Compared

The table below shows comparative real estate tax valuations in each township of Cook county in the last three years. The 1930 figures are the final valuations on which extensions were based. The figures for the 1931 levy, now in collection, are the valuations as fixed by the board of tax appeals. The 1932 figures are those of the assessor, made public yesterday.

MRS. RAINEY PENS POEM TO 'ALICE IN WONDERLAND'

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—A poem written by Mrs. Henry T. Rainey, wife of the Illinois speaker of the house in Washington, and dedicated to the little girl who played Alice in "Alice in Wonderland" in the movies, was received here today. The poem was addressed to Charlotte Henry, blonde actress whose Alice has been her only film work, and reads:

"To walk in a veil of illusion,
To live in a waking dream,
Accepting every delusion,
Take things just as they seem.

"Think for yourself intended
The smile of the farthest star;
Live thus, and life is splendid,
But beware of things as they are."

Two Held to Grand Jury in Adding Machine Theft

Two men who were arrested Tuesday evening in Fox River Grove in the possesion of two adding machines found to have stolen from the office of County Assessor Jacobs were held to the McHenry grand jury in bonds of $5,000 each on charges of larceny yesterday by Justice of the Peace W. S. Battern in Woodstock. The defendants are Otto Svoboda, 35 years old, a minor Democratic politician, and Frank Narowetz, 42 years old, both residents of Fox River Grove.

ILLINOIS RELIEF FALLS BACK ON TAX WARRANTS

Commission to Lose Sales Tax Revenue Jan. 1.

Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, announced yesterday that tax anticipation warrants based on a general property levy authorized by the legislature last fall will be sold next month to pay for state relief of the idle. He conferred with Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, on plans for selling the tax warrants.

The property levy authorized by the legislature amounts to $30,000,000. Under the law, tax warrants up to 75 per cent of that figure may be sold, or a total of $22,500,000 in warrants. About $1,000,000 worth of these warrants will be sold at a time, to meet current expenses of the relief commission. If reemployment decreases relief the total amount of warrants will not have to be sold, Mr. Dunham explained.

Bond Issue Up in November.

The legislature authorized the property levy to guarantee redemption of the tax warrants. At the same time it authorized a $30,000,000 state relief bond issue, to be voted on in a referendum at the general election next November. If the bond issue is approved by the voters the property levy will not be made. Instead the bonds will be sold to retire the tax warrants, it was explained. The bonds themselves will be redeemed over a 20 year period from the counties' share of the state gasoline tax.

New revenue through the sale of the tax warrants is necessary, Mr. Dunham explained, because relief will not receive the proceeds of the state sales tax after this month.

Collections since the sales tax went into effect last July 1 have averaged $3,000,000 a month. The law creating the tax provided, however, that after the first six months the proceeds were to be used in reducing the general state property taxes.

Expect $4,400,000 Next Month.

Next month the relief commission expects to get $4,400,000 from the sales tax receipts for the month of December. The collection of this sum will extend into February, however, and necessitate the sale of some tax warrants to meet current bills. The relief bill has averaged between $6,000,000 and $6,500,000 a month.

The relief commission also has about $5,500,000 due from the federal relief funds as of Jan. 1, under the 2 to 1 matching basis on which federal funds are given to states for relief, Mr. Dunham said. The government pays $1 of every $3 spent by the state for relief. There is some question whether this money will be paid, however, because of the advent of the CWA, under which the relief load has been lightened materially with federal money.

ROOSEVELT ON WILSON BIRTHDAY PROGRAM TODAY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—(AP)—A simple ceremony at the tomb in Washington cathedral of the war president and an address to the nation by President Roosevelt will mark observance tomorrow of the birthday of Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. Roosevelt, when he speaks at the Wilson day dinner, will be the first Democratic chief executive to participate in the annual birthday observance since Mr. Wilson's administration.

Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Roosevelt are to be among the 800 guests attending the dinner.

The anniversary will be the 77th of President Wilson's birth.

In the group at the tomb will be Francis B. Sayre, Wilson's son-in-law and an assistant secretary of state, and his two children, Eleanor and Francis Jr.

KENTUCKY WHISKY LABELS MUST SHOW CONTENT OF PRODUCT

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 27.—(AP)—The state board of health today adopted a regulation requiring that the label on whisky sold by drug stores in Kentucky for medicinal purposes carry the formula of ingredients.

"I think this will end the sale of blended and rectified whisky," Dr. A. T. McCormack, secretary of the board, said in making the announcement. Druggists were given 30 days in which to label their products.

Dr. McCormack pointed out that druggists are required by state law to follow physicians' prescriptions to the letter, and that any prescription for "spiritus frumenti" means liquor aged four years and containing 47 to 53 per cent alcohol.

Kentucky, still dry, requires prescriptions for the sale of liquor. Dr. McCormack pointed out there would be nothing to hinder a physician from specifically prescribing blended or rectified whisky, but "no physician of intelligence," he said, "will prescribe blended whisky, because it is an inferior product."

Rob Merchant, Then Put Him Out of His Own Auto

Three masked bandits held up Albert Goldblatt, operator of a cigar store at 1000 East 43d street, last night as he was entering the apartment building where he lives at 4537 Drexel boulevard. They forced him into the back seat of his own automobile, drove around the corner, robbed him of $25 and pushed him out at 46th street and Cottage Grove avenue.

WARNS TAVERNS TO GET LICENSES OR BE CLOSED

Jan. 2 Is Deadline, Mayor Points Out.

Mayor Kelly issued a warning yesterday that all retail liquor establishments which have not applied for a 1934 city license by Jan. 2 will be closed by police.

The application must be accompanied by the deposit of the $250 fee for the first six months of the year. About 4,000 applications have been received to date. The city issued 8,326 licenses for the sale of 3.2 beer, but it is expected that more than 2,000 of these licenses will drop out of the liquor business after the first of the year.

Commend Tavern Closing.

The Retail Liquor Dealers' Protective Association of Illinois yesterday sent Mayor Kelly a letter, commending his action of Tuesday in revoking the licenses of 12 taverns because the places were resorts for criminals or the scene of immoral practices.

"National prohibition attracted the criminal element into the retail liquor business," wrote V. J. Moravec, president of the association. "It is of the utmost importance in the public interest that in the return of the liquor business to a legal status extreme care should be exercised in the issuance of licenses. Drastic action must be taken to drive the undesirable elements out of the business."

The city council yesterday adopted a resolution introduced by Ald. Thomas J. Daley [7th], creating a new dry district in the south shore area. The boundaries of the districts run along the west side of South Shore drive from 67th to 79th street, then along the north side of 79th street to Brandon avenue, the west side of Brandon avenue to 82d street, the south side of 82d street to Jeffery avenue, the east side of Jeffery avenue to 75th street, the north side of 75th street to Stony Island avenue, the east side of Stony Island avenue to 67th street, and the south side of 67th street back to South Shore drive.

List Exceptions in District.

Six exceptions were made, listing points within the district where licenses may be issued, as follows: the east side of Stony Island avenue from 67th to 75th street; 71st street from Stony Island avenue to South Shore drive, 73d street from Euclid to Jeffery avenue, 75th street from Stony Island avenue to Coles avenue, Jeffery avenue from 70th place to 71st place, 79th street from Clyde avenue to Brandon avenue, Exchange avenue from 73d street to 82d street, and the South Side Swedish club, 7330 Ridgeland avenue.

Ald. Daley explained that the regulation is to be temporary until the legal status of the old Hyde Park dry law is determined.

PACT AVERTS N. Y. WAITERS' STRIKE CALL

New York, Dec. 27.—(AP)—A threatened waiters' strike, which would have tied up New Year's eve celebrations, was averted tonight. Committees representing hotels, restaurants, and cabarets signed with the waiters and kitchen help an agreement setting up a new wage scale.

Waiters are to receive at least $7.50 a week in cash exclusive of tips. The minimum wage for cooks with three years' experience is to be $25 and the lowest kitchen pay $15.

BOARD ORDERS NEW PAY DAY FOR TEACHERS

Warrants Will Be Issued for 2 Weeks' Salaries.

The board of education voted yesterday to give teachers and other school employés $1,950,000 worth of 1933 tax warrants in payment of their salaries for the last two weeks of April. Just before Christmas the school employés received pay in cash for the first half of April. The tax warrants, it was indicated, will be ready for distribution on Saturday.

With the announcement of the new pay day James B. McCahey, president of the board, reviewed the efforts of the last few months to get compensation for the teachers. He pointed out that by the end of this year $34,300,000, or back salaries for nearly eleven months, will have been paid since Mayor Kelly took office on April 13.

$24,300,000 of Pay in Cash.

Of the total of back salary obligations to school workers met since Mayor Kelly assumed control of the school board, $24,300,000 has been in cash and the remaining 10 million dollars in tax warrants. Teacher leaders asked for the warrants when prospects of immediate cash appeared slight.

The warrants have been accepted in many cases at par by landlords and merchants. The teachers who have had to part with them on the open market for cash during recent weeks have taken a discount of about 10 per cent.

"The teachers were eight months behind in pay last April," said Mr. McCahey. "At the end of this year they will be five months behind while the civil service workers will have seven months' salaries due. We are looking for better times next year."

Paid Up to May 1, 1933.

When Mayor Kelly took office last April school salaries had been paid only to June 15, 1932. Including the tax warrant pay day voted yesterday for the last two weeks of last April, the employés have now been paid up to May 1, 1933. During the last few days of June, 1932, and all of July and August of that year, it was pointed out, the teachers were on vacation and thus received no pay. A summary of the pay given school employés since Mayor Kelly took office last April and the months for which the salaries were due follows:

JUNE, 1932: Seven days' pay in cash for teachers as school year ended; cash pay for civil service workers for last two weeks of month.
JULY, 1932: Month's pay in cash for civil service employés.
AUGUST, 1932: Month's pay in cash for civil service employés.
SEPTEMBER, 1932: Month's pay in cash for all school workers.
OCTOBER, 1932: Month's pay in cash.
NOVEMBER, 1932: Month's pay in cash.
DECEMBER, 1932: Month's pay in cash.
JANUARY, 1933: Month's pay, half in cash and half in tax warrants.
FEBRUARY, 1933: Month's pay, half in cash and half in warrants.
MARCH, 1933: Month's pay in warrants.
APRIL, 1933: Month's pay, half in cash and half in warrants.

Take Up Mayor's Plan.

Mayor Kelly's program for paying all the back salaries of the teachers and other employés through sale of the $40,000,000 school bond issue was taken up by the school trustees yesterday after they had voted the tax warrant pay day. Mayor Kelly has suggested that if the board could pledge its property that is not used for school purposes as additional collateral the federal government might buy the bonds.

Ernst Buehler, vice president of the board, introduced a resolution calling upon Gov. Horner to include in his call for a third special session of the legislature after the first of the year legislation broad enough to include the mayor's program. The board needs legislative authorization to pledge school property, which under the present law it can only sell or lease.

Resolution Is Adopted.

The Buehler resolution was adopted with three amendments introduced by Trustee Joseph P. Savage. The board will ask that the governor also include these three measures in his call. They are:

1. Apportionment of the revenue from the state tax on retail liquor dealers and gallonage tax on beer to the school districts throughout the state.
2. Transfer all employés except teachers and others immediately connected with the instruction of children to the building fund of the board of education. The salaries of the engineers, janitors, firemen, and other operating employés who would be thus transferred amounts to approximately $5,500,000 a year.

[The educational fund of the school board, under the present organization, will have a $7,000,000 deficit at the end of the year. The building fund does not have a deficit.]

3. Reduction of the building fund tax rate by 15 cents, which would be added to the educational fund tax rate.

City Council Takes Action.

While the school trustees were discussing these matters, the city council took action in an effort to help them out of their financial dilemma.

The council unanimously adopted a resolution introduced by Ald. John J. Coughlin [1st], appealing to United States Senators Lewis and Dieterich and the congressmen of Illinois to aid in pushing the mayor's program for selling the school bonds. It will be necessary for congress to authorize some federal agency, probably the Reconstruction Finance corporation, to purchase the $40,000,000 worth of school bonds.

The finance committee of the council asked Corporation Counsel Sexton to give an opinion on whether legislation would be required to turn the state liquor taxes over to the schools. He was also instructed to draft the proper bills if legislation is needed.

FATHER CLAIMS ONLY ONE TWIN IS HIS; WINS SUIT

Other Child of Pair Given to Wife.

Yankton, S. D., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Ewald Paddie, farmer suing his wife for a divorce, today proved to the satisfaction of Circuit Judge R. B. Tripp that he is the father of one twin born to his wife, but not of the other. He was granted his freedom from the married state and custody of the twin he claimed as his, while the other was given to Mrs. Paddie.

"One little fellow looks like me," Paddie testified. "The other one don't look like me and don't look like my wife. Besides, my wife told me I was the daddy of one and not of the other. I want the one that favors me. The other one belongs to one of the neighbors."

Wife Makes No Contest.

In the absence of Mrs. Paddie, who did not contest the action, Judge Tripp accepted the husband's story that she had confessed being unfaithful and also his contention that he was entitled to possession of his own offspring.

Five children in all were born to Mrs. Paddie in the ten years since her marriage. In addition to the single twin, Paddie claimed one more child he declared was his. The other three youngsters, whom he denied, went to the wife.

Local physicians said that the twins, both boys, were of the fraternal as distinguished from the identical type. Therefore, in their opinion, it was entirely possible for the pair to have different fathers.

Learn of Court Precedent.

Also, it was recalled that in February, 1932, Prof. Noth Broman of the University of Lund, Sweden, noted biologist, testified in a court case that from a scientific point of view two fathers could split the paternity of twins. Blood tests made by direction of the court apparently supported Dr. Broman's statement and the contention was upheld. As in the Paddie case, the presumptive father was declared the parent of only one twin.

Two French scientists, Menetrier and Mme. Bernard Fontaine, in 1924 wrote a thesis holding that twins need not have the same fathers. All the genetic experts are agreed that identical twins, resulting from the splitting of a single cell, can have but one father. Such twins resemble each other much more closely than do twins of the fraternal type.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—In response to a request by Gov. Horner, a total of $146,200 will be allotted to Illinois by the federal relief administration for employment of teachers now out of work.

The work to be done under the fund will include teaching of about 3,000 adult illiterates by 300 instructors—$17,000 monthly; vocational education for about 4,000 persons by 350 instructors—$20,000 monthly; for general education of about 6,000 persons by 500 teachers—$25,000 monthly; nursery schools for 3,000 children and 500 parents with 200 teachers—$10,000 monthly. Only $1,600 was allowed by the government for vocational rehabilitation.

Sleeping with Parents

Barbara and Blanche, 15 month old twins of Albert and Marie Marshall, 2433 Fillmore street, were suffocated yesterday in the bed in which they were sleeping with their parents for warmth. At the inquest in the county morgue it was learned that Marshall, who has four other children, is a jobless world war veteran on the emergency relief rolls, and that his coal ration was stolen several days ago, leaving his flat without heat.

Marshall was wounded while serving in the Canadian forces during the war. He was one of the heroes of the tunnel explosion at 22d and Laflin streets two years ago in which five firemen and eleven workmen lost their lives. Marshall told Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel he had been receiving $8.50 every two weeks for food, and coal from the relief agencies. He said social workers had not visited his home.

Late yesterday afternoon the superintendent of a branch agency of the emergency relief called at the Marshall home and promised to have food and a ton of coal delivered today.

3 SMUGGLERS SEIZED AFTER BATTLE; 2 DEAD

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Three Mexican smugglers, sought after a fight in which a smuggler and a United States border patrolman were killed, were captured tonight in a house near the international boundary in South El Paso.

They made no resistance. Two were wounded and one was taken to a hospital. An elderly man, who lives in the house where the men were hiding, also was arrested.

The fight, which took place about two hours before the smugglers were captured, resulted in the death of Patrolman Bert G. Walthall, 34, and a smuggler identified as José Estrada of El Paso.

CHICAGO PILOTS LEASE AIRPORT AT GLENVIEW

Curtiss-Wright airport at Glenview has been leased to a group of young Chicago pilots headed by Al Bone, Herbert Anderson and Harold S. Darr, who incorporated under the name Chicago Aviation corporation yesterday. Anderson is expected to operate the airport.

The group will meet tomorrow night to perfect their organization and plan the operation of the airport, which cost $3,000,000 when built in 1929 and 1930 by Maj. R. W. Schroeder for the Curtiss-Wright corporation. A flying school and an approved repair depot will be operated in addition to storage and rental of planes.

ACCUSE POSTMAN OF BURNING MAIL TO WARM HANDS

Robert B. Smith, 35 years old, 3534 Armitage avenue, a substitute mail carrier during the Christmas rush, yesterday was held in bonds of $1,000 when he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Walker on charges of destroying mail matter. The government charged that Smith, while delivering mail in the Cragin district on Dec. 4, made a bonfire of 200 letters in order to warm his hands. Smith denied the charge.

A letter carefully written in English, but with a foreign flourish to the fine slanting handwriting, was mailed to Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, from Chicago a week ago, and Mrs. Margit Loser of 3941 North Oak Park avenue, is waiting for a reply. The plea in the letter is the last hope of Mrs. Loser and her husband, Ferencz, that they may escape deportation and remain here to rear their Chicago born sons, Frank, 7, and Henry Peter, 5, in this country.

"There is nothing we can do here for you," they were told yesterday by Assistant United States District Attorney Francis J. Kennedy, who had interviewed them previously regarding the case. "As I told you before, only the secretary of labor can revoke the deportation order."

"Ah, but I have written her," explained Mrs. Loser eagerly, her dark eyes lighting up. "I wrote her all about it. She is a woman. She will understand why I want to rear my children as Americans."

Ordered to Leave by Jan. 15.

The deportation order stipulates that Loser and his wife, who is 29 years old, must leave the United States for their native Hungary by Jan. 15. At liberty on their own bond, the couple told their story last night in their home, a neat brick bungalow which they own.

There Mrs. Loser produced a copy of the letter she had sent.

"If we have to go," she said, "it would mean giving up all this—our own house we bought with money my husband earned. For eight years he's been in the same place—a spotter in a cleaning and dyeing plant. Takes the spots off clothes. The pay isn't large, but the house is all ours. This is our furniture, our curtains at the windows. Frank, the older boy, has just begun to take violin lessons. They are good in their studies. We go to church. I want to be a good citizen. Our children want to be good Americans."

Story of Their Troubles.

Mrs. Loser then told the story of the trouble she and her husband experienced after the outbreak of the war. At the end of the war, the husband's home town, Lunga, Hungary, became Comloser-mare, Rumania, and his father's farm, with the changing boundaries was half in Serbia and half in Rumania, instead of in Hungary.

His father suffered los: s and Ferencz, one of 15 children, who had been allowed to enter the University of Budapest to study medicine after serving several years as lieutenant with the Austro-Hungarian imperial army, was taken out of school. He tried to earn a living in Budapest, rather than go home and serve in the Rumanian army.

"In 1923 we were married," Mrs. Loser said. "I was working at the University of Budapest. Later I worked as secretary to a lawyer. We tried desperately to get a passport, but we could not. In June, 1924, the quota was closed. We obtained passports to Canada finally, and in September, 1924, left Budapest for Winnipeg.

"After 14 months in Canada, during which time we tried every way we could to enter the United States legally, we were deceived into thinking that by paying some man $350 to bring us into this country he would arrange a legal passport. We have been in Chicago since November, 1925."

CHURCH FIRE LAID TO MATCH DROPPED BY A WORSHIPER

Fire believed to have been started by a match tossed into a model of the Christ Child's manger in the basement of the Holy Trinity Catholic church, Noble street and Milwaukee avenue, yesterday caused damage estimated at $8,000. Sixteen fire companies commanded by Chief John Groves of the 8th battalion finally brought the fire under control.

It was believed that some worshiper lighted the altar candles and then dropped the match into the straw surrounding the manger at the altar. The flames were halted before they burned through the floor to the main auditorium.

The Rev. Casimir Sztuczko, C. S. C., said that the services in the church, which is said to serve one of the largest Catholic congregations in Chicago, would be continued without interruption. The basement will be repaired and redecorated immediately.

HANDY MAN OF WYNEKOOPS SAID TO BE MISSING

John Van Pelt, 39 years old, once handy man in the home of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop at 3406 West Monroe street, is reported to have disappeared. This was revealed yesterday when petition for a writ of habeas corpus was filed in his behalf before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan in the Criminal court.

Van Pelt, regarded as a possible witness in the case of Dr. Wynekoop, who will go on trial on Jan. 4 on a charge of murdering her daughter-in-law, Rheta, was last seen a week ago Sunday, according to Attorney Frank Tyrrell, who filed the petition for the writ. At that time, according to Attorney Tyrrell, Van Pelt left the home of a friend, James Simmons, Kedzie avenue and Monroe street, with two men who said they "wanted to talk to him."

Attorney Tyrrell said that he had been informed that the men were the same pair who seized Van Pelt for questioning shortly after the murder.

8 BILLION BUDGET LIKELY FOR U. S. NEW FISCAL YEAR

Recovery Plans' Cost Is Largest Item.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, who today continued his budget making for the fiscal year starting July 1, 1934, and ending June 30, 1935, will have a total of almost eight billion dollars to spend if he cuts the gold content of the dollar in half. That was learned today.

Expecting to get about 3½ billions from taxes in the fiscal year which begins July 1, President Roosevelt can add another four billion 300 million dollars to funds available for a continuance of public works, relief, and other New Deal projects by cutting the dollar in half.

Avoids Additional Taxing.

This device, treasury experts point out, would enable the President to continue all his emergency spending organizations, avoid additional taxes, and still achieve a balanced budget. Eight billions would set a record for federal spending.

While the President, in conference with Acting Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., was working on the budget for the next fiscal year the treasury department revealed that the deficit on operations thus far this year has passed the billion dollar mark.

It's Recovery Deficit.

That the deficit will be much higher before this fiscal year closes next June 30 and that it all will be chargeable to recovery activities was admitted by the President at his press conference today. He pointed out that a deficit in the current year had been certain since huge sums were appropriated last summer by congress, but he called attention to the fact that revenues were about covering ordinary expenditures. The treasury's condition statement for Dec. 23, the last one published, showed total revenues of 1 billion 440 million dollars, ordinary expenditures of 1 billion 425 millions, and extraordinary spending of 1 billion 39 millions, leaving a deficit on all operations of 1 billion 24 millions.

To Continue Program.

That practically all of the 7 billion 800 million dollars which the President would have available for the next fiscal year as the result of taxes and devaluation already has been earmarked for various spending agencies was admitted today.

At least 2 billion 600 million dollars will go for the regular government establishment; another 1½ billions will be needed to carry on public works expenditures dragging over into next year. Creation of a second public works fund, out of which another billion might be spent, is under consideration. The Reconstruction Finance corporation and relief would take at least another 1½ billions.

LAST OF UTILITY OFFICIALS GIVES UP IN FRAUD CASE

John H. Gulick, former director of the Northern Indiana Public Service company, surrendered at Crown Point yesterday on an indictment voted Dec. 19 by the Lake county grand jury after an investigation into the alleged mismanagement of the company's financial affairs. He furnished a bond of $10,000.

Gulick, who is now a vice president of the Commonwealth Edison company of Chicago, was the last of the seven indicted officers and directors of the Northern Indiana Public Service company to surrender. The indictments against them charge embezzlement, grand larceny and conspiracy.

The others indicted were Samuel Insull Jr., who was vice chairman of the Indiana concern; Charles W. Chase, former director, now general manager of the Indianapolis railway system; Edward W. Lloyd, Thomas G. Hamilton, Bernard P. Shearon, former secretary-treasurer of the Northern Indiana company, and Morse Dell Plaine, who is president of the company. No arraignment date has been set.

WOMAN PUT ON PROBATION FOR RELIEF FRAUD

Mrs. Anna Smalinski, 36 years old, of 2228 West 21st street, was convicted in the women's court yesterday of obtaining $220 fraudulently from the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. Judge Lambert K. Hayes placed her on probation for one year when she arranged to repay the money to the commission.

Mrs. Bertha Delin, attorney for the commission, introduced testimony showing that although Mrs. Smalinski had told case workers that her husband deserted her several years ago, leaving her to support their two children, he had in reality been living with her steadily and working as a trainman for the Chicago Rapid Transit Lines since 1926. The husband and the two children were in court.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK ON BUS.

George Glockner, 60 years old, 3724 New England avenue, a driver for the United States Brewing company, died of a heart attack last night shortly after boarding a bus at Irving Park boulevard and Neenah avenue.

BELMONT HOTEL HELD BY GANG IN BOLD ROBBERY

Bandits Rob Cashier and Guests.

Five bandits took possession of the Belmont hotel, Sheridan road and Belmont avenue, and held it for 15 minutes yesterday afternoon and escaped with $90 and fur coats and jewelry valued at several hundred dollars. The bandits fled in disgust after their efforts to pry open the strong boxes in which guests' valuables are deposited in the lobby vault met with failure.

The robbers entered the lobby with their revolvers drawn. Two gunmen were left to guard the Belmont avenue and Sheridan road entrances, and the other three went to the cashier's cage and forced Miss Grace Caple, 3616 Pine Grove avenue, to hand over $75.

Rob Woman of Fur Coat.

While two of the men tried to pry open the boxes in the safe, Mrs. William E. McNamara, a guest, entered the lobby. She was forced to surrender her coat and several pieces of jewelry and made to sit with the cashier on a bench in the lobby.

Mrs. Arthur Hedley was threatened by the gunmen when she entered the lobby with her daughters, Marion and Madeline. Mrs. Hedley was forced to hand over her wedding ring, but her daughters were not molested. Joseph Tampa, 654 Briar place, was robbed of $15 when he entered the lobby and he was slugged by one of the bandits when he was slow in obeying the order to join the other prisoners.

Another Woman Robbed.

Sally Miller of Des Moines, Ia., who had come to the hotel to visit her aunt, a guest, was the last to enter the hotel. She was forced to join the others seated on the bench. One of the bandits forced her to hand over her fur coat and her purse.

The three bandits who were working on the vault boxes gave up the attempt to pry the boxes open when one of them suspected that Miss Caple had stepped on a burglar alarm button. They called to the two men guarding the doors and fled to the street after warning their prisoners to make no outcry.

DISALLOWS FEE DUE EX-LAW AID OF ROOSEVELT

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—A fee of $14,000 asked by Basil O'Connor, a former law partner of President Roosevelt, for services of less than a month when he served as special master in the Interborough receivership case has been disallowed by Federal Judge Julian W. Mack, it was revealed today.

Judge Mack reduced the fee to $5,000 and served notice on attorneys performing quasi-judicial functions that he would disallow high claims.

The ruling was made on a claim made by Mr. O'Connor for his services in November of 1932 in ruling on the advisability of requiring the Interborough to pay taxes and interest on Manhattan Elevated bonds.

CHECKS SPEEDED TO LONG UNPAID CWA WORKERS

New Certifying System to Hasten Task.

CWA workers who have not received checks for as much as three and four weeks of work were assured yesterday by Russell L. Peters, chief auditor of the Illinois CWA, that the pay rolls are being prepared under great pressure and the checks are being mailed as fast as lists are completed. A new certifying system is being put into effect that will speed the pay rolls, he said.

Mr. Peters' attention was directed to the situation by a large number of complaints received at his office and by newspapers. Upon investigation he found that many political subdivisions employing CWA workers were swamped with the detail of preparing the federal type pay rolls. He organized emergency teams of typists and clerks, sending them to help in this work, eighteen going to the state highway department.

Pay Roll Staff Too Small.

The pay rolls being prepared by the state highway department were found to be far in arrears, because the department had such a small pay roll staff. The pay roll work is now being completed rapidly by the emergency force.

"By the first week in January we will have all CWA pay rolls brought up to date," Mr. Peters said.

Frank D. Chase, Illinois CWA director, disclosed yesterday that asphalt being used in street paving under the CWA is being purchased at $4 a ton, as compared with the normal price of $8 a ton. This will effect a total saving of about $480,000 in the cost of asphalt to be used here, he said.

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt said materials estimated to cost $2,500,000 for use on CWA projects actually have been bought for about $150,000 less due to strice competitive bidding. The city will pay half of this bill, and the federal CWA the other half. The saving was effected by both city and CWA officials. Commissioner Hewitt also announced that the city had stopped all CWA materials purchases yesterday for an inventory of materials on hand and prices.

Jobs for Teachers.

Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the Illinois civil works administration, announced yesterday that four more civil works educational projects for Chicago had been approved. Two music instructors will be hired for two months by the south park board and instructors will be hired by the Y. M. C. A. and the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parental Education.

Mr. Dunham said machinery is being set up to administer the census enumeration of the city as a civil works project, beginning Jan. 2. An occupational survey and a population census will be made by about 2,500 enumerators.

URGES REVISION OF CITY'S CODE TO ENRICH MILK

Chicago will be assured a richer milk supply if the amendment to the city milk code introduced in the city council yesterday is adopted.

Ald. David L. Sutton [8th] introduced the amendment, which calls for striking out the present minimum butterfat content of 3 per cent for all milk sold in Chicago. The new minimum standard called for in his amendment is 4 per cent. The amendment was referred to the health committee.

A hearing on the proposed change in butterfat content has been called by Ald. Sutton, chairman of the council subcommittee on milk, in the city hall at 10 a. m. today. The subcommittee also is to investigate charges of dairy farmers that they are unable to get inspections and approval of their farms promptly by the city board of health, a requirement necessary to enable them to ship milk into the city.

AAA RIDES BOTH SIDES OF FENCE ON DAIRY PLAN

'Huge Appropriations Out'; Asks Millions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—With one hand the farm administration today carried forward its new campaign to get 200 million dollars from congress for a dairy relief program, and with the other warned that such lump sum appropriations "should be regarded with suspicion."

The 200 millions the AAA intends would "supplement" collections from a prospective processing tax on milk and its products. Although processing taxes on farm commodities were intended in the farm adjustment act to furnish funds for the agricultural relief program, government officials and farm leaders believe 200 millions or more will be necessary to carry out a dairy program.

Propaganda Under Way

Following indorsement of the plan at a conference of dairy leaders last week, the AAA has launched an intensive "build-up" for the prospective 200 million dollar request.

In an official statement, the administration today listed about fifty senators, representatives, governors and other state officials from whom telegrams approving the 200 million dollar plan were said to have been received.

At the same time, Chester C. Davis, new farm administrator, in a Philadelphia speech, was condemning lump sum appropriations for farm relief and urging that the system of processing taxes or some her "continuing" form of revenue be relied upon.

Advises Suspicion.

"Farm leaders should regard with suspicion any attempts to substitute a lump sum appropriation, however large, for a constant source of revenue," Davis asserted. "There should be no disposition any where to permit any special appropriation, such as the 200 million dollar fund now proposed to help finance aid for the dairying and beef cattle industries, to become an opening wedge to accomplish such a purpose. Lump sum appropriations will weaken the act if employed in permanent financing because they become exhausted and are vulnerable to attack by selfish interests."

HOTEL RECEIVER ADVISED TO ASK NRA EXEMPTION

The Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver for the Rowantrees hotel, 500 Englewood avenue, yesterday sought permission from Julius Miner, master in chancery for Circuit Judge William V. Brothers, to start operation of the hotel under the NRA hotel code. The code operation, with minimum pay of $15 a week and a 54 hour week, would increase the monthly operating expense from $1,100 to $1,360, it was stated. The hotel is now in default on taxes and bond interest. Master Miner approved the request, but directed that the receiver first consult the local NRA officials in an effort to get exemptions from the code provisions.

RAINEY URGES U. S. TAKE OVER MEAT PACKING

He Would Fix Prices for Farmer, Consumer.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Government operation and control of the meat packing industry, accompanied by price fixing for meat products to both producers and consumers, were proposed today by Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, speaker of the house of representatives.

The proposal was the speaker's reply to the suggestion of organized farm leaders, backed by Secretary Wallace and the AAA, that congress appropriate $200,000,000 to subsidize farmers who agree to reduce the number of cattle and the supply of milk by an amount to be stipulated by the AAA.

Views Weigh Heavily.

"It might prove more effective and would be far simpler than appropriating these sums for the government to take over the packing industry and operate it by paying fixed prices for pork and beef products, if packers continue to exercise their monopolistic powers to drive down prices," Speaker Rainey declared.

The speaker has arranged to confer at noon tomorrow with President Roosevelt. Whether he intends to communicate to him his views on farm relief is not known. Nevertheless, his open declaration of policy took on an unusual significance coming on the eve of the reconvening of congress.

In support of his suggestion Speaker Rainey recalled that during the war the government took over the railroads and, by placing them under a director general, rerouted traffic and fixed rates and in other ways determined what should be the cost to shippers of rail transportation. He thinks the same thing could be accomplished as to meat products if the government would be willing to invade the field of private industry to such an extent.

No Private Dealing.

Action by the government such as was openly advocated by Mr. Rainey today has been urged recently by some of the more radically inclined officials of the AAA. A voluntary code and marketing agreement for the packing house industry is now pending before that agency and officials from Secretary Wallace down have indicated it would not be approved unless the government received complete access to books and records of the participating concerns.

Should Speaker Rainey's statement today reflect the sentiment prevailing in the house of representatives it may have far-reaching implications for the administration's farm recovery program.

Under the program he suggests independent marketing would be eliminated, the government controlling distribution, and fixing consumer prices at whatever point deemed essential.

SUBWAY PLANS ARE REVIVED BY TRANSIT ACCORD

Seek Agreement on State Street Assessments.

With a reported agreement among the security holders on a plan to merge the street car and elevated systems, efforts were started yesterday by the board of local improvements to provide a settlement which would permit the construction of the State street subway.

The subway litigation, which involves the allocation of cost between the city and the State street property owners, has lain dormant in the courts for more than a year because of economic conditions and the delays in the transit merger. Under the terms of the new franchise ordinance, which lapses if it is not accepted by the traction interests next month, the city must build a subway in State street between East Chicago avenue and Eighteenth street simultaneously with the extension of the elevated system in the loop area.

Plan to Ask United States Loan.

Arthur A. Sullivan, attorney for the board, said he has been conferring with State street property owners in an effort to reach an accord on a special assessment figure to avoid protracted court proceedings. If his negotiations are successful, he said, the board will then recommend them to Mayor Kelly with the suggestion that a federal public works loan be sought for the city's share of the subway cost.

Attorney Sullivan said it might be possible to put up tax warrants from the city's traction fund of $63,000,000 as collateral for the federal loan. If the loan is obtained from the Public Works administration the city could save about 30 per cent of the cost of building the subway, a saving in which the State street property owners would share in lower special assessments. The government makes an outright gift of 30 per cent of the cost of labor and materials on all PWA loans.

Mr. Sullivan advanced another reason in favor of pushing the subway project. The original estimate of the cost of the improvement was $41,146,000. Under present conditions labor and other costs would be substantially lower, he said. This also would lessen the expense to the State street property owners who objected to the original plan, which provided that they bear 25 per cent of the cost in special assessments.

Might Readjust Costs.

The balance of the cost is to be paid out of the traction fund. It was indicated by Mr. Sullivan yesterday that the proportions of 75 and 25 per cent might be readjusted in favor of the State street property owners, as a matter of equity, in view of present conditions.

Mayor Kelly refused to comment on the subway plans. He said the construction of the subway would depend greatly on the outcome of the traction merger negotiations and all the financial factors involved.

Meantime yesterday optimism prevailed in all quarters that a reorganization plan for merger of the surface and elevated systems would be completed in time to be presented to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on Jan. 3. Attorney Walter L. Fisher, who was appointed by Judge Wilkerson to bring the deadlocked security holders into an accord, said that the chief essentials of the plan had been agreed on and that minor details were being worked out.

Sell Securities at Auction.

The Commonwealth Subsidiary corporation, an affiliate of the Commonwealth Edison company, at a foreclosure auction yesterday purchased securities having a par value of $2,000,000 for $1,752,067, wiping out a debt owed by the Chicago Rapid Transit [elevated] company. The securities had been put up as collateral for two loans negotiated in 1931 between the rapid transit company and the Commonwealth affiliate. The securities included elevated system bonds and stocks, Insull Utility Investments shares, Century of Progress bonds, and Central Broadway Building corporation bonds.

Girl Piano Prodigy Arrives in City

CHILD PIANIST ARRIVES WITH A DIVA'S POISE

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A little girl in a red dress that matched her cheeks discussed her profession with reporters and posed as expertly as an operatic prima donna for photographers at the Bismarck hotel yesterday. Then, in the next breath, the 8 year old child chatted excitedly, like any other youngster, of the four Marx brothers, Santa Claus, Mickey Mouse, and her favorite radio crooner.

But on Saturday afternoon she will walk confidently out on the platform of Orchestra hall to demonstrate why critics consider her a piano playing prodigy. She will slide on to the piano bench and her small roundish hands will send the strains of Bach's Prelude in E major and Beethoven's Sonata in C minor, opus 13, echoing through the hall in a recital.

Her Debut Made at Age of 6.

The little girl's name is Ruth Slenczynski. She was born in California, but since she was 5 years old she has been studying in Europe. She made her debut in Berlin at the age of 6. With her on her tour is her father, Josef Slenczynski, whose pride in his little daughter is evident despite his modest silence. He, too, is a musician and also a veteran of the A. E. F.

Ruth and her father arrived in Chicago yesterday from Cincinnati. Once settled at the Bismarck, the small musician played the charming hostess to interviewers. Not once did she lose her characteristic poise. She confided that she likes puzzles, that her red purse was a Christmas present, and that maybe she will go to a performance of "Alice in Wonderland."

Frightened? Not She.

Was she ever frightened, some one asked, when she got up before an audience to play?

"Frightened!" she exclaimed. "Why should I become frightened when I am playing a concert? It's my profession, you know."

MRS. WM. FLEITMANN FACES $1,000,000 SUIT FOR LOVE ALIENATION

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Loss of millions in the market crash didn't occasion Mrs. Margaret Stafford's two years in a sanitarium, but alienation of her husband's love by Mrs. Alice Fleitmann did just that, Mrs. Stafford sets forth in a $1,000,000 damage suit started today.

"Robert K. Stafford and I," the affidavit of Mrs. Stafford asserts, "lived happily for seventeen years, until 1931, when Alice Fleitmann maliciously alienated his affections and induced him to break his nuptial vows. She caused him to leave me and go to Southampton with her. I suffered great distress of mind and body and was confined to a sanitarium for two years from nervous shock and breakdown."

Mrs. Fleitmann, 30 years old, is the widow of William Fleitmann, from whom she was estranged.

Woman Clerk Fights Off Robber and Saves Purse

Miss Josephine Lorenz, 23 years old, 5347 Wellington avenue, a clerk in the public library, last night fought off a robber in a vacant lot at Grand and Newcastle avenues and saved her purse. The man halted her as she cut across the lot on her way home. He grabbed at her purse and knocked her down, but she got up and struck back, screaming. She battled the robber for several minutes until a passerby, who had heard her cries, ran to her aid. The robber fled at the approach of the other man.

PROFESSOR AND STUDENT PRAISE NEW YALE PLAN

Breaking Down Academic Lockstep, Fathers Told.

Yale university's new "college plan," under which the students are enrolled in separate colleges under the supervision of the university, is "breaking down the academic lockstep and setting a new standard of democratic treatment for all students," according to a faculty member. An undergraduate stated that the plan "dooms fraternities at Yale and is filling their places with activities which apply to a larger group of students."

These two viewpoints of the new plan were expressed yesterday at the annual Fathers and Sons' luncheon of the Yale Club of Chicago in the Palmer house. Four hundred Yale alumni, undergraduates, and future undergraduates attended. The future "sons of Yale" were told that the "new Yale is infinitely more exciting, interesting and valuable than the Yale your fathers went to."

Air of Distinction.

John Morse, a Yale senior, chairman of the Yale Record and a member of the school hockey team, was the undergraduate speaker.

"I can see," he said, "that Pearson and Davenport colleges at Yale are going to become the fashionable colleges of the United States as Christchurch is the fashionable college at Oxford. The 'white shoe boys of Park avenue' already have taken up these two colleges and managed to impart an air of social distinction to their walls.

Allen Valentine, fellow of Pearson college, was the faculty speaker. He asserted that the college plan had made more flexible the entrance requirements for Yale, without reducing their high standard. It will enable "a boy to go as far in four years of college as he has the desire, the energy and determination to go."

Remedy Old System.

"It's conceivable that Yale seniors of four years hence may be doing work which ordinarily is given only to second year post-graduate students," Prof. Valentine said. "As for the social life, in the old days those students who got into the inner circles of fraternities had a pleasant and exciting time. Fully 50 per cent of the student body did not, however. We are trying to remedy this in the college plan."

Speaking particularly to future Yale students Prof. Valentine said that while they would not find the Yale their fathers knew, it would be a university which carried on the Yale tradition with a system designed to meet the changes in civilization as they have taken place.

Among those attending the luncheon were Henry A. Gardner of the class of 1905, and his son, Henry Jr., a sophmore at Yale; William T. Bacon, class of 1906, and his sons, William T. Jr., 10 years old, and Carter, 9; Paul Schulze Jr., class of 1916 and his son, Paul III, 5 years old; Edward L. Ryerson Jr., class of 1908, and his son, Edward III; Lester Armour, George Richardson, William McCormick Blair, Robert Gardner, the golf star, and Frederick L. McNally, president of the club.

STRIVES TO WIN CHICAGO AID IN ST. LAWRENCE

Gulf Seaway Changes Are Offered by Army.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—In an effort to win the votes of the Mississippi valley senators for the St. Lawrence waterway treaty, the administration has moved, it was learned today, for the expenditure of an additional $15,530,000 on the Illinois waterway.

War department engineers, after a new survey of the Illinois river, have recommended the tearing out of two ancient and decrepit lock and dams—at Kampsville and La Grange—and the building of new locks and dams, one at La Grange and the other near Peoria.

Would Widen Channel.

The engineers have also proposed a widening of the channel to a width of 300 feet from Starved Rock, where the state project ends, to the mouth of the Illinois, a distance of 231 miles.

The significance of these improvements and their relation to the St. Lawrence treaty, lies in the statement of the war department to the effect that if the new proposals are carried out navigation can be properly carried on with a reduction of the diversion of water from Lake Michigan at Chicago to 1,500 cubic second feet.

For years Chicago has been the target of various lake states and of Canada, as well as of New York and Canadian power interests, which charged that the diversion at Chicago, which had ranged up to 10,000 cubic feet per second, had lowered the levels of the great lakes and had damaged shipping interests. A long court battle finally resulted in a decree by the United States Supreme court ordering that the diversion be cut down gradually, during a period of building sewage disposal plants, and that in 1938 the diversion should be put at a permanent maximum of 1,500 cubic feet per second.

Chicago Opposes Decision.

Although Chicago and the state of Illinois still are seeking relief from the drastic decree of the Supreme court, and although at the time of its entry the question of the navigability of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway was not yet in question, the state department, under former President Hoover, negotiated and signed a treaty with Canada for the building of the St. Lawrence waterway. One article of that treaty provided that the diversion at Chicago should be permanently reduced to 1,500 cubic feet per second.

Various senators from the middle west, including Senators James Hamilton Lewis and William Dieterich of Illinois, and Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, immediately attacked the treaty.

They asserted that the diversion agreed upon would not be adequate for navigation of the gulf waterway, and insisted that the article be struck out of the treaty.

Once this opposition to the treaty developed, further investigation by the treaty's opponents led to their making new charges to the effect that the project was not sound economically; that the United States was being called upon to pay too great a share of the expense, and that American money was to be spent for Canadian labor and Canadian materials.

In an effort to put down this opposition the administration now proposes the improvements on the Illinois river, with the war department's promise that such action would make the river adequately navigable with the 1,500 cubic feet per second diversion.

The new report of the war department concedes that 1,500 cubic feet per second would not be sufficient for navigation purposes under present conditions of the river.

Others Join in Inquiry.

It is also learned today that under President Roosevelt's suggestion other departments have been making resurveys of the St. Lawrence project, and that in a short time the results of this new inquiry will be made known.

In addition to the war department, the commerce, agriculture, and state departments have participated in the resurvey, which was coördinated through Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the federal power commission.

Mr. McNinch said today he expected a report on the investigation would be ready for submission to the President within about 10 days. It is expected the report will be used in furthering the cause of the treaty, and in efforts to refute the charge that the treaty is economically unsound and unfair to the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt was questioned about his attitude on the treaty at a press conference today.

The President reiterated his support of the St. Lawrence waterway project, but he would not commit himself in favor of ratification of the treaty in its present form. When it was recalled to the President that he had given some assurances to Robert Isham Randolph of Chicago, president of the Mississippi Valley association, that the rights of Chicago and the Mississippi valley states would be protected, he made known the fact that the war department had made a report on the Chicago diversion. The President said he had not yet familiarized himself with that report, which later was made available by the war department.

Invited to Stay at White House

KING PRAJADHIPOK AND QUEEN RAMBAIBARNI.

Coming for Treatment

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—King Prajadhipok of Siam, and his queen, Rambaibarni, who will return to the United States shortly for further treatment of the king's eye trouble, have been invited to stay at the White House as the guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The invitation has been forwarded to Bangkok by the Siamese legation here, but there has not been time for reception of a reply.

King Prajadhipok was in the United States two years ago when Dr. John M. Wheeler of New York removed a cataract from one of his eyes. The king is understood to have developed similiar trouble in the other eye and was so favorably impressed with the skill of the first operation that he will come all the way to the United States again to have it repeated.

Although no plans have yet been made for his visit, the operation will probably be performed in New York.

PLAN RETURN OF G. O. P. SENATORS TO PARTY FOLD

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Conciliation of the insurgent senate Republicans and the winning back of the group who deserted to Roosevelt last year is being attempted by Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, the Republican senate leader. In the last few days he has personally called on the senators who left the reservation and invited them to attend a conference of senators listed as Republicans.

This conference, Senator McNary explained, will not attempt to define a program for the minority in the coming session. It will not seek to pledge its participants to attack Democratic policies.

"All Republicans look alike to me," he said today, "and I have asked them to meet on Tuesday before the convening of congress to exchange ideas. It is to be a sort of experience meeting, a discussion of the condition of the country, and an honest attempt by legislators to work together, if possible, for the best interests of the country."

Senator McNary is the most popular Republican leader the senate has had for many years among the so-called liberal Republicans.

Circuit Judge John R. Caverly has been a patient in Mercy hospital since Sunday, it was learned yesterday. Dr. Krost said that Judge Caverly's condition is not serious and that he will be able to return to his home soon.

PROSECUTORS OF ILLINOIS OPEN MEETING TODAY

More than 200 state's attorneys and their assistants from the 102 counties in Illinois, will gather this morning in the Palmer House for the opening of the 37th annual convention of the Illinois State's Attorneys' association. State's Attorney Courtney of Cook county will make the welcoming address.

Chauncey W. Reed, president of the association and state's attorney of Du Page county, will make his annual address and will discuss modern crime conditions and the necessity for close coöperation between the state and federal authorities. Other speakers at the session today will be Attorney General Otto Kerner, Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago Crime commission, Lester Geers, and William D. Knight. Mayor Kelly will be the guest of honor at a luncheon of the prosecutors.

ELMORE RENEWS FIGHT FOR SALE OF CANAL TO U. S.

Warns Congressmen That New Taxes Impend.

Reiterating the principle that the Chicago canal should be federalized because it is passing from the sewage disposal stage to a real rating as a ship channel, Howard W. Elmore, minority member of the sanitary district board, issued a warning yesterday to all members of the Illinois delegation in congress.

In a statement supported by a citation from the decisions of the United States Supreme court in reference to the diversion of water from Lake Michigan, Mr. Elmore told the Illinois representatives that the attitude of Washington is that unless the sanitary district takes care of its own finances the burden of taxation will be transferred to the state as a whole, a change which would affect every owner of property in Illinois.

Discusses Canal Sale Plan.

"The people of the state outside the district," he said, "should be interested fully as much as residents of the district in the proposal to sell the main and Calumet-Sag channels to the United States government.

"The 'lake level cases' involving the withdrawal of water from Lake Michigan were suits brought by certain states bordering on the great lakes against the sanitary district and the state of Illinois. They were not merely suits against the district.

"The sanitary district is an agency of the state. Its rights, powers, and duties originated in an act of the general assembly. While it was made a party to the 'lake level suits,' the primary defendant was the state of Illinois.

Recalls Supreme Court Decision.

"In the original decision handed down by the Supreme court of the United States in April, 1930, this was made quite clear. That opinion stated that if the constitution of the state stood in the way of funds being raised to carry on the work of building the sewage treatment works in the sanitary district program then it was necessary for the state to amend its constitution.

"In May, 1933, the Supreme court enlarged the decree of 1930 by requiring the state of Illinois to take all necessary steps to see that the money was raised to carry out the required sewage treatment program.

"This means that before December, 1938, approximately one hundred and twenty million dollars must be spent on the sewage treatment program of the sanitary district. It means further, that the state of Illinois is held primarily responsible for the raising of this money.

"The district is now borrowing money from the public works administration. This will exhaust the bonding power of the district. It will then become necessary for the state of Illinois to raise the required funds by bonds secured by general taxation.

"These taxes would be a new experience for the people outside the district, yet the United States is in a position to force the state of Illinois to raise these funds."

FELONY CHARGE REDUCED, JAIL TERM UNSERVED

New Motion to Vacate Woman's Sentence.

The court record of Flossie "Babe" White, 28 years old, 1335 Otto street, who was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction for receiving stolen property by Municipal Judge John Gutknecht, was examined yesterday. It disclosed that Flossie, having escaped grand jury action when Judge Gutknecht reduced the charge against her from a felony to a misdemeanor, has also escaped serving her jail sentence.

On June 9 Flossie and Chester E. Graff, 19 years old, 3516 Bosworth avenue, were arrested in a flat at 3344 Greenview avenue by Town Hall police. In the flat police found four fur coats and a model ship belonging to Mrs. Lee Burkett, 3829 Rokeby street. The garments were valued at $350. Mrs. Burkett signed a warrant charging the youth with larceny and Flossie with receiving the stolen coats.

Original Charge Reduced.

On June 13, four days after their arrest, the pair appeared before Judge Gutknecht. The court records show the original charge was reduced to a misdemeanor when the value of the stolen property was reduced in the warrant from $350 to $14.50. This practice by Municipal court judges has been condemned as "illegal and beyond their authority" by the Chicago Crime commission.

The court records also disclose that on June 13 Flossie was sentenced to her term in jail and young Graff also sent to jail. Graff was released three weeks later under the supervision of his parents and no criminal record is against him.

There is no record at the county jail or the House of Correction to show that Flossie ever served any part of her sentence. The court records show her sentence was suspended pending hearing of a motion to vacate the sentence. This motion was set for June 14, continued on that day to June 29, then continued to Dec. 21, and now is set for hearing May 10, 1934. The court files show she signed her own bond.

Mrs. Burkett Explains.

"I agreed to reduce the warrant to a misdemeanor only under pressure from Judge Gutknecht, and I did not know a motion to vacate this sentence had been made until I found that Flossie was not in jail," said Mrs. Burkett yesterday. "On Dec. 21 I went to Judge Gutknecht and asked him to make her serve the sentence, but he said he would run his court in his own way."

Judge Gutknecht said it was "customary" in the Municipal court to enter a motion to vacate a sentence without giving notice to the complaining witness.

"I ruled as I did in this case to break up the association between Flossie and this boy. His parents asked me to do it," said Judge Gutknecht.

Bee Palmer Announces Her Marriage to Pianist

MARCO POLO MAP OF 13TH CENTURY BELIEVED FOUND

The discovery of a map, believed to have been drawn in the time of Marco Polo and outlining the famous 13th century expedition of the Venetian explorer into Asia, was revealed yesterday to members of the American Geographers' association by Lawrence Martin, chief of the division of maps of the Congressional library. The association is meeting at Harris hall, Northwestern university.

Mr. Martin exhibited a photostatic copy of the map, which was found among the papers of Marcian F. Rossi of San José, Cal., some time ago. It was traced to Italy, where it had been found rolled about a bone handle in some ancient archives. Experts have pronounced it apparently genuine.

Accounts of Marco Polo's wanderings, including the history he dictated himself, are fragmentary and contradictory. The map furnishes the most authentic outline of his explorations, it was said. The date the map was drawn is not eligible on the document, but it is believed to be of the 14th century because of its phraseology.

The names of places on the map are in Chinese ideographs and the legend is in old Italian, Mr. Martin revealed. Moretta Polo, daughter of the explorer, was apparently the designer of the map and she based it on letters left her by her father, the speaker said.

Dr. Nelson Gets Divorce After 6 Years' Litigation

Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday granted a divorce in Superior court to Dr. Michael Nelson, 1005 Belmont avenue, from Mrs. Evelyn Nelson. The decree, given on grounds of desertion, ended six years of litigation. The parents were granted joint custody of two children, and Dr. Nelson agreed to pay $60 a month for their support while they are with the mother. The couple was married Aug. 29, 1922, and separated March 2, 1927.

WAR FOR RULE OF CATALONIA OPENS AT MACIA'S GRAVE

Million Mourn at Burial of Old Patriot.

BY JAY ALLEN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BARCELONA, Spain, Dec. 27.—Hardly had Catalonia's dead president, Col. Francisco Macia, been lowered into the earth after highly emotional ceremonies today when the struggle for succession broke out with fury.

The executive committee of the party called "Esquerra," which the old Quixote of the twentieth century founded to consolidate his victory over Castilian domination, will meet to choose candidates who, because it dominates, will win the elections for the presidency generalitat and the Catalan parliament Saturday.

Factions Fight for Control.

The chiefs of factions already were at each others throats tonight as a result of the hint of Luis Companys that he wants badly to step into the shoes of "El Avi" [Grandfather] Macia. Companys, long known as a lawyer for Syndicalists and chief politician of the biggest Esquerra faction, figures to assure his leadership of the whole party. This is disputed by Jaime Ayguede, mayor of Barcelona, and others.

Companys thus upset plans to name a nonfactional Catalan patriot and in many quarters Col. Macia's last heartbroken lament that Catalonia without unity was lost was being quoted.

But while the lost leader was being taken to his grave under a stone from the fortress Montjuich, where the Bourbons impounded their enemies for centuries, animosity was forgotten in an outburst of emotion such as is rarely known. The funeral cortège wound through the tortuous streets of the medieval town and the wide avenues of the new for three hours and a half. Tons of flowers covered the gun caisson and hundreds of cars that followed.

President Zamora Attends.

Niceto Alcala Zamora, president of the republic, whose coming pleased the Catalans no end, walked for three hours behind the bier of the first president generalitat.

"What our friendship meant to the history of Spain few appreciate," Zamora said, referring undoubtedly to the day when by telephone he talked Macia out of declaring an independent Catalonia.

Francisco Cambo, great Catalan banker and Macia's bitter political foe, walked in the cortège and, by the way, was hissed. So did the bulky Indalecio Prieto, whose Socialist party was continually at war with Macia's Syndicalists. Prieto was in tears, as were the Syndicalist leaders by his side.

Five hundred banners were carried, most of them by peasants whom Macia had befriended. A million Catalans watched the passing of the man who, even the opposition admitted, was a hidalgo [nobleman] in the old manner, and for a few hours at least the sense of national unity which won their freedom swelled again.

Tear Cross from Hearse.

Strangely for a funeral, they sang the revolutionary "El Segador" [The Reaper], which was forbidden by the monarchy. They forgot that only a week ago Col. Macia's appearance in the movie news weeklies aroused boos and laughter.

All animosities were forgotten save one that has long poisoned Spanish politics. In the presence of 40,000 people in front of parliament the cross was torn from the hearse to which the body was transferred for its last trip. This was done on orders of the ministers generalitat who collaborated with Col. Macia's radical and generally anti-clerical policy.

It had been agreed that Macia's Catholic family was to have nothing to do with today's ceremonies. Macia had confessed after a life of indifference and was given extreme unction, and the church was allowed yesterday to hold short rites in the mortuary chamber.

AMERICAS' UNITY TO RIVAL BRITISH TRADE TIES: HULL

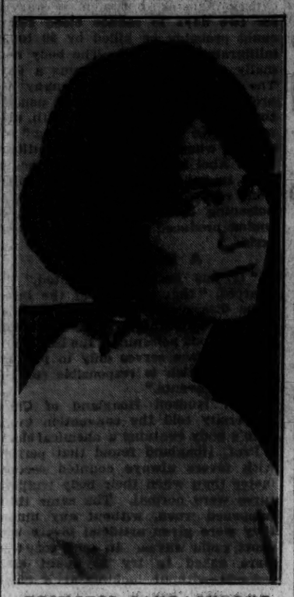
[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 27.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull is definitely encouraged by the prospects of such economic consolidation of the Latin-American countries and the United States as to form an answer to the Ottawa agreements of the British empire, he indicated today.

Enroute home after the close of the Pan-American conference at Montevideo, Mr. Hull called on President Justo and other Argentine officials. He was pleased to learn the Argentine reaction was even more favorable than he had supposed to the activities of the United States delegation at the recent parley.

As Mr. Hull sees future economic relations with Latin-America, these countries will inevitably be attracted away from Europe to the United States as a logical consequence of such nationalistic agreements as the Ottawa pacts and the French colonial preference arrangements.

SEEKS DIVORCE



PRINCESS CANTACUZENE.
[Acme Photo.]

PRINCESS, KIN OF GEN. GRANT, SEEKS DIVORCE

Bertha Cantacuzene Sues Smith.

Mrs. Bertha Smith, great-granddaughter of President U. S. Grant and a grand-niece of the late Mrs. Potter Palmer, filed suit yesterday in Louisville, Ky., for a divorce from Bruce Smith, to whom she was married in October, 1925. She also requested the restoration of her maiden name, Princess Bertha Cantacuzene.

Mrs. Smith charged her husband with cruelty, who is associated with his father in the wholesale paper business in Louisville. The divorce bill stated that she agreed Mr. Smith should have custody of their son Bruce Michael, 22 months old; also that it was agreed there should be a mutual restoration of property.

Daughter of Julia Grant.

During the last fifteen years Mrs. Smith has been a frequent visitor in Chicago and a favorite in society. She is the daughter of the Russian general, Prince Michael Cantacuzene, and Princess Julia Cantacuzene, who was Julia Dent Grant.

The Cantacuzenes belonged to the nobility of the czarist régime, and Princess Julia is the daughter of Maj. Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, son of President Grant.

The marriage of the Smiths was solemnized at the Washington home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Grant. Attending were the parents of Mr. Smith and of Princess Bertha, Miss Bertha Palmer, Miss Pauline Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, and Honore Palmer.

Prince Michael Cantacuzene, brother of Mrs. Smith, is a resident of Chicago. Their sister, Princess Ida, is married to John Hanbury-Williams of London.

The Cantacuzenes were all forced from Russia at the time of the revolution in 1917. The younger members came to Chicago after escaping.

Mrs. Smith's bill disclosed that she and her husband have been separated since Oct. 14. She is now residing in Sarasota and the suit in her behalf was filed by a Louisville attorney, John Edward Tarrant.

PRINCESS "SORRY."

Sarasota, Fla., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Princess Bertha Cantacuzène, who is at the home of her parents here, asked today about reports that she is to obtain a divorce from Bruce Smith of Louisville, said: "I am sorry I have nothing further to say except that there is going to be a divorce."

VATICAN ASSAILS RUSSIA, SPAIN FOR RELIGIOUS VIEWS

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 27.—(AP)—The view that the Russian religious situation is unchanged by Maxim Litvinov's assurance of freedom to worship for Americans was set forth today in Osservatore Romano, the official Vatican newspaper. The organ said Litvinov, the Russian foreign commissar, merely referred President Roosevelt, during the recent discussions of the two men regarding soviet recognition, to the Russian constitution, under which, Osservatore Romano said, "persecution and atheism have triumphed."

The Vatican journal brought the subject up in an editorial criticising the recent speech of the Spanish premier, Alejandro Lerroux, regarding religious rights.

The Osservators said the Spanish constitution is "incompatible with the right of the Spanish people to live Catholically, a right which they demanded unequivocably in recent elections." It added that the Spanish constitution "repudiated nineteen centuries of civilization of a people, but these nineteen centuries have not passed in vain, as the last elections showed."

CITES TROUBLES OF U. S. EXPORTER IN RECENT YEARS

A. J. Alsdorf Praises Plan of The Tribune.

Among the letters which streamed in yesterday praising the proposal of THE TRIBUNE to take part actively in an effort to revive American export trade was one telling of the difficulties of foreign business during recent years and discussing from personal experience some of the causes of the situation.

"During the 23 years we have been doing foreign business," ran this letter, "we have found that at no time has it been as difficult to sell American merchandise abroad as it has been during the last three years."

The communication came from A. J. Alsdorf, head of an exporting corporation bearing his name and having its offices at 223 West Jackson boulevard. He has been in business since 1911, dealing chiefly with automotive, electrical, and hardware exports.

Blames Tariff Policies.

Going into his discussion of the causes of present conditions and the possible relief for them, Mr. Alsdorf wrote:

"No doubt, one of the most important factors that has caused a decline of our foreign trade has been that the world in general is passing through an economic crisis, but nevertheless we do not feel that the decrease in this trade is entirely due to this reason, since other countries' exports have not suffered proportionately.

"American exports have been hampered by discriminating tariff policies which a number of foreign nations have set up against our raw materials and manufactured articles. While they have been practicing discriminating tariffs against us they have been making reciprocal agreements with other countries. This has in a great measure added to the decline of American exports. Furthermore, the many restrictions adopted by quite a number of countries for the liberating of dollar exchange has made overseas business dangerous and speculative. These general conditions have made exporting so difficult, that many manufacturers in the United States have found it advisable to stop looking for foreign business entirely, and to devote their attention to the domestic market, where such dangers do not exist.

Big Market Still Exists.

"We, like you, believe that the best way to have American foreign business reach its old height is by awakening the interest of American manufacturers and the public once again. They can be shown that there exists an important foreign market. Further, that there are still certain markets where no restrictions of any kind are imposed and where the dollar is exceedingly favorable. If such manufacturers could be shown these good markets and could be advised to evade the pitfalls of trading with foreign nations that are discriminating against our trade by reason of tariff barriers and restrictions there is no question in our mind that American export trade will grow rapidly. It will provide work for many thousands of our unemployed.

"Increased activity in foreign business would necessitate better banking and shipping facilities, because of the keen competition that would result from increased business. We therefore feel that if your foreign correspondents and your newspaper would devote attention to arousing the American manufacturer to enter the foreign field once more American export trade figures will show a marked upturn."

Offers Cooperation.

K. H. Hinrichs, president of the General Freight company, forwarding agents with offices in the old Tribune building, Madison and Dearborn streets, praised THE TRIBUNE'S foreign trade campaign and offered to cooperate by giving information about shipping rates and routes.

"A campaign should be started here to educate shippers how to go after the export business," he said. "More would enter the export business if they did not think of it as a vastly complicated business whereas it is extremely simple. The custom has been in the past for a company to think only of its export trade when its local trade becomes poor. As a result, there is no real knowledge here of export trade and how to get it."

TRIBUNE MEN BEGIN WORLD SURVEY ON BEHALF OF U. S. TRADE

Cablegrams from all over the world continued to reach THE TRIBUNE'S office yesterday as the staff of foreign correspondents gladly accepted the opportunity to serve their country and their newspaper by fulfilling one of the most unusual and important extra assignments ever given any newspaper men and women.

The assignment—cabled with greetings on Christmas day—gave THE TRIBUNE'S correspondents the job of gathering every bit of information possible on ways to develop the United States' export trade. Here are some sample reactions which indicate how these correspondents are "hopping to it":

Eugene Speck cabled from Athens: "Enthusiastic gratitude for my Christmas present. Communicating immediately with all strategic points. Profoundly hope I will be able to serve America and THE TRIBUNE on this mission."

David Darrah of the Rome bureau replied: "Thanks Christmas message. I acknowledge special assignment which I am proceeding to carry out immediately."

Harold Tatam cabled from Buenos Aires: "I welcome 1934 assignment. Will take special pains to fill it satisfactorily."

George Smith, in Toronto, telegraphed: "Thanks for my 1934 assignment on foreign trade. Will get on the job at once."

RUSSIA DELIVERS $500,000 BIBLICAL CODEX TO BRITAIN

Ancient Manuscript Is Put on Public View.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 27.—Wrapped in ordinary packing paper and with an entire lack of ceremony, one of the most precious manuscripts in the world was handed over today by soviet Russian authorities to officials of the British museum. It was the Codex Sinaiticus—believed to be the earliest copy of the Bible in existence—which Britain bought recently from the soviet government.

A special soviet courier with a diplomatic passport brought the package from Leningrad, where it had been kept in the old imperial library. On his arrival at Harwich the courier was met by police, who escorted him to the London headquarters of the soviet trade delegation.

Placed on Public View.

Here representatives of the trustees of the British museum were anxiously waiting. The courier marched in and dumped the package on the table. The coverings were removed and a large number of sheets of parchment packed in cotton wool were revealed. They were in almost perfect condition and the writings of the Old and New Testaments were as legible and plain as when they were written by monks nearly 1,600 years ago.

After a brief examination an official receipt was given and the codex was removed to the British museum, where a few hours later it was on view to the public. The soviets first asked $2,500,000 for the codex, but later came down to $1,000,000 and finally accepted $500,000.

WRITTEN IN GREEK.

The Codex Sinaiticus is among the most important of about 114 codices of the Bible—that is, manuscripts on parchment, dating from the 4th to the 10th century. It is written in Greek uncial characters and is believed to have been composed in the 4th century. It contains 26 books of the Old Testament, the New Testament, the gospel of St. Barnabas and apocrypha.

Bible scholars have been able to solve more variant readings by referring to the Codex Sinaiticus than to any other codex, a fact which has enhanced its value and importance to the Christian world.

Gust Decho, 25 years old, 3446 East End avenue, Steger, was killed yesterday when he slipped and fell in the path of a train on the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad at 30th street in South Chicago Heights.

CUBA REFUSES TO MEET MACHADO DEBT DUE IN U. S.

To Default on $4,000,000 Payable Dec. 31.

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 27.—(AP)—The Grau San Martin government today announced its determination not to pay the more than $4,000,000 due Dec. 31 on the public works debt contracted by the Gerardo Machado government, deposed in August.

Asserting refusal to pay meant not repudiation but merely suspension of payments until the whole situation can be discussed to determine which part of the debt, if any, is legal, Treasury Secretary Manuel Despaigne announced the total to be defaulted was $4,302,172.53.

Other reliable sources set the amount due the last of the year at $4,718,000. The difference was explained, these sources pointed out, by Despaigne's failure to include certain items, such as commissions, also due Dec. 31.

Chase Bank Big Loser.

Largest loser by virtue of the default will be the Chase National bank of New York, which had hoped until today it might be able to collect part if not all the $2,663,000 due it.

The remaining sum to be defaulted represents interest due and past due on $20,000,000 worth of gold treasury obligations, most of which are in the hands of contractors who carried out Machado's public works program.

Officials of the Chase bank's local branch would not comment on the expected default. It is known that the bank's representatives here have conferred frequently with Jefferson Caffery, President Roosevelt's representative in Cuba during recent days.

Speyer, Morgan Loans Cut.

Two Speyer and three Morgan loans contracted between 1904 and 1920, the original total of which was $120,500,000, have been reduced to $53,000,000 by amortization payments.

Because agreed payments of these loans were spread out over many years, they constitute the least oppressive part of Cuba's $145,000,000 funded indebtedness. Machado's public works loans, extended on short terms, have, on the other hand, been thorns in the flesh of all Cuban treasury secretaries these last few years.

"What the United States government intends doing about this, I do not know," Despaigne said. "I really think nothing can be done about it, as it's a case of not being able to meet the payments."

Indication that the government may seek to prove that money Machado should have devoted to the public works debt went astray was contained in Despaigne's assertion that "since 1926, when the issue was made, the government has collected $120,000,000 in special public works taxes, plus other taxes that were segregated and applied to the public works debt."

"This against a debt of $80,000,000," he said.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Dec. 27.—Joseph Stalin, general secretary of the Communist party, granted an hour's interview on Christmas day in his Kremlin office. He was asked to transmit a message to the American people. He replied:

"No. President Kalinin has already done that and I do not want to trespass on his prerogatives. Naturally, I am pleased by the resumption of relations, which is an act of paramount importance—politically, because it improves the chances of maintaining peace; economically, because it enables our two countries to get together and discuss questions between them without regard to extraneous considerations. Finally, it opens the way to mutual cooperation."

Stalin's Views on Trade.

Stalin was asked his opinion about American-Soviet trade. He replied:

"What Foreign Commissar Litvinov said in London still holds good. We are the greatest demand market and are ready to order—and pay for—large quantities of goods. But we require satisfactory conditions of credit, and, what is more, we must have the assurance that we can pay.

"It is impossible for us to import unless we can export, because we will not place orders unless we know we can pay for them when the time comes. Every one has been surprised that we are paying, that we do pay, and that we can pay. I know it is not customary to pay debts nowadays, but we do it. Other nations 'renig' on their debts, but the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics does not 'renig.' They thought we could not pay, that we had nothing to pay with, but we showed them and they had to admit it.

"The volume of our trade with America for the time being must be measured by the degree of confidence America puts in us—and this by the volume of credit."

Concerning the total of soviet foreign obligations at present, Stalin said:

"Not much more than 450 million rubles now. We have paid off a lot in the last two years. Two years ago it was 1,400,000,000 rubles, but we have paid it off, and we reckon we can wholly clean up the present obligations by the end of next year, or early in 1935, as they fall due.

Pays Tribute to Bullitt.

"I and my comrades liked Ambassador Bullitt very much. I had never met him before, but I had heard a great deal about him from Lenin, who liked him, too. What I like is that he does not talk like the average diplomat. He is straightforward and says what he means. He made a very good impression here."

Speaking of Japan, Stalin said:

"We should like to have friendly relations with the Japanese, but, unfortunately, that does not depend on us alone. If the more reasonable elements and more prudent counsels prevail in Japan our two countries can live in amity, but we fear that the militant faction may push saner policies into the background. There is real danger, and we are forced to prepare ourselves to meet it. It seems to me that Japan would be unwise to attack us. Her economic position is not too sound, and she has points of weakness—Corea, Manchuria, and China."

Lock Merchant in Closet and Loot His Entire Stock

Three armed robbers entered the women's apparel shop of Sam Zegar at 6717 Stony Island avenue early today. They found the proprietor alone. After taking $38 from his cash register the trio locked him in a closet while they looted the entire stock of the store. Zegar was released when a passerby heard his cries and went to his assistance.

HEAD OF GERMAN ARMY QUITS; NAZI TO BE GIVEN POST

Defense Ministry May Go to Brown Shirt Chief.

BERLIN, Dec. 27.—(AP)—The belief that the retirement today of Baron Curt von Hammerstein-Equord as chief of the German army would open the way for an important regrouping of Germany's defense forces was expressed tonight in well informed political circles.

The emergence of Capt. Ernst Roehm, commander of the Nazi storm troops and a leading aid of Chancellor Hitler, as minister of defense was envisaged as one likely sequel, together with the transfer of Gen. Werner von Blomberg, head of the defense ministry, back into active service as Von Hammerstein's successor.

Expects To Increase Army.

All indications were said to point to the fact that the Hitler régime fully expects to obtain the permission of the signatories to the Versailles treaty to Germany's request for increasing its standing army to 300,000 men.

[The French cabinet yesterday decided it would be "impossible" to accept a German army of 300,000 men.]

It is also the avowed purpose of Germany as soon as possible to return to universal military service, denied it under the post-war Versailles agreement.

Baron von Hammerstein-Equord chief of the army since Nov. 1, 1930, although he never was regarded as a particularly enthusiastic admirer of Chancellor Hitler, was promoted from the rank of general of infantry to colonel general as an expression of the nation's gratitude for his services.

Resignation Effective Feb. 1.

His resignation, which was accepted immediately today by President von Hindenburg, becomes effective Feb. 1, 1934. As far back as Jan. 31 his resignation was predicted.

Von Hammerstein is an intimate friend of Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, former chancellor. His trips away from the center of political activity in the capital following the Nazi accession to power aroused comment generally.

The assumption by Capt. Roehm of the defense ministry, political circles said, would mean that he could, with his intimate knowledge of the Nazi storm troops, choose the best and the most fit young men from the political brown army to fill up the ranks in the regular reichswehr.

Soldiers as Statesmen.

Then, these quarters added, he could simply add the brown army to the regular troops as soon as universal military training would again be permitted and could substitute systematic army drill for the present "defensive sport" system.

The storm troop organization was made quasi-governmental by the German cabinet on Dec. 1.

In explanation of the move, Capt. Roehm said that "if soldiers directed statesmanship, humanity would be spared great blows and anguish; there would be a greater sense of responsibility, the soldiers being conscious they would have to pay for their mistakes."

He listed as the purpose of the storm troops "to save Germany and the world from bolshevism" and to "imbue the nation with the ideas of national socialism." He said they form an army of unarmed political soldiers.

CHINESE TROOPS MASS FOR DRIVE AGAINST REBELS

Plan to Strike from Land, Air, Sea.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Army, navy, and air forces of the nationalist government at Nanking were reported ready tonight to strike hard at the Fukien province rebels.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, dictator of the Nanking administration, was said in Chinese dispatches to be at Hangchow, prepared to take over the command of the combined nationalist armed forces in an attempt to crush the first serious anti-Nanking rebellion since 1930.

One Hundred Die in Air Raid.

No further air raids have occurred near Foochow, the capital of Fukien, since Christmas day, when a climax in bombing operations was said to have resulted in the deaths of 100 persons. The population of Foochow, however, was tensely nervous in the belief that a lull today presaged the beginning of a major offensive.

Advices from the capital said the revolutionaries, who set up a "people's independent government" a few weeks ago in protest against what they called a "foreign influence" [Japanese] in the Nanking government, were not receiving the support they expected in Fukien and other provinces.

Their only allies are communists from Kiangsi province, who have appeared in large numbers in the rebel armies in North Fukien.

Business at Standstill.

This development was considered in some circles here as forestalling a chance of an early liquidation of the revolt.

Business in Foochow, meanwhile, was at a standstill. Residents, apprehensive of what the future may bring, hid their money and lived on a hand to mouth basis. Debt collections became increasingly difficult.

HITLERITE PAPER LASHES AUSTRIAN XMAS PASTORAL

MUNICH, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, today sharply criticized the Christmas pastoral letter of Austrian bishops in which Austrians were warned to reject the "racial mania" and "religious errors" of Hitlerism.

The letter was called by the newspaper "another provocation by the system of Chancellor Dollfuss, especially amazing since it plainly contravenes the spirit of the German concordat with the Vatican."

It was added that the bishop's action "shows again the necessity for relegating the activities of the clergy to the proper sphere."

Germany Effects Ban on Travel to France

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 27.—In retaliation for the recent rupture of Franco-German negotiations for a trade pact, Germany today cut down the monthly allowance to its nationals desiring to visit France from $270 to $77. Germans may now draw only $77 of their own money when visiting France, which is tantamount to prohibition of tourist excursions.

PARIS PROPOSES NATIONS CUT AIR BOMBERS BY HALF

Offers to Abolish 175 of Her Own Craft.

PARIS, Dec. 27.—(AP)—France is willing to destroy half its bombing planes immediately, if other nations do likewise, as a sign of its will to international peace. This was learned on high authority tonight. A proposal along this line is to be made at Geneva.

[Available figures show that reduction by half of France's present strength of bombing planes would leave about 16 squadrons of bombers, or approximately 175 craft, in active service.]

It was learned that France also will propose signing a general disarmament agreement along the lines formulated at Paris last September during Franco-British arms conversations.

France Wants Penalties.

France's proposals last fall incorporated new suggestions into the project set before the disarmament conference last March by Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain. France advocated setting up penalties against any nation guilty of a breach of any disarmament agreement which might be reached later.

France rejected Chancellor Hitler's recent demands for German rearmament and Premier Mussolini's plan for league of nations reforms today as Minister of War Edouard Daladier worked out frontier defense problems with Paul Hymans, the Belgian foreign minister.

Belgium Joins United Front.

Hymans brought Belgium's adherence to a united front of the little entente and other small European powers which France has been marshaling in a series of conversations with statesmen. He assured Premier Chautemps and Foreign Minister Joseph Paul Boncour that Belgium sees eye to eye with France regarding "the danger of Germany's growing military forces and the necessity of maintaining the democratic setup of the league.

The French cabinet, in a four hour session, approved the text of an aide memoire which probably will be sent to Andre Francois-Poncet, the French ambassador to Berlin, tomorrow and which says that France refuses to discuss "rearmament" but is willing to talk "disarmament" at Geneva.

The French will present definite disarmament proposals at Geneva, said Premier Chautemps, "in order to demonstrate the sincerity of her desire for peace."

French Policy Outlined.

The premier outlined the French policy as an intention to "seek the organization of general security through the reduction of armaments and within the framework of the league."

The cabinet agreed on a French policy in connection with the Hitler proposals as follows:

1. It will be impossible to accept a German army of 300,000 and a huge Nazi uniformed force.
2. It will be impossible to accept a Franco-German ten year pact of nonaggression, which, it was felt, would destroy in effect the Locarno treaty.
3. It will be impossible to discuss armaments outside the league.

HOLLAND ASKS NAZI MERCY FOR DUTCH FIREBUG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 27.—The German ministry of foreign affairs today received a letter from the Dutch minister, Count Limburg-Stirum, asking a milder sentence for Marinus van de Lubbe, the Dutch youth who was recently sentenced to death for the burning of the reichstag.

The Dutch protest pointed out that according to international law no country should sentence a foreigner on the strength of laws enacted after the crime was committed. Arson was made punishable by death after the reichstag was burned.

As if an order of silence had been issued by the government, the entire German press has dropped discussion of what the Nazi official news service had termed the "miscarriage of justice at Leipzig" because the judges failed to convict the other four defendants in the trial. The fate of the four is still uncertain. They are still in Nazi custody.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP)—The speed of light is placed at 299,774 kilometers, or 186,271 miles, a second, in a new estimate made here today.

Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of the Carnegie institution's Mount Wilson observatory, said, in announcing the new figure, that it was not absolute, but that the final computation, which will be completed in about six months, would not vary more than two kilometers from it.

The new value is 13 miles per second slower than that reached by the late Dr. Albert A. Michelson, who placed light's speed at 186,284 miles per second in 1927 after he had flashed light beams with mirrors from Mount Wilson to another nearby peak.

Michelson's Work Carried On.

Dr. Michelson was not satisfied that he had made the most accurate measure possible and had a mile long vacuum tube built on the Irvine ranch near Santa Ana. He died as experiments made by flashing light with a revolving mirror back and forth through the tube were begun.

Dr. F. G. Pease of the Mount Wilson observatory and Fred Pearson, University of Chicago, carried on the work and completed their observations last Feb. 27. Since that time they have been obtaining an average of the many observations made.

"While there were fluctuations which might indicate variations in the speed of light," said Dr. Adams, "we are inclined to the belief that these fluctuations were due to conditions which affected the instruments."

Dr. Pease Finds Fluctuations.

"The entire series of measures," Dr. Pease and Mr. Pearson said in their report, "shows fluctuations which suggest a double variation, including a short period of 14¾ days and a long period of one year, with amplitudes in both cases of about 20 kilometers per second.

"The short period fluctuation flattened out in December, 1932, and the first half of January, 1933, but seemed to reappear in February.

"The curve of variation resembled in many respects that of the tide raising force, although there is no known way in which variations in this force can produce changes in the measured velocity of the magnitude observed.

"A definite correlation of measured velocity with tide raising force would imply a diurnal variation in addition to the other periodic changes."

The speed of light has been regarded by scientists as one thing which never changes and proof that its speed fluctuates would strike at the theory of relativity.

FRANCE, BELGIUM SEEK A COMMON DEFENSE SYSTEM

PARIS, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Common defensive measures for France and Belgium to guard against a repetition of the German attack in 1914 were worked out today at a conference between Edouard Daladier, French minister of war, and Paul Hymans, Belgian foreign minister.

Belgium seeks to develop its own defensive system in coöperation with the French although remaining independent of that country.

Hymans asked for information on France's plans to fortify the eastern frontier, as announced by Daladier on Dec. 19. Under this program, the "iron ring" of fortifications would be extended along the German frontier far enough to include Belgium's front.

For three years workers have been building a defense chain in eastern France, based on a trench and casemate system. French officials have expressed concern over the strength of the Belgium defenses.

3,000 Jews Barred from German Legal Association

HAMBURG, Germany, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Three thousand Jews were shut out of Germany's organized legal life today by dissolution, under Nazi auspices of the country's largest legal organization, the Deutsche Anwaltverein, or attorneys' association. It was announced at the annual convention that all memberships with the exception of those held by Jews will be transferred to the National Socialist Legal association.

BODY CREATES DEADLY POISONS, BUT NEEDS THEM

Every Person Makes Own Stores.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Every living man is a walking storehouse of poison, and every cell in every living creature, even the healthiest, carries deadly danger for some other cell, Dr. John Jacob Abel told the American Association for the Advancement of Science today.

He announced evidence, too, supporting a new theory about lockjaw, or tetanus poisoning that results from infected wounds, showing that the arteries carry the lockjaw poison to the brain, where it causes death.

Dr. Abel, Johns Hopkins professor, who developed pure insulin that has saved the lives of thousands of diabetics, spoke on "Poisons and Disease" as retiring president of the association.

Chemist's Delight.

"I incline to the belief," he stated, "that no living cell exists whose contents or metabolites [products of its life process] are not toxic to some other living cell; in other words all cells are in reality cryptotoxic systems [containers of potential poison].

"Every living cell contains material that, under the right circumstances, may even be injurious to itself," he added, "and there is much truth in the old saying that 'the healthy are really invalids unaware of their illness.'

"We ourselves are walking drug shops," he said, "and an experienced chemist or pharmacist would have no difficulty in preparing arrow poisons from some of our own organs that would have delighted the heart of primitive man."

Many of the "poisons," however, are beneficial and even indispensable to life in the quantities produced by the body, Dr. Abel explained.

Too little insulin, for example, causes diabetes, but a man starved for two days to reduce blood sugar could probably be killed by 20 to 30 milligrams of insulin. The body normally needs eight milligrams a day. The hormones, essential to many life processes, and the vitamins, usually thought of as beneficial to health, also may cause serious "poisoning" or disease when in too large quantities.

Dr. Abel said physicians are beginning to believe that all germ infections really are nothing but cases of poisoning resulting from poisons or toxins produced in the body by bacteria.

A Human Clock.

"It has been demonstrated," he averred, "that in some of the infectious diseases of this class, such as tetanus, diphtheria and botulism [spoiled food poisoning], the bacillus in each instance serves only to produce a toxin which is responsible for the chain of events."

Prof. Hudson Hoagland of Clark university told the convention every man's body contains a chemical clock.

Prof. Hoagland found that persons with fevers always counted seconds faster than when their body temperatures were normal. The same thing happened when, without any illness, they were given artificial fevers with short radio waves. In each case they were asked to try to count sixty seconds without looking at a clock. Every time they outran the clock.

They also outran persons doing similar counting whose temperatures were normal.

German Paper, 296 Years Old, to Cease Publication

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 27.—The newspaper Koenigsberger Hartungsche Zeitung, which was scheduled to celebrate its tercentenary in a few years—it was founded in 1640—will cease publication on Dec. 31. It called itself a liberal organ, but was always a strongly nationalist paper, as are most of east Prussia's outstanding newspapers.

COLDS ARE NOW REACHING OUT FOR VICTIMS!

Be Wise—Be Careful—Adopt This Simple Precautionary Measure!

Colds are increasing. In some sections Influenza is breaking out. Don't be alarmed, but don't be careless.

A cold is much easier avoided than cured! Do the sensible thing and adopt the ounce of prevention policy. Stay out of crowds as much as you can. Avoid coughers and sneezers. Dress warmly, keep your feet dry and sleep in a well ventilated room.

Every morning and night take a tablet or two of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. This will keep the bowels open and combat infection by cold germs.

Millions know Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as an excellent cold remedy but not enough know it as an equally excellent preventive. Learn its efficacy and keep a package handy all winter long as your "safety first" measure.

If you have already caught cold there is nothing better you can take than Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It doesn't merely suppress the cold—it drives it completely out of the system. At the same time, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

For more than forty years, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Now in two sizes—30c and 50c. 1/5 of your year's fuel bill comes in January

If you are resolved to cut expenses in '34 switch back to coal or coke now . . . .

Worried about bills? Is your monthly heating cost too high? You haven't seen anything yet.

Records prove that January is the coldest month. More fuel is consumed in its thirty-one days than in any other month. In fact, if 1934 is an average year, one-fifth of the entire season's heating cost will come in January.

One of the good New Year's resolutions you will probably make is to cut expenses. If you are going to save on your fuel bills, you will have to act quickly—now.

Before January arrives, switch back to coal or coke heat. It is safest. It is most dependable. It is quietest. And it costs less, much less, than substitutes.

You need not give up self-firing and regulating convenience. Equipment for burning coal or coke automatically costs no more than burners for expensive fuels.

MAYOR APPOINTS CURTIS HEAD OF MERGED BUREAUS

Will Direct Streets and Electricity.

Mayor Kelly yesterday appointed Benjamin J. Curtis, former engineer with the sanitary district, to the newly created post of city commissioner of streets and electricity.

The appointment was made after the city council had passed an ordinance sponsored by the mayor consolidating the bureau of streets, formerly in the department of public works, and the department of gas and electricity in a new department of streets and electricity. The consolidation ordinance was passed with but one dissenting vote, that of Ald. Arthur G. Lindel [9th], who said he did not believe the activities of the consolidated departments were related.

To Get $8,400 a Year.

Commissioner Curtis will get $8,400 a year. Under him he will have two deputy commissioners, one of whom will be William A. Jackson, present commissioner of gas and electricity, at his old salary of $8,000 a year, and the other Joseph J. Butler, present superintendent of streets, at $7,500 a year. The appointments take effect Jan. 1.

Mr. Curtis is 43 years old, married and the father of one daughter, and lives at 1749 West 96th street. He was graduated from the University of Minnesota in civil engineering, and from 1914 until last year, with the exception of five years, was employed by the sanitary district. He served one year as the "eyes" of George M. Wisner, former chief engineer of the sanitary district, who was blind in the latter years of his life, and was with a contracting concern for four years.

Mayor Kelly took Mr. Curtis to the city hall with him following his election last spring. Mr. Curtis was first assigned to assist the taxicab commission and more recently has been the right hand man of Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt in arranging CWA projects.

Laramie Avenue Extended.

The council yesterday dedicated an 80 foot strip of land for the extension of Laramie avenue from Roosevelt road to 5th avenue. The new street, which will be paved by CWA labor, passes through a large tract of unused school board property. Ald. John S. Clark [30th] and Roger J. Kiley [37th] were successful in having the street opened after a twenty year fight by residents of their wards who objected to the half mile detour now necessary.

At the request of Ald. John Toman [23d] the committee on judiciary was instructed to prepare an ordinance requiring that all purchases of second hand automobiles and accessories be reported to the police, as a safeguard against sale of stolen automobiles and parts. Ald. Toman also suggested that police try the doors of parked automobiles, and if they find them unlocked leave tags warning the owners.

An ordinance sponsored by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th] reducing the annual fee for junk dealers from $200 to $50, was passed.

DIVORCEE TELLS HOW DESPERADO SLEW POLICEMAN

CRIMINAL COURT.

John Lichran and Steve Kubsoch, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary; Edward Kwiatkowski, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Wilbert Verbillion, rape, sentenced to 1 year in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Sam G. Hurst, confidence game, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Walter P. Steffen.

Mrs. Elaine Dent, 35 year old divorcée, told a coroner's jury yesterday the story of the slaying of Sergt. William Shanley on Dec. 14. The policeman was shot to death in the Tower Auto Rebuilders' garage at 5320 Broadway by John Hamilton, one of ten convicts who escaped from the Michigan City [Ind.] penitentiary on Sept. 27. Mrs. Dent identified a picture of Hamilton as the slayer and said she knew him as Jim Burton.

"He told me he was the son of a millionaire," she said, telling of her friendship with Hamilton. "The day of the shooting we had taken my automobile to the garage to have it repaired. When we went back to get it the policeman in plain clothes asked me for proof of my ownership. I showed him, and then he asked Hamilton who he was. Hamilton and the policeman started walking to the rear of the garage, and suddenly I heard a shot and Hamilton came running and dragged me to the door."

Sergt. Frank Hopkins, member of Shanley's squad, testified at the inquest that Shanley went into the garage to investigate an automobile believed to have belonged to some of the Dillinger gang — John Dillinger being the leader of the Indiana desperadoes. Hopkins said he was outside the garage when the shooting occurred and that he seized Mrs. Dent but was unable to stop Hamilton.

COURT DIRECTS CITY TO RESTORE 47 LICENSE JOBS

Judge James J. Kelly issued a writ of mandamus yesterday in the Superior court, directing the city to restore jobs to 44 investigators and 3 supervisors in the city license bureau. Their positions were abolished in the 1933 city budget, and the work is now being performed by the police department. Fifty police clerks were assigned, at lower salaries than those paid the investigators, to clerical work in the bureau.

Judge Kelly held that the appropriation for police clerks in place of investigators was a circumvention of the civil service law, and illegal. Attorney Michael Ryan, representing the investigators, charged that the new license collection system is inefficient, and that during the present year the city suffered a loss of $800,000 in vehicle and cigaret licenses alone.

ROBS GIRL CASHIER IN LOOP.

A gunman held up Miss Jenny Cashin, cashier of the Harmony cafeteria at 214 South State street, yesterday as she was leaving the cafeteria to go to a bank and robbed her of $518.

2 GUNMEN LOOT BANK AND KIDNAP THREE EMPLOYES

Marlin, Tex., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Three employes of the First State Bank of Marlin, kidnaped by two gunmen who looted the bank of $41,000 in a holdup today, made their way to a farm home near Rogers, Tex., tonight after being left tied in a pasture.

Officers dashed out to pick up the trail upon a telephoned summons by M. V. Bradshaw, 50, abducted vice president of the bank, from the residence of Sam Dollahite.

With Bradshaw was Miss Andrew Peyton, 28, bookkeeper, and Lee Humphries, Negro porter, who were kidnaped at the bank, and two youths, the sons of a farmer, named S. J. Davis, whom the bandits took prisoner when they wandered into the pasture hunting 'possums.

Bradshaw said the robbers trapped him as he entered the bank at 7:20 a. m. and seized the porter and Miss Peyton as they entered later. They held all three in the bank until the time lock permitted opening of the vault.

PUBLIC SERVICE CO. WITNESSES TELL OF GROWTH

Describe Its Efficiency at I. C. C. Hearing.

Since its organization in 1911 the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois has become one of the most modern and efficient electrical systems in the world, according to testimony introduced yesterday by the company at a hearing before the Illinois commerce commission. During the life of the company the average net price for electricity for residential customers in its territory has been cut from 12 cents a kilowatt hour to 6.43 cents a kilowatt hour, the present figure, the witnesses said.

The company is presenting figures to the commerce commission in answer to a citation to show cause why its rates should not be reduced. H. H. Fields, consulting and research engineer, and Earl C. Williams, electrical engineer with the company for twenty years, were its witnesses yesterday.

Serves 321 Communities.

The company serves a territory of 6,000 square miles having 321 communities and a population of 1,055,354, the witness said. All but 20,000 of those residents have electric lights.

The Public Service company represents a merger of more than fifty companies, including 16 municipal plants. Its first acquisition was the Algonquin Milling company, which had a dam and two water wheels and furnished electricity to 85 customers. Now the company's wires stretch through 208 incorporated cities and villages, 113 hamlets, and supply 9,289 farms.

Of the cities served 45 were brought into the system by purchase of other companies and condemnations, and 63 cities received their power as a result of extensions by the Public Service company.

Tell of Organization.

The witnesses told of the expense of organizing and maintaining the system as well as extending it. J. L. Hecht, vice president of the Public Service company, followed Fields and Williams on the stand. He will resume his testimony this morning. C. C. Bennett, an assistant vice president, is to tell why the rates are uniform to all customers in the 6,000 square miles. The hearings are to continue all week.

CHICAGO AIRPORT AGAIN LEADS AS WORLD'S BUSIEST

The Chicago airport maintained its lead as the world's busiest air passenger terminal, Walter Wright, superintendent of playgrounds, recreation, and aviation, yesterday stated in his annual report to Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt and Mayor Kelly.

During the present year 135,000 passengers have passed through the airport, as compared with 98,224 in 1932. Air express handled was nearly tripled from 53,063 pounds in 1932 to 150,000 pounds this year, but air mail consignments dropped from 1,647,000 to 1,500,000 pounds. There were 32,000 plane landings and the same number of takeoffs, an increase over 1932.

IDENTIFY 2 GIRL AMNESIA VICTIMS; COLD IS BLAMED

Two young women victims of amnesia were identified yesterday in hospitals in different sections of the city. The first, a 19 year old girl found wandering in the sub-zero cold at 59th street and Western avenue on Tuesday night, was identified at Holy Cross hospital as Ruth Uebelein of 5942 South Troy street by a friend, Victoria Maros, 19 years old, 6059 South Troy street.

Physicians at the hospital said that severe cold can cause amnesia.

M'ADOO'S DAUGHTER BETTER; SENATOR AT ATLANTA ON AIR DASH

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Hastening toward New York City because of the serious illness there of his daughter, Senator William G. McAdoo of California arrived here late today in his plane.

The senator received word upon his arrival here that the condition of his daughter, Mrs. Edward S. Cowles, had improved, although she was still seriously ill of pneumonia.

He said he would continue his trip tomorrow morning and stop in Washington. Whether he proceeds to New York from there, the senator said, would depend on what news he receives upon his arrival in the capital.

Mr. McAdoo flew here today from Abilene, Texas, where he spent last night.

OPEN CAMPAIGN AGAINST TRUCKS IN SHERIDAN RD.

The North Shore Property Owners' association yesterday opened a campaign to organize home owners in that district to protest against the proposal of the Willett company, truck operators, to operate trucks over Sheridan road and other boulevards in the north shore suburbs.

The truck company's petition is now pending before the Illinois commerce commission. L. W. Beman, secretary of the association, stated yesterday that the company is partly owned by the Pennsylvania railroad, and that the trucking activities over the north shore boulevards are to be in connection with the railroad's "door-to-door" freight service.

"The Illinois commerce commission is about to donate forever the right to haul a constant stream of through freight, not intended for your town, over your streets," stated Mr. Beman in his appeal to north shore residents. "Day and night these huge 20 ton trucks will roar through and hammer down the pavements."

He urged that property owners write to the commerce commission and protest against granting the Willett company a permit to operate the trucks.

BAULER NAMED IN INDICTMENT; TO SPEED TRIAL

Ald. Mathias [Paddy] Bauler of the 43d ward was named in an indictment returned yesterday charging him with assault with intent to kill Policeman John J. Ahern. The indictment was returned before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court, who set his bond at $5,000.

The chief justice announced that the case would be assigned to a trial judge in a few days. Representatives of the state said they would ask for trial early in January.

The charge grew out of a shooting brawl in front of Bauler's tavern at 343 West North avenue a week ago. The alderman and Ahern both fired shots after an argument. Ahern was shot and Deputy Sheriff Frank Wright was seriously wounded by a wild bullet.

LINK MURDER OF GIRL TO 4 OTHER MYSTERY DEATHS

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Trailing the murderer of Sarah Weiss, 15, whose trussed up body was found on the lower east side Sunday morning, police today picked up a strand pointing to a murder mystery still more fantastic.

Their information, if correct, indicates that four elderly persons recently listed as suicides were in fact murdered.

The killer, police are informed, first chloroformed and then robbed his victims, finally knotting rope about their throats and hanging the bodies from convenient transoms.

KILLED IN AUTO CRASH.

PLAN OPERATION ON BABY FLOWN FOR 1,400 MILES

Air Dash from Texas to Baltimore Hospital.

Baltimore, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Doctors tonight carefully "built up" little Sue Trammell 5 months old, who ended a 1,400 mile airplane dash from Houston, Tex., to Johns Hopkins hospital here early this morning. They prepared for a delicate brain operation on which the child's life may depend.

Dr. Walter E. Dandy, noted surgeon whose brain operations have brought him national publicity, expects to perform the operation Friday.

In the meantime the surgeon and his assistants did much to quiet the baby's frantic mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Trammell of Houston, who already have lost one baby from hydrocephalus, of water on the brain from which Sue is now suffering.

The doctor's regular, deliberate procedure contrasted strangely with the long flight through the windswept winter night sky, the dramatic 2 a. m. landing on the snow covered airport field, and the run to the hospital with a police escort preceding an ambulance.

The 11 hour air trip, with Speed Pilot James R. Wedell at the controls, was made by the baby, her parents, her maternal grandmother, Mrs. W. W. Fondren; her uncle, W. W. Fondren Jr., and Miss Anne Swinson, her nurse.

Immediately upon arrival at the hospital Dr. Paul A. Kunkel, resident in neuro-surgery, made a preliminary examination and assured the family that the baby was in no immediate danger, that there was no rush.

'PARIS' TO HAVE NO PEEP SHOWS AT FAIR IN 1934

The Streets of Paris concession at A Century of Progress has been sold to a corporation known as the 1934 Streets of Paris, Inc., it was announced yesterday. State Senator Arthur Huebsch, who heads the new corporation, announced there would be "no peep shows and no fan dancers in the 1934 Paris." Restaurants serving wines and French food, true Parisian shops, and a reproduction of the Lido, French watering place, will feature the concession, the senator said. He announced $100,000 would be spent in architectural changes.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Saves Big Dollars! No Cooking!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a purer, more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs only one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up obstinate coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly, and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, clearing the air passages, and soothing away the inflammation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

WOMEN FLYERS OVERCOME TWO SERIOUS PERILS

Miami, Fla., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Shaking off two hazards that endangered their flight in the final stages, Helen Richey and Frances Marsalis tonight were within less than one full day of their goal—a new woman's refueling endurance record.

Heavy fog and a damaged wing failed to dishearten the weary fliers who plan to remain aloft indefinitely beyond 5:08 p. m. tomorrow when, if everything goes well, they will have equaled the present mark of eight days, four hours and five minutes.

In order, however, officially to break the existing record, established last year by Mrs. Marsalis and Louise Thaden, the women must remain aloft one hour longer.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

LIQUOR CONTROL.

Every state which is permitting the sale of alcoholic beverages following repeal is having some difficulty in finding the most desirable means of regulation. Methods differ and so do opinions. There will probably be a period of test and experience, and some mistakes will be made.

The dilemma is to permit the most reasonable and civilized use of these beverages without bringing in the wake of such use the most injurious habits. It is generally agreed that beverages at meals, good wines with good food, offer the most civilized habit of taking stimulants. The teetotaler, of course, objects to the whole proceeding, but his precept and practice, good for himself, do not have general acceptance. Repeal was the American admission that the teetotaler is not the norm and that there is little chance of making him it. The inebriate, on the other hand, is not the norm, and the great mass of users are for the most part temperate. There is every reason why they should be because abuse so promptly inflicts its penalties that the very reason for taking the stimulant is defeated. Instead of there being an enhancement of feelings of physical well being, of geniality and pleasurable sensations, there is a terrific physical punishment and moral depression which most people are wise enough to avoid.

Regulation, when properly conceived, would like to protect the weakling who injures not only himself but other people and at the same time give the temperate person the privilege of using alcohol when he wants it, in the manner most pleasurable to him. In permitting the service of alcoholic beverages with meals, in public, regulation is confronted with the difficulty of describing premises on which it is to be generally agreed the habit is in its least offensive form.

Experience in American cities has revealed how hard it is to grant the privilege to one place and deny it to another. As soon as restrictions go beyond certain limits, illegal usages immediately follow. The desirable thing, of course, is regulation so reasonable that it offers no provocation for violations and, being reasonable, has the support of the community and can demand honest dealing from both officials charged with enforcement and from the trade which supplies the commodity.

It is no doubt true that a community gets just about what it deserves in this, as in other law enforcement. If the law is unreasonable, the enforcement will be bad. If the politics of the community is rotten and is tolerated, consent has been given for what follows. That responsibility should be thrown upon the community is sound theory. For this reason there has been a feeling that attempts to escape local control and accountability would lead to devices ineffective or disturbing in the end, because the purpose has been to get a bit of magic which would relieve people of what is properly their concern. It may be very much doubted that any state can create a satisfactory liquor control authority which is not derived directly from the will and purposes of the people themselves.

Mayor Kelly has already revoked the licenses of some retailers whose places and practices were held objectionable. It is unlikely that the most nearly perfect method of regulation can be discovered immediately. The mayor says that his mind is open and there can be no criticism of such an attitude. It is quite probable that the safest and most satisfactory solution will be found in methods which hold the people themselves in each community responsible for the procedure permitted. They should have wide latitude of choice and they should make their officials carry out their will. There is no phase of political action in which this duty is not imperative. It is the obligation of a self-governing people, and they can never shirk it and come to any good end.

TRANSPORT PROGRESS.

The present experiment in the field of transportation coördination is going to prove disappointing if the trends continue along indicated lines. Various waterway-railway regional committees are working toward freight rate harmony, and a very insistent group contends that trucks should observe railway rates as minima. Our neighboring state of Indiana has already so provided by law.

To the confirmed regulationists, which group includes the reactionary railway leaders, the problem is simple. That body of supermen, the interstate commerce commission, has only to produce some "percentage relationships" that will properly represent the economy of water transportation or the advantage of truck carriage as compared with railway service, and coördination has been accomplished. The rail rate will be adopted as standard; 80 per cent automatically becomes the water rate and 110 per cent the highway rate. The shipper will have his choice and should be satisfied because he is supposed to be more interested in relationships and accurate knowledge of what his competitor must pay than in the volume of his own rate.

Superficially all seem to agree on one point—that the dear public is entitled to the lowest transportation cost that can be produced—but it is actually entitled to more than that. A policy should be adopted that will act as a forced draft to stimulate engineering miracles that will cut freight rates in half—not freeze them at their present levels.

Few people realize to what extent regulation has devitalized rail transportation until an opportunity is offered to contrast a railway team track with a busy truck transfer or steamship dock. Irrespective of the hour of arrival of the boat, the dock immediately becomes a beehive of industry. Neither labor nor machinery is spared to throw out a maximum cargo in record time, because dispatch and volume are reflected in the transportation charge.

No necessity is felt for speed at a railway terminal. Forty-eight hours are provided by tariff to unload thirty tons. In reloading the cars, why bother to fill to the roof? If inconvenient to load the consignment in two cars, use three. A comfortable tariff carload minimum weight makes car economy unnecessary. Coöperation, heavy less than carload shipments, full cars, trainloads, all pay dividends to the railways, but there is no shipper incentive to produce them. Efficiency and creative genius are discouraged.

If the purpose of coördination is to provide by law that each form of transportation shall comfortably dry rot in an ordained sphere, we don't want it. Efficient as they may seem to us, our vehicles will be ox carts and scows to coming generations.

HERRIOT KEEPS THE FAITH.

Edouard Herriot, former premier of France, renews his advice to the chamber of deputies to return to an acknowledgment of the national debt to the United States and drop the policy of default which has prevailed since the Herriot cabinet was overthrown for insisting upon the validity of contract and the responsibility of the debtor. The former prime minister won no attention, but was not astonished. He said he knew his opinions were unpopular, but nevertheless were sound.

Herriot risked his office for principle and lost it, but kept his honor. So far as an individual statesman could do it, he has preserved something for France. He sees a danger to his own country in a repudiation of obligations. There has been a danger for the entire world in the precedent so defiantly set by the chamber of deputies. The denouncing of an obligation contracted in considerate and generous terms, stated in a treaty and dependent on good faith was an example the world could ill afford to receive at the time it did.

As an example it has spread. Where it has been imitated, and that is in many lands, it has destroyed not only property but confidence. It has breached the walls of credit. It has taken from men the faith upon which human affairs must rest. It has discredited word and bond. It has taken goods from the man who earned and owned them and has given them to possessors who have no title to them.

France started this and others have followed. The morals of the world have changed and they could not change in this fashion without deplorable consequences. There is no limit to the degeneration of a society in which deliberate breach of contract assumes moral justifications. When governments set the example of perfidy injurious to the person who trusted to the protections of faith, law, and honor, a decay has set in with a future unpredictable only in that its worst results cannot be wholly apprehended.

The defaulting debtor governments corrupted the American creditor government. The latter took an example from the former. It now passes on to its citizens the losses resulting from its policy of taking a profit by denouncing its obligations. It borrowed in good faith and pays in poor coin. The citizen who regards a mortgage or a note as evidence of a discreditable proceeding from which he got the money or the goods, of which the original possessor was unrightfully possessed and of which he is rightfully deprived, can look to governments for justification for his idea and validation of his act.

If Herriot could shock the world back into honest regard for just obligation he might have started into action the forces of its salvation. That salvation will not be found in the permanence of bad faith as a human institution.

NORTH DAKOTA PLAN.

[Des Moines Tribune.]

In several respects the North Dakota plan for "economic self-sufficiency" that has been put up to public works officials in Washington is an outstanding project even amid a multitude of outstanding projects.

In the first place, it indicates that North Dakota, if no other state, is getting rapidly back to normalcy. When A. C. Townley marches to Washington with a scheme of state-owned elevators, mills, factories, and what not to convert the state's raw materials into finished materials on the spot, it is nothing short of good old Nonpartisan league days back again.

In the second place, provided past experience in North Dakota with state owned plants for handling grain and other crops provides any gauge, it is fair to assume that if the public works administration is looking for a real rat hole, here is one big enough to take care of all the funds it has left plus all that congress can appropriate for the next ten years.

And, finally, this refurbished and modestly expanded Townley scheme offers the whole nation a chance to look at the self-efficiency idea in a more understandable perspective.

Already the Townley scheme has been identified as of that character. All it needs is to be carried a bit farther, so as to be really and truly logical, centering all the manufacturing and distributive processes affecting North Dakota's products within her own borders, putting up barriers to competitive products from outside, and establishing ownership and management of the new industries in the state itself.

Then we shall have real self-sufficiency ready to do its stuff, with a touch of state socialism neatly thrown in.

Those of us who are so helibent on self-sufficiency for the United States as a whole ought not to have any objections to one of our states trying out its blessings individually. If the principle will make the United States richer, and give us more true wealth to distribute among our population so as to raise their standard of living, it ought to work in some degree for North Dakota, too.

And letting North Dakota try it alone would be so much less painful for the rest of us if it shouldn't work quite so well as its proponents promise.

Of course, the state ownership phase has no necessary relation to the self-sufficiency business, and in a way is inconsistent.

Our Russian friends, whom we now say "hello" to when we meet them at the crossroads, are strong as horse-radish for state ownership, but when it comes to self-sufficiency—well, their idea of the way to raise the standard of living of their 160 millions is to sell as much abroad as anybody will take and to buy as much abroad as anybody will provide the credit for.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THIS SIX HOUR DAY THING and two days off a week is getting pretty general and it ought to be a fine thing. Of course, we're not going to appreciate it until the baseball season opens. But it ought to be extended. Those people who tell you what's wrong with the government's financial plans and how the country can be saved in fifteen minutes if their plans are adopted ought to be limited to the six hour day and the five day week, too. Listening to them five days a week wouldn't be so bad if we knew they'd have to lay off us and shut up for two days.

AND THE BANDITS should be brought under the six hour day and the five day week code. Two whole days a week when we could walk around without being prodded in the tummy with a gun or held up in the office and made to lie down on the floor or having to get up from a nice dinner in a restaurant and made to line up against the wall while the steak and the coffee got cold would be great.

AND EVERY TIME we passed a bandit on the street we could walk right up to him and snap our fingers under his nose and wave a couple of dollar bills and say tauntingly: "Oh, lookit, bandit. See all the money I've got, but you have to lay off me for two working days every week and this is one of 'em! Go play dominoes or seven-up or comb your hair, you poor simp."

YESSIR, we've certainly got to see to it that the bandits are only allowed to work five days a week just like the rest of us white collar boys.

TO AN IRISH SETTER PUP.

Shamus is an Irish dog
Who's kissed the Blarney Stone.
He's never free from blandishment
E'en while he gnaws a bone.
He has a way of looking up
With head cocked all awry,
And a look of Irish devilment
A-gleaming from his eye
That flatters most profusely,
As he doubtless is aware.
But all his postures charm us:
Both his joy and his despair.
Shamus is the judge and jury
Whenever Shamus sins,
For though the Devil goad him,
When his better nature wins
He crawls behind the radio
And hangs his head in shame
And awaits what retribution
The evidence may claim.
Shamus has a welcome song,
Also a welcome dance:
He performs for all newcomers
With a cavalierly prance.
When Shamus goes to market
He accosts the dogs we see
With the utmost of politeness
And no regard for pedigree.
But aristocratic nonchalance
Has no equal yet, I doubt,
To Shamus sitting pigeon-toed
With one ear wrong-side-out.

CAMPASPE.

AND ANOTHER great trouble with the coming in of the new year is that we'll have to read the statements. Gosh! don't we know well enough what's happened in 1933 without having it rubbed in?

AND ALSO they'll pull that old one all over the place when it starts: "Another year with all its hopes, with all its promises, with all its opportunities opens before us." Yeah, and with all its income taxes, brother, with all those income taxes!

WE USED TO HAVE watch night meetings on New Year's eve to watch the old year go out and the new year come in. But the last few years have all been so full of things we didn't especially care about that we no longer get excited about the arrival of another year. They comes and they goes, as the boarding house keepers used to say. Another year! Ho hum!

"COLORADO Passes Law to Use Gas for Executing Condemned Criminals."—Headline. That was a grand slogan Sam Insull invented, "You Can Do It Easier with Gas," but, gosh! nobody ever thought that Colorado would take it so seriously.

THE GOOD OLD NAME of "Herbert" was taken out of the giggle class and given dignity when Herbert Hoover became President of these United States, and "Elmer" is no longer to be regarded as pure comedy since Elmer Layden has been made coach at Notre Dame. Now we are breathlessly waiting for somebody named Clarence to win the heavyweight fighting championship of the world. Come on, Clarence, get busy!

FAT DAY.

I have had a fat day, full of laughter.
I will remember it and hereafter,
When there are lean days I will say,
"All right for you, Old Scowly Day,
I will forget you quicker than quick
But never the jolly day that showed me the trick

IT'S A GREAT SHOW, "Alice in Wonderland," that Eva Le Gallienne has brought to Chicago. But when I saw it the other night it struck me as odd that the scenery was all of the English countryside. I've got so in the habit of visioning the background of "Alice in Wonderland" as Washington, D. C.

FOOD EPIDEMICS.

As compared with yesteryear, food is safe and man has little reason to fear danger from it. There are few fatalities now from infections which take place through the abdominal organs. When foods were dangerous the sickly season was summer. Now the warm months of the year are healthier than any other. The exposures of the cold of winter registering on the breathing apparatus, and to the weather changes of spring and autumn, causing rheumatism and a variety of disorders, have made the warm season healthy by comparison.

Milk is pasteurized, chilled, and kept clean, and babies do not suffer from diarrhea as they once did. The cows are tuberculin tested and tuberculosis from milk is rare. Botulism has almost disappeared. Canning is better done. Refrigeration has rendered great service. There are fewer flies and the standards of cleanliness have risen.

Decrease of the menace of typhoid and diarrheas has served to bring to light some dangers which were overlooked in the old days. In some fields the increase of danger is more real as well as more apparent. There is greater danger of poisoning from insecticides because these chemicals are used more than formerly. We hear more than we did of food poisoning, probably because the picture is not obscured by typhoid fever and diarrheas due to other causes. Whether the situation is apparent or real, food producers need to exercise more cleanliness and care than they now do, great as the past improvement has been.

Some health departments show a tendency to create bureaus of food epidemiology alongside of or in place of the old bureaus of smallpox epidemiology, the latter now almost unnecessary. They seem to have such a bureau in the San Francisco health department. This bureau recently reported two outbreaks of food poisoning. One was due to eating eclairs. It is the practice in making filled pastries of this type to cook the custard, set it aside to cool, then put it into the pastry. The custard is a fine food for bacteria. During the period when it is cooling it is liable to become contaminated. It may have a rich growth of bacteria in it when it is put into the pastry. Being regarded as a pastry by the trade it is handled as other pastries are. It will not be safe until the trade handles this product as a custard should be.

A second epidemic was due to eating some spoiled beef and the third to turkey and tomato sauce. There are a group of bacteria, some of which are about second cousins to the typhoid bacillus, that are capable of spoiling food in such a way as to bring about poisoning. These bacteria are widely distributed in the dust and dirt around farms, factories, and homes. They are carried by mice, rats, roaches, and flies. They find their way readily into all kinds of foods and then multiply if the food is kept warm and moist.

The preventive measures required are greater cleanliness, ridding the premises of mice and rats and insects, and more refrigeration.

MEMORY.

Miss T. writes: "Is one born with a bad memory, or is it caused through illness, or what?

REPLY.

Memory is one of several mental qualities. There are different kinds of memory. Men are born with differences in mental capacity of various kinds, including memory.

Training is of great service in improving memory, on the one hand, or making it worse, on the other.

Perhaps the variation in the quality of memory, by reason of difference in training, surpasses the inherited or congenital differences in the memory qualities of brains.

Certain diseases affect memory, particularly apoplexy and arteriosclerosis.

From Across the Sea

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile—South American newspapers are beginning to organize in their respective countries to resist the increasing governmental movements to restrict the press. An esprit de corps has sprung up before the threat to torpedo the "freedom of the press" which has been the glory of South American journalism since the days of independence.

Although the chief states such as Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru enjoy constitutional rule, their governments are empowered to declare a "state of emergency," whereby freedom of expression is curtailed considerably. Semi-officially, also, editors are cowed by threats which would never be tolerated in the United States.

Even when there is no "state of emergency" it is quite common for a government to send an official to a newspaper office to censor a news dispatch. Failure to comply probably would result in a government sponsored strike among the printers and a withdrawal of government advertising. Highly socialized states find it comparatively easy to bring an independent newspaper to its knees.

President Arturo Alessandri of Chile recently took exception to caricatures and references to himself in certain newspapers and magazines. The result was that the Supreme court ruled that on the grounds of "national prestige" the press is barred from caricaturing the president.

President Oscar Benavides, acting through a similar agency, also had repressed the "excessive license" of the Peruvian press. He claimed that "the present administration had been abused and insulting attacks made against government and congress." He declared that action through the Supreme court was preferable to the government making use of "emergency powers."

These are only two instances of recent press restrictions which have aroused the anxiety of South American newspapermen. Organization movements are reported in the principal cities and there is talk of concerted pressure being exercised in behalf of public rights.

In Chile the first professional organization has been formed, pledged to "leave no stone unturned to restore genuine press liberty." A continental conference of press representatives will also be called to coördinate their efforts to this end.

IRISH LITERARY GENIUS.

Ireland [I scorn the circumlocutory appellation of the Irish Free State] is today playing a game of petty politics and narrow nationalism, both of which are naturally abhorrent to the literary lights of Ireland. Moreover, in harmony with their Sinn Fein credo the little politicians are busy trying to perpetuate themselves by putting a premium on the revival of the Gaelic language, a medium which these expatriated Irishmen do not employ in their literary labors, though some of them have exploited Gaelic literature to the fullest for the delight and edification of the world.

I believe the pusillanimity of Irish politics is too much for these great Irishmen seeing that even in the teeth of the economic teachings of A. E. and other of his type Ireland has virtually lost the market for her agricultural products because of the 40 per cent tariff. No wonder, then, that men like Russell exile themselves in London, leaving "the island of saints and scholars" to the politicians to exploit it as they see fit. As the cobbler thinks there is nothing like leather, so, too, these politicians think there is nothing like politics.

But at best Ireland is a small field for first rate men of letters, and foremost Irish writers from Swift to Shaw have naturally drifted to London, which is the hub of literary activity. And when the political zeal for the revival of a well nigh extinct language has circumscribed this field still further, and when Irish men of letters like Shaw and Moore and Joyce and Stephens—in fact, all the great Irishmen that the world knows and reads are considered Anglo-Irishmen whose products are anathema to Sinn Fein Irishmen and their political exploits—the reason for the exodus of literary genius from Ireland is quite apparent.

INDORSES FOREIGN TRADE EFFORT.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—We were happy to note from your morning edition today that THE TRIBUNE opens a drive to increase foreign trade. This is a splendid idea and no doubt will offer considerable advantage to the small manufacturers and shippers in this district.

In the event we can at any time be of service to you in regard to rates or import or export rules and regulations kindly let us know and we will gladly cooperate with you.

WILLIAM A. BADE,
Secretary and Treasurer, International Forwarding Company.

YES.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—What right have officers and directors of corporations to make contributions to charity of the corporation's funds, or to purchase securities above the market price? Can the stockholders recover the sums they have thus been deprived of? STOCKHOLDER.

SALOONS AND BEER FLATS.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—Why all this fuss about the return of the saloon? I believe first, last, and always in temperance, but to my way of thinking more sincere reform could be made if drinking was confined in the saloon rather than the home.

I shall teach my children, the same as I was taught, that right living, clean living, and respect for their bodies and reputations are not taught in the corner saloon. Furthermore, if the present generation cannot have a good time without getting drunk, let them get drunk, but better have it happen in the saloon than in a nice secluded beer flat.

Let the saloon return in all of its rottenness. The sooner then the parents of future generations will see the folly of their ways and possibly set a better example.

We can't get away from individual responsibility. I am responsible for my home and the conduct of it. If my home is to be respected, I in turn must set the example.

The saloon, in all its old time glory, could not hold a match to the harm of the refined beer flat. I know, as I lived across the street from one two years ago.

EMMA WILSON.

THANK YOU.

Chicago, Dec. 25.—I am sending you a butterfly which I caught in our back yard yesterday. I think this is quite unusual for this time of the year. I hope this is a sign of a mild winter.

BRUNO FRIGO.

AGAINST RANDOLPH ST. STATION.

Chicago, Dec. 25.—I would like to know why the $15,000,000 railroad program provides for a station at Randolph street when it is more necessary to give the territory south of Harrison street the break it has been waiting for all these years. There is plenty of space and dead buildings that can be removed here and, furthermore, everything seems to be building north. I suppose this is a proposal by some property owners in that direction who want to boost themselves. I don't blame them, but it sure seems wrong. It would take a lot of business away from the south end of the loop. HARVEY FREEMAN.

THE NEW BRAVADO.

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 24.—The devastating exposure in today's TRIBUNE of the war record of the oligarchy explains why we do not tremble before the military genius of the new deal. The pulpy bravado of the trumpeter of "war," "slacker," "white feathers," especially invited this blistering indictment.

CLAIM AGAINST ESTATE.

Chicago Heights, Ill., Dec. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A company in Chicago, which became an estate after death of controlling party, owes me several hundred dollars. I wish to file claim for amount due me within one year from date, which will be soon. 1. How am I to go about this matter of filing claim? 2. Is it advisable to have a lawyer file this claim for me? 3. What is the usual lawyer's charge for filing a claim? 4. If I could fill in the necessary blanks just as well, with whom should I file claim? B. L.

1. You can secure a printed form from the office of the clerk of the Probate court in which the estate is being probated.
2. Unless the executor will mark your claim so be allowed, it will be advisable for you to employ an attorney to follow the claim so that you can be sure of being in court when the claim is reached.
3. Depends on facts that are not before us.
4. With the clerk of the Probate court.

BLAMES HORNER FOR FAILURE TO GET U. S. MONEY

Ald. Massen for Erection of "L" Highway.

BY HAL FOUST.

Governor Horner was charged yesterday with responsibility for the failure to obtain federal easy money for construction of a Chicago elevated highway system. The charge was made by Ald. John A. Massen [48th], chairman of the council traffic committee. This committee employed Dr. Miller McClintock of the Harvard university bureau of traffic research in a two-year survey of the city's street transportation problems, resulting in a recommendation for the superhighways.

"The state administration," said the alderman, "failed to apply for a federal grant or loan for the project, even after Secretary Ickes in an interview at Washington indicated that such an application would receive friendly consideration. Today, the last of the $3,300,000,000 easy money has been assigned to other projects supported by more diligent public officials.

Still Dilly Dallying.

"Today Springfield, with millions of road funds in the treasury, including millions collected from Chicago motorists, is still dilly dallying with the elevated highway project with little promise of prompt construction on a modern west side transportation facility that would relieve the city's problems of unemployment, of automobile fatalities, and of economic losses from congestion. With real and genuine effort the officials could build an elevated highway system with the existing revenue from the gasoline tax.

"If the Springfield administration cares to make an issue of the proposed improvement, I'm prepared for the fight. At the proper time all the circumstances regarding the tactics at Springfield will be brought before the city council and I have no doubt of the public's verdict."

Ald. Massen issued his statement after delivering a talk yesterday in the Great Northern hotel before a Chicago Safety council luncheon of truck fleet superintendents. In this talk he did not refer to the Christmas report from the state highway department disapproving of the elevated highway proposals, but he did answer many of the statements made in this report.

Answers High Cost Charge.

"The costs are large," said the alderman, "but the cost of elevated highway construction is only 15.5 per cent of the same additional traffic capacity obtained through street widening in Chicago. Four sections proposed for initial construction would cost approximately $10,000,000. For $100,000,000, in the next 25 years, 160 miles of elevated highway could be built, placing every address in Chicago within a mile of one of these fast and safe thoroughfares. The board of local improvements from 1915 to 1931 spent $135,000,000 in widening 99 miles of surface streets."

Charles E. De Leuw, assistant chief state highway engineer, who drafted his department's report, was formerly in the board of local improvements under Benjamin Lindheimer, who is now on the governor's staff as chairman of the Illinois commerce commission.

"You men are particularly interested in safety," the alderman continued his speech. "It is a deserving interest. Statisticians can calculate that with a continuance of the present rate of automobile accidents, every fourth baby born in Chicago in 1933 will be injured or killed by a motor car if the child continues to reside in this city.

Safety Factor Argued.

"The elevated highways physically preclude 72 per cent of the causes of fatal automobile accidents. The community in the past has fought this dangerous congestion with expensive surface street widenings only to find that in 1932 an eighth of our motor deaths occurred in Ashland and Western avenues.

"Let's not be frightened by the size of this $100,000,000 estimate for a twenty-five year elevated highway construction program. San Francisco, aided with federal easy money, is spending $113,000,000 solely for two bridges now under construction. The late Charles H. Wacker, city planner, estimated that the loss to Chicago business due to congestion was $160,000,000 a year—and it has been multiplied many times since he made his study.

"Let's not be turned aside by beautiful dreams of plazas and parkways as an alternative for elevated highways. Their cost is many times as great as available funds. Let's be practical. The elevated highways can be built with existing revenue from the motor vehicle fuel tax."

Marion Davies Copyright Infringement Case Settled

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—A consent decree filed with Federal District Judge W. P. James today ends litigation over asserted copyright infringements in the Marion Davies' picture, "Florodora Girl," and dismisses the complaint in favor of Miss Davies and her co-defendants, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and International Film corporations. A nominal money adjustment was made. The plaintiff was Clara G. Burke, heir of Jesse C. Boydston of England, original holder of the copyright for the comic opera.

IOWA PROFESSOR FINDS NEW CHINCH BUG INVASION

Ames, Ia., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—The heaviest chinch bug infestation in the history of the north central states threatens now to cause heavy losses of next year's corn and small grain crops in southern Iowa, northern Missouri, and Illinois, according to Prof C. J. Drake, state entomologist of Iowa.

Large numbers of fields probably may be completely destroyed, he said today.

In a survey of 10 southern Iowa counties last week, Dr. Drake's assistants discovered indications of the worst infestation in 50 years. The damage will extend as far north as the central tier of counties.

Dr. W. P. Fling, head of entomology at the University of Illinois, reports a tremendous chinch bug population in his state. On the whole, the Illinois infestation is heavier and wider spread than in Iowa, it is said. Large areas in Kansas, Nebraska, Indiana, and Ohio are also affected.

FISHING BOAT MISSING; CREW OF 3 ABOARD

The coast guard station at the mouth of the river was asked last night to aid in a search for the fishing boat Seagull, which went out in the morning and failed to arrive back at the scheduled hour last evening. On the boat when it left were Fritz Howard and two members of his crew. Howard has a fish stall near the Navy pier. Coast guard crews are to make an attempt to break through the harbor ice this morning if nothing is heard from the Seagull. She was still missing at 3 a. m.

CITY'S TRAFFIC ENGINEER GIVES ANNUAL REPORT

Leslie J. Sorenson, city traffic engineer, said yesterday in his annual report that the most important work done in his bureau during the year was preparation of plans for progressive traffic control lights in Michigan avenue from Roosevelt road to Oak street. Workmen started a few days ago to make the alterations in the light system on the boulevard. Mr. Sorenson's office was busy most of the year aiding parks and other agencies in plans for handling World's Fair traffic. Nine hundred traffic markers were erected for the guidance of motorists who came to the Fair.

Commanded Illinoisians in World War.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Edward L. King, 60, commander of the 4th corps area and holder of a distinguished war record through three campaigns, died of a heart attack here today.

Gen. King was riding on the reservation at Fort McPherson when he suffered the attack and slumped in his saddle. He died 35 minutes later.

He was a holder of the Distinguished Service Cross, the Distinguished Service Medal, a citation for gallantry in the Philippines, and the Croix de Guerre with Palms and was an officer of the Legion of Honor. He also fought in Cuba in the war against Spain.

Native of Bay State.

The general was born in Bridgeport, Mass., Dec. 5, 1873, and entered West Point Military academy in 1892. He was noted as an athlete and captained the Army football team two years before he graduated in 1896. He returned to West Point in 1903 for a year as head coach of the Army. He served in the department of Colorado as an aid to Brig. Gen. E. V. Sumner in 1898 and the same year went to Santiago de Cuba as aid to Maj. Gen. H. W. Lawton.

He went to France as chief of staff of the 28th division where he helped check the Germany army in the Marne defensive, later taking part in the Aisne-Marne offensive.

He served in the American army of occupation and in 1921 was made a director of the Army War college in Washington. He also commanded the Mounted Service school at Fort Riley.

He married Miss Nancy Vose Sumner of Harrisburg, Pa., in 1898. She and a daughter, Mrs. Charles Lee Andrews, survive.

CALDWELL, FOE OF VOLIVA FOR ZION RULE, DIES

The Rev. Charles Francis Caldwell, who for many years contested the right of Wilbur Glenn Voliva to rule the Christian Catholic Apostolic church of Zion, died yesterday in his home at 2314 Eliza avenue, Zion. He was 73 years old.

The Rev. Caldwell maintained that he, not Voliva, was the rightful successor of the Rev. John A. Lewis, named as overseer of the community in the will of John Alexander Dowie, founder of the religious community. Following the death of Lewis 13 years ago the Rev. Mr. Caldwell was elected by the minority following as the true overseer. The title, however, actually meant little as Voliva has kept actual control of Zion and the church since Dowie died in 1907.

Followers of the Rev. Mr. Caldwell said yesterday his death came exactly 13 years to the hour and minute after the death of Lewis. In 1931 Caldwell and several followers challenged the right of Dowie to sell Zion land to a Chicago subdivider and established a tent tabernacle on the property. Caldwell was arrested for trespassing, fined $1 and costs, and appealed to a higher court. Lake county officials refused to file an answer to the appeal and the case was never finally adjudicated. The Rev. Mr. Caldwell is survived by three sons and two daughters.

He was past national president of the National Association of Power Engineers and was a member of the Swedish Engineers' club. He is survived by two brothers, John and Edward Johnson.

Le Gallienne Is Most Obvious of All Heddas

Therefore, Says Critic, She Is Most Dramatic.

"HEDDA GABLER."

THE CAST.

Miss Juliana Tesman....Marian Evensen
Berta.....Leona Roberts
George Tesman.....Paul Leyssac
Hedda Tesman.....Eva Le Gallienne
Mrs. Elvsted.....Josephine Hutchinson
Judge Brack.....Walter Beck
Eilert Lovborg.....Donald Cameron

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Eva Le Gallienne's interpretation of Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler," presented to Chicago for the first time in the Grand Opera house last night, is a forthright, emphatic study of a woman whose neck should have been wrung a few years before the action began. In this study of the famous character, which has been acted by many of the First Actresses of the world since it was written in 1890, there is none of the subtlety about which early anti-Ibsenites used to complain. Miss Le Gallienne invites no sympathy for Hedda because of the wretched and mysterious state of her nervous system. She is the most obvious Hedda of my observation—and therefore one of the most dramatic.

Her face, heavily made up for sinister effect, suggests the white cobra whose sting is death. Her aristocratic sneers at her husband, her husband's aunt, and all the bourgeois, stuffy life into which her destiny has drawn her, are touched with the pedigreed contempt of a Russian grand duke inviting the masses to rebel.

Her muttered asides carry overtones of melodrama. Her boredom is of the arm-tossing type. In the famous book-burning scene that closes the third act she revels in a pause, complicated with vivid "business," that is the longest I have waited through since the great pausers of the past generation died off. I thought that she would stop to read Eilert Lovborg's history of civilization before she tossed the manuscript into the fire.

Nevertheless, she held her audience firmly during this long stretch of silence. The innate deviltry of the character came across the footlights like ectoplasm. And before she gave the unhappy Eilert's "child" [by another woman] to the flames she tore at its pages with tigerish hate.

Assuredly this Hedda is a woman whose neck deserves wringing. All the others of my experience were merely well-bred cases of neurasthenia, more to be pitied and psychoanalyzed than scorned.

Before comparing Miss Le Gallienne's candid diabolism with the highbrow, finely shaded Heddas of ten, twenty, and thirty years ago to her disadvantage, which might easily be done, one should consider certain facts. First, that the actress-manager of the New York Civic Repertory company has been conducting her institution as a theater for the humbler folks who have not become finicky in their tastes. A "popular" theater, like Miss Le Gallienne's, out of the Broadway region, requires a certain broadness of stroke in its acting.

Second, Miss Le Gallienne, as a woman with a Scandinavian background, is aware that Ibsen wrote for the stage of his period rather than the college faculties and culture clubs of America. Moreover, at the time he wrote "Hedda Gabler" he was undoubtedly glutted with praise of his stand for feminism [see "The Doll's House"], and undertook to tell the world that a woman, given a certain nervous system, heredity, and environment, could be a destructive she-devil.

"Go to with your feminism!" the grim old Norseman must have said to himself. "I will present the case-history of a commonplace phenomenon of our times. I will tell you the story of a woman whose neck I have wanted to wring."

Without relating Miss Le Gallienne to Mrs. Fiske and the other Heddas of the past, this production of "Hedda Gabler," in general, strikes me as among the best of my experience. I have seen better Lovborgs than Donald Comeron's, but the Tesman of Paul Leyssac, the Judge Brack of Walter Beck, the Mrs. Elvsted of Josephine Hutchinson, and the Aunt Julia of Marian Evensen are precisely as I would have them.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

If the Chicago Grand Opera company continues the course that it is now going it is likely to be known as disrespectful of tradition and possibly even iconoclastic. For it is one of the most cherished operatic traditions that the second night of a season must be a distinct letdown from the first in vocal merit, in smoothness of performance, in artistic tension generally.

What did this company do? It gave a second night performance fully up to what it had done the previous night, in some respects even better. This is not in accordance with prescriptive usage. But it gives a good deal of hope for the rest of the season.

Three names on the program were followed by the word debut in parentheses, which indicated that they were appearing with the Chicago company for the first time. Two of these, Mme. Rethberg and Mr. Chamlee, were well known on the north shore, being highly favored artists in the days when Ravinia had an opera company. Mr. Frigerio was a complete stranger, but the chances are that he will not remain in that lonely position long.

Mme. Rethberg and Mr. Chamlee speedily confirmed the belief that Ravinia memories were not mistaken ones. If any one wants to hear a better performance of Puccini's luscious love music than those two superb, healthy voices gave at the end of the first act that one is welcome to make a search. It will probably be a long one. In the meantime there are those, this reporter among them, who will continue to believe that it was just about ideal.

As the performance went on Mme. Rethberg began to uncover new details in her singing. Frank, exultant rapture was the climax of the first act. In the second, where she carried on without Mr. Chamlee, there began to be shadings, darknesses, hints of coming tragedy. Mme. Rethberg passed from being a superb singer into an actress of song, telling a story with the tones of her voice, yet never getting out of the track of lovely music. When this sort of thing happens you may be sure that a notable artist is making it happen.

Mr. Frigerio's introduction to Chicago indicates that he is going to be a valuable member of the company.

It takes more than three leading artists to make a good performance, wherefore it is desirable to add that the lesser rôles were no less engaging than the principal ones. One remembers with particular pleasure Miss Paggi's Suzuki, Mr. Cordon's Bonze, and especially Mr. Oliviero's Goro, a striking performance.

Belated Film About Mexico Wins Praise

"THUNDER OVER MEXICO."

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

At last "Thunder Over Mexico" has arrived! It seems to me its rumblings have been heard for the last ten years. Which is, of course, an exaggeration. However, it HAS been a long time since the great Russian director, Sergei Eisenstein, to the tune of much publicity, went to Hollywood to make a picture. Huzzas were loud and anticipation ran strong. BUT——

Mr. Eisenstein in Hollywood refused to do as Hollywoodians do. He was an artist who would not submit to dictation. He had a MISSION in life—to make pictures with meaning——

Mr. Eisenstein left Hollywood abruptly. . . .

He sought out Mr. Upton Sinclair and said that unless he were to make one movie over here he would return to Russia a defeated man. He would like to film a travelogue in Mexico. . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair were interested. They went forth into the highways and the byways seeking their friends' coöperation for the distraught Sergei. Response was generous and Mr. Eisenstein went into Mexico with his camera. . . .

Months rolled by. Reels rolled up. The travelogue expanded into 200,000 feet—or thirty miles of film, and Mr. Eisenstein's helpers, now helpless, besought him to stop.

At last he did. And, at just about that moment—was recalled to Russia! Leaving 200,000 cans of uncut film in Mr. Sinclair's back yard.

To make a long story short, "Thunder Over Mexico" was finally sent to Hollywood for editing. The result is on the Castle screen. I believe there are enough reels left to make five or more other "Thunders."

Most of this Mr. Sinclair explains somewhat wearily, by way or prelude, adding gallantly—the truth—that from a photographic standpoint "Thunder Over Mexico" is one of the most beautiful things ever screened.

"The trees, the stones, the very clouds act," says he.

The picture touches lightly—mostly by subtitle—on the early history of Mexico. Its story proper starts in 1906 with the life tragedy of a peon, supposed to be symbolic of the life tragedies of all peons up to the time of their insurrection and liberation.

The players are all natives and, as in his Russian masterpiece, "Old and New," Mr. Eisenstein has picked his characters cannily and succeeded in making them act with the utmost naturalness.

His is the ability of flinging unforgettable living pictures against a stunning curtain of reality. His the gift of screening narrative vividly and understandably without aid of dialogue or subtitle. After "Thunder Over Mexico" is under way I don't believe there are more than half a dozen subtitles. It is a silent photoplay with effective musical synchronization.

"Thunder Over Mexico" is unique, beautiful, purposeful, and, as I saw it, not especially inclined toward propaganda.

The gloomy Russian responsible for it, born and bred amid scenes of oppression and revolution, is, of course, no cheer leader. But he IS a master and you will find the result of his wanderings in Mexico decidedly worth your while.

See you soon!

STUART STONE, who is interested in the manufacture of paper, ate luncheon with a sugar magnate from the west the other day. Mr. Stone, with an eye to business, inquired why he didn't put the sugar in paper bags instead of cloth bags, and the sugar man explained that his customers wouldn't like it.

"Out west the housewives either make shirts for their husbands or panties for themselves out of the sacks," he explained. "I know it, because the other day when it was windy a girl went by and I saw 'Pride of the Rockies' stamped on her underwear. No, we'd lose business if we used paper sacks."

PERHAPS it sounds frivolous, but the idea is pretty sound after all. One of the things the nurses at Passavant Memorial hospital want is bridge lessons, so that they will be able to play bridge with their patients. And Mrs. Adolph O. Hartmann, who, as one of the members of the women's board at Passavant, is helping to raise money for the Nurse's Welfare fund, says that she thinks it would be an excellent idea for maids and cooks to know bridge. It would be a comfort to have a fourth at bridge right in the house, she added.

A FRIEND was in a Chinese restaurant the other day with his wife, and as they ate Eddie Cantor's song, "Little Sing-a-Lee learn to sing hey-hey, like a Customers—Bridge—Chinee—Twins. 'Melican do swingy-sway," came over the radio. It struck him as rather amusing to hear that particular song and he mentioned it to the Chinese waiter.

"Dam' clever, these Americans," observed the Oriental.

THEN there was the little south side child who was having a holiday party and who helped her grandmother make out the list of guests.

"What about the Muldoon twins?" suggested grandmother.

"Well, there's no need to ask them both," said Mary. "They're just alike."

THEY were four of the season's debutantes — dewy, pink-cheeked young things, and they were sitting with youths who looked positively pathetically in their youth. All four were sipping cocktails at the Drake bar, and one of the girls was holding forth with great vivacity. A friend, seated at an adjacent table, couldn't help but hear the thrilling narrative. It concerned a facial massage the baby-skinned conversationalist had had that day, and she was telling about it in detail, from the cleansing cream to the final makeup. After her account of this thrilling operation they all ordered another cocktail.

Present Three to Society at Two Receptions

Three young girls made their formal bows to society yesterday afternoon, Miss Mary de Tarnowsky and the two Coit sisters, Eleanor and Betty. Miss de Tarnowsky and her father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. George de Tarnowsky, were at home to their friends at their residence on Pine Grove avenue and the Misses Coit and their mother, Mrs. A. Merrill Coit, received at the Fortnightly.

Miss de Tarnowsky wore a girlishly simple gown of peach satin with a sash and cape of blue satin, and carried an armload of talisman roses. The whole lower floor of the house was filled with flowers that had been sent to the charming young daughter of the house. Mrs. de Tarnowsky was gowned in deep blue velvet. After the tea Dr. and Mrs. Tarnowsky gave a buffet supper for their daughter and her assistants and their escorts, and then took them to the Harvard Musical club's performance.

While a stringed orchestra wandered from the classical to the modern in the ballroom of the Fortnightly club, Mrs. Coit and her two daughters received several hundred of their friends in an adjoining drawing room.

Gowned alike in ankle length white lace dresses, they stood with their mother against an effective background of ferns and palms. Betty carried an armload of red roses while Eleanor's bouquet was of talisman roses. Mrs. Coit was wearing a costume that combined the ever fashionable black and white.

After a cup of tea or a cocktail all of the younger guests moved into the ballroom for dancing while their elders chatted in the other living rooms of the handsome Georgian clubhouse.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer J. Fox gave a supper-dance last night at the roof garden of the Hotel Pierre to introduce their daughter, Miss Terry Fox, who will be graduated from the Baldwin school at Bryn Mawr, Pa., next June. Miss Fox is a niece of Henry Morgenthau Jr., acting secretary of the treasury.

Mrs. Bruce Barton and Mrs. George W. Morgan entertained at luncheon today at the Central Park casino for Miss Mary Esther Stilwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Scott Stilwell. Miss Stilwell will be presented at a tea dance on Saturday by her parents at their home.

Color Contrast Fashionable in Snow Clothes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Snow clothes or sun clothes . . . lots of both! . . . If the drifts win you'll find some of the best looking outdoor sports clothes ever unpacked. Flocks of separate jackets, some hip length, others trim and short, just reaching the waistline, all made of waterproof, heavy knit, sturdy fabrics that are surprisingly supple and easy to wear.

Never have zippers had their way so completely, zippered pockets on the hip and paired in two vertical lines on the chest, zippers down the center closing. Zippers on the trousers and a new innovation, zippered shoulder seams on the new slip-on models.

This year you can buy separate trousers in two styles, elastic waistlines, or fitted, tailored affairs that stay smoothly in place with the inevitable zipper get-togethers. You can contrast last season's trousers with eye striking new jackets, made of blazing high colors like orange, elastic blue, deep emerald green, and scarlet. Some of the jackets are matched with jaunty capes and flippant neck scarfs that will streak madly behind as you fly down a steep slope or whirl around the pond on skates. Fancy stripings and diagonal patch work effects further the color contrast with a white, snowy outdoors as a background.

These ski, skate, or toboggan outfits are perfect companions for the coldest weather, but if the trousers disturb your sense of propriety, especially when you skate, there are some new circular cut, giddy plaid wool skirts that button up the front. They are tricky affairs, made with a dash and freedom that will make instant friends. With them you can wear all the dazzling striped sweaters and bold colored suede and knit combination jackets that are so plentiful in all sports minded shops in town.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Willis of Hinsdale announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane Washington, to Duncan McConnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. McConnell of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Madden of 4339 North Winchester avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane, to Regis L. Plante of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. George Edwin Schneider of 2256 Cleveland avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Louise, to Emmett N. Johnson, son of the late N. Frederick Johnson of Waukegan. Miss Schneider attended Northwestern university and Mr. Johnson attended the University of Illinois.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Burchard of 1643 Jarvis avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Grace, to John Huber Lapperre, son of Mrs. Caroline M. Lapperre. Both Miss Burchard and Mr. Lapperre attend Northwestern university.

Luncheon Will Mark Close of Debut Season

Two Buds Will Be Guests at Joint Party.

BY JUDITH CASS.

BECAUSE the debutantes and young marrieds are having such a busy time Mrs. Edgar Stanton Jr., the former Rosamond Baker, was greatly surprised the other day. She had wanted to give a small luncheon for Miss Marie Louise Gardner, and her mother, Mrs. Edward L. Baker, wanted to entertain similarly for Miss Josephine Templeton, so while the first holiday rush was on Mrs. Baker mailed out the invitations, and Mrs. Stanton's first intimation of the fact that she was about to be a hostess came when she received several acceptances to her luncheon.

Mrs. Baker has arranged for the party, which is to be a small one, to be given at the Woman's Athletic club next Tuesday. Just the closest friends of the two debutantes have been invited, and we'll wager that for about two hours they will discuss all the thrills of their first year "out," which will have been completed just at that time, and lament the fact—though not for long—that they are "on the shelf."

Mrs. Louis Henry Risser has set Jan. 12 as the day on which she will entertain at luncheon for her dark eyed daughter, Miss Jean Risser. The party will be held at the Lake Shore Drive hotel, where Mr. and Mrs. Risser have taken an apartment this winter. Included in the guest list will be Miss Risser's many debutante friends, several of whom she knew while a student the last three years at that fashionable school founded by her aunt . . . Miss Risser's in Rome.

A debutante luncheon today is one at which Mrs. Botsford Young and Mrs. Charles Poole will be hostesses. They are entertaining for Miss Josephine Templeton and Miss Barbara Ann Sargent at the "900."

Prepare Opera House for Ball Tomorrow.

Early this morning artists and workmen will get busy in the Civic Opera house to prepare it for the Grand Opera Masque ball to be held there tomorrow night, and by the time the first of the guests arrive the entire theater will have been transformed by means of especially designed lighting and decorations into a proper setting for the merriment and conviviality that are expected to reign there.

The Opera clubroom on the box mezzanine floor will have been turned into a cabaret, and there will be dancing there as well as on the stage and in various other places. In fact, there is to be continuous dancing, for there are to be four orchestras in addition to strolling musicians, who will wander everywhere.

The program in the auditorium, which will include an opera review and a pageant, will start at 10:45 o'clock and at 11 there will be a grand parade of socialites dressed as

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

By the grace of railroad officials who supplied a limited instead of a freight, the hundred members of the Harvard University Instrumental clubs presented a concert before a society audience last night in Orchestra hall.

Four hours late, stranded with a broken engine midway between Boston and Chicago, and faced only by the prospects of a freight ride, the young musicians wired their plight at noon yesterday to the heads of the Harvard club here who were sponsors of last evening's concert. Immediately the "heads" communicated with officials in the transportation world, urging the necessity of getting the boys to Chicago on time. The result was a flyer "hitch" which landed them here at 7:45, in time to tune their instruments before the opening number at 8:30.

"And that was only one scare," commented Dwight Ingram, secretary of the Chicago Harvard club, with an apparent sigh of relief during an intermission last night. "Another wire asked me to get a tenor saxophone player. 'Two boys from Worcester,' read this wire, 'missed train.' As fortune would have it, however, the two Worcester saxophonists turned up by plane."

With a repertoire that ran the gamut from the finale of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Gondoliers" to Handman's "Make Believe," the four clubs . . . the banjo club, the mandolin club, the vocal club, and the gold coast orchestra . . . pleased an audience that included many who had pledged their allegiance to Princeton the night before at the Triangle show. There was dignity in the performance befitting the Puritan seat of learning yet a large enough pinch of modern paprika to make it interesting.

Those peers among Chicago Harvard alumni . . . Barrett Wendell, son of the late Barrett Wendell who was one of the most dearly beloved of Harvard professors; Col. A. A. Sprague, Joseph L. Valentine, and G. Cook Kimball . . . never sang "Fair Harvard" with more genuine feeling than they did last night in climax to the concert.

Arriving late from the dinner party given for Miss Patsy Keith, one of the season's buds, by Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., were a dozen debutantes and their beaux. These young people took places in five boxes in the center of the horseshoe. Miss Jean Wilhelm and Miss Helen Hunter, two of the group, looked almost like twins as they arrived snuggly in summer ermine coats with huge orchid bouquets on their left shoulders.

All of this party and several more members of the audience danced after the concert at the Casino supper dance given by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. John Payne Kellogg for their niece, Miss Hunter, who is here from Pasadena to make her bow to Chicago society in which her grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell, were so much beloved.

Tonight the four Instrumental clubs are to present a second concert in the auditorium of the Skokie school in Winnetka. Preceding the concert the club members are to be special guests at a tea dance given by wives of Winnetka Harvard alumni . . . among them Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, Mrs. Lawrence Howe, and Mrs. Laird Bell . . . at the Indian Hill club.

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

SYNOPSIS.

Bruce Pomeroy, brought up in poverty, befriended a Russian, Boris Orleneff. In return Orleneff, before his death, left Pomeroy an invention, which is about to make Pomeroy a millionaire. Orleneff stipulated that his brother's family, whom he considered parasites, were not to get a cent from the invention. While walking through New York's Central park one winter's morning Pomeroy is kidnaped and taken to a small island off the coast of Maine, where he is made a prisoner in a luxurious home, but kept on a starvation diet. His captor is Boris Orleneff, nephew of the inventor. Boris' cousins, Cyril and Olga Norrikoff, assisted in the abduction. They want Pomeroy to make a settlement. He refuses. Boris invites Pomeroy to join the family circle downstairs. The older members are unaware that Pomeroy is an involuntary guest. Pomeroy manages to elude his guard, Grateful, and get out of his room, but a raging storm makes escape impossible. Olga Norrikoff tells Pomeroy they are all starving; that the house was lent to them for the winter. Boris and Cyril hadn't been able to get work. Pomeroy arranges through Grateful to get food supplies from Andy Mason the caretaker. He has fallen in love with Irma Orleneff, Boris' sister. Cyril's mother dies and his father commits suicide. Cyril had left, before the tragedy, in a leaky boat to get help from the mainland.

INSTALLMENT XXXIV.

MARRIAGE PROPOSED.

"I shall be glad if you understand Boris a little better before you go away," Irma said serenely. "As to the way he brought you here, and I suspect now that he practically forced you to come"—her lovely face flushed, but she went on steadily—"that was a simple case of desperation. We were—we are—at the end of our string, as I suppose you know by this time. We have warmth and shelter here, but that is all. It was a crazy plan that Cyril conceived and Boris should never have considered it for a moment, but he is sometimes man and sometime a little boy. He's very sorry now that he acted as he did. He realizes that when it becomes public he will never live it down."

Even in that moment he was struck by her serene unconsciousness of the real meaning of her brother's act.

"It will never become public," he said on a sudden impulse. "This little episode will remain among ourselves."

Her eyes dropped before his.

"That's very generous of you," she murmured under her breath.

All this time, he realized, she had not mentioned Cyril except in passing. He was sure he knew why. Her mind was shying away from another horror. She was telling herself that Cyril might return any minute. Pomeroy was convinced, as Grateful had been, that the young man had perished. It was now almost noon. Cyril had started on his journey before midnight. There would have been no hesitation on the part of his harbor friends to respond to any emergency call, if he had reached them. If the boat had been disabled, and he had been rescued, a doctor would have been sent to the island as soon as he had told the story. If, on the other hand, he or the boat had been picked up and recognized too late, there would have been an immediate voyage to the island to report the disaster. Of course, there might be just such news any minute. Any way one looked at it, there seemed little chance for Norrikoff, and Pomeroy refused to look into the dark abyss another tragedy would mean to the girl before him. An idea that had been subconsciously forming in his mind since she had entered the room abruptly took shape. He drew his chair closer to her and spoke urgently.

"Will you marry me?"

"Miss Orleneff," he began, "I've been doing a lot of thinking since I came here. At first, of course, it was merely personal thinking. I was wondering how I could escape, and what effect my absence would have on my business—all that sort of thing. But since I've met you and your family—and especially since I've known you better—I've been thinking of your side of all this. God knows I've had time enough to do some thinking that was worthwhile. Anyway, out of it all I've just thought of a plan to put before you. May I?"

"Of course," was all she said.

"Thank you. I'm going to say something very important," he went on, "and I'm going to ask you not to answer me—not even to speak till I've finished. Will you promise that?"

"Why—yes." He saw that his words had startled her, had perhaps even alarmed her. It was as if she saw more trouble coming, and could not face it. She looked around, almost wildly, as if seeking some way to avoid it. He understood. He was growing surprisingly understanding where she was concerned. She thought he meant to speak of Cyril—to bring up the black possibility she had not let herself face.

"I'm going to ask you to marry me," he said steadily. "I'm asking you now. Under normal conditions I'd have waited, of course. But these conditions are not normal. As you've just told me, you and your family are at the end of your resources. There's a lot to be done for you, and it needs to be done right now. I want you to give me the right to take care of you, and to end your troubles. As your future husband I can attend to everything that needs doing here. I won't make any settlement with your brother, even now. He has no right to any settlement, and I shall keep the letter of the promise I made your uncle. But when the storm is over I can get you all off this island and back to New York, and I can have your mother's eyes operated on, and get a job for your brother, and see that you are made comfortable and secure."

See seemed about to speak, but he raised his hand.

"Please wait till I've finished. Don't you see what this means? It's the solution of an awfully tangled situation. Even if you would accept help from me as a friend, which none of you seems willing to do, it might lead to a lot of trouble and red tape which would annoy my associates and upset the big deal I'm just putting through. I could make over a good income to my wife, of which she could allow as much as she chose to her mother. Mme. Orleneff would have her own apartment to live in, with her son and Grateful with her, and you could give her an ample allowance to keep it up. I'll get one of my associates to give your brother a job. Our marriage would solve your problems, and it would make me very happy. Do you see it? Will you marry me?"

The smile she gave him was beautiful—the smile he had seen on her lips twice before. It was the smile of a tolerant mother, listening to the outpourings of a small son. She shook her head.

"No, I won't marry you," she said quietly. "But I'll always remember that you asked me—and I'll always be grateful to you."

"Good God, it isn't a matter of gratitude," he broke out. "Why won't you marry me—when your doing it would mean so much to so many people?"

"But not to you," she pointed out, "and not to me. I'll do anything in reason for my people. I will sacrifice my own life for them if I have to. But I won't sacrifice yours. You deserve the real things, Mr. Pomeroy. I'm not going to rob you of them."

"Rob me!" he quoted the word almost with a groan. "It's no time to talk about my own feelings. But instead of robbing me of anything you would be giving me what I think is most worthwhile in the world. I suppose I've been in love with you ever since I first saw you. They say it happens that way sometimes, but I never believed it. Anyway, I didn't know it then. I realized it vaguely yesterday. Today, when I am seeing you suffer, and can't help you, I know by the depths of my misery how much I care. I wouldn't have told you so for months. I'd have waited and started a slow and patient wooing. I know you're not a girl to be swept off your feet. I know I'm not the kind of a man you're used to. Perhaps I'm not the kind you can ever care for. But now all the conditions make for haste. In the end I'm going to get you, Irma," he ended in a different tone, "if I have to serve seven years for you, like that fellow in the Bible. But it will save us all a lot of trouble if you will marry me as soon as we get off this island."

Her lips parted, but again he stopped her.

"I've got to put things very straight," he went on. "I can't mince words and I'm not much good at doing that, anyway. I know you don't love me. I'm not asking you to marry a stranger and be a real wife to him. All I want is your promise today, and a ceremony as soon as we get back to New York. That will put me in a position to end your troubles. For you won't have any trouble with me, Irma, ever. I believe I can make you love me. But until I do, I won't expect anything from you but your friendship. And if, after well, say a year together, I can't win your love, I'll give you your freedom and settle an independent income on you."

"You're really quite wonderful." She spoke slowly, as if thinking aloud. "I'm going to be just as frank as you are. I can't imagine a more devilish position for a man to be in than under the same roof with the woman he loves and is married to, and who isn't really his wife. It's enough to wreck him. I can't think of any conditions that would make me treat a man I liked in such a way."

Love May Not Be High Flame, but It's Love

Congeniality Good Basis for Marriage.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Is it possible for a happy and successful marriage to be founded on anything but love?"

Wondering asks. She explains that she has been going steadily with a boy for three years. They both wish to be married. They realize their feelings are not those of deep love. Each has been around with other beaus and sweethearts, but believe they are ideally suited to each other in many ways. Their temperaments and dispositions, while not opposite, are sufficiently different to stimulate. They won't be bored; they know that. In three years' close companionship, they've never had a serious disagreement. Their opinions are not the same, true, but why should they be? Wondering asks.

"Although we are not in love, we feel that we would be happy together. Do you think it wise to marry, or should we wait for the 'right' persons to come along?"

Sometimes we hear doubt about marriage expressed by a girl who thinks she's been cheated out of the grand passion; sometimes a man will find himself in the same quandary. Not often do we find both man and girl wondering if they're passing up a future Miss or Mr. Right.

We think these Right people are the fly in the ointment. Because as they are mentally entertained, they're so often Mr. and Miss Wrong. They don't exist, as they are fashioned out of minds. But their ghosts walk, and scare the very soul out of otherwise romantic unions.

Then, of course, analytically minded folk are not so likely to encounter a grand and reckless passion. Entertain, rather than encounter, we should say. They wouldn't know it when it came along, so bent are they on picking it apart. A couple that has established a three year congeniality, with marriage uppermost in each mind, comes about as close to experiencing love as is allotted certain humans. We do not say they know a wild, passionate, physical longing, but for the long, steady run we'd appoint compatibility the most distinguished place among the motives for marrying.

Dance on Saturday.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

YOU CAN'T GET AWAY WITH IT.

"Two-Gun Slinky" Sam Bunello, a cigaret dangling from his lips, stepped out of the doorway into the driving rain. As he slinked along the street in the darkness of the night the feel of the two guns against his hands in the pockets of his expensive ulster brought a cynical smile to his thin lips. He was prepared.

As he turned the corner 50 yards away he dropped writhing to the sidewalk, a bullet through his mouth. Gangsters seldom live to be old.

When Prof. Fordney and Inspector Kelley reached the scene Bunello was dead and the man who killed him, Jim Moran, a private detective, was standing by the body.

"A week ago my agency detailed me to tail him," replied Moran to Kelley's questioning. "They were employed by Mr. Edward Kaiser, whom Bunello was attempting to blackmail. I had been tipped off that he was going to Kaiser's home tonight, so when he turned the corner and came toward me I ordered him to get 'em up! He hollered 'Go to hell!' Being confident he had rods in both pockets, as was his habit, I fired at the glow of his cigaret and he dropped. Then . . ."

"All right! All right!" interrupted Kelley. "We'll check your story—if it's true you're in the clear. You've been a good 'dick,' even though you are a private one, and . . ."

Fordney interjected: "How long have you been tailing Bunello?"

"About three weeks."

"What's Kaiser's street number?"

"Why . . . I think it's . . ."

WHY DID HE ORDER THE INSPECTOR TO DO SO?

operatic characters. They will parade in couples across the great stage and take their places on the terraces to watch the rest of the entertainment. In this parade will be the Byron S. Harveys, the Howard Linns, the Charles S. Deweys, the Joseph T. Ryersons, the Robert Adamses, the Ernest Grahams, the George Woodruffs, the Charles H. Chadwicks, the John Roots, the Arthur Cables, the Walter Brewsters, the Alfred Shaws, the Edward L. Ryersons, the Charles B. Goodspeeds, the Laurance H. Armours, Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Noble B. Judah, Seymour Blair, Arthur Meeker Jr., and Andrew Reborl, who is general chairman of the ball committee.

Arts Club Will Serve Buffet Supper.

The Arts club is serving a buffet supper tomorrow night, starting at 8 o'clock, before the ball, and there is to be a makeup man there to assist those who need help in making up their faces to conform to the characters they will portray. The Ambrose C. Cramers are entertaining a party of 24 at the supper, and the Philip Mahers will have 10 guests.

Costumes and masques are obligatory, but for those who haven't had the time nor the inclination to plan more elaborate costumes there will be cape and masque combinations of different colors on sale at the door for $1 each. Tickets for the ball may be obtained by telephoning Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Franklin 3401.

Dress circle and balcony tickets at popular prices [$1.50 and $2] are available at the Chicago Civic Opera house box office. No costumes are required with these tickets.

Box Party Today at Musical.

Mrs. Charles H. Swift usually sits in the back row on the main floor for the Kinsolving Morning musicals, but this morning she will be sitting in the balcony, for she is entertaining a box party for the musical at which Mme. Ninon Vallin, soprano, will sing, and Jacques Gordon, violinist, will play. And after the musical Mrs. Swift is giving a luncheon at her home on Lake Shore drive for Mme. Vallin.

There has been such a demand for seats for the last Kinsolving of the season on Jan. 11 when Maria Jeritza will sing that it will be held in the grand ballroom of the Stevens instead of in the smaller ballroom of the Blackstone, where this morning's musical will be given.

Mrs. Freeman Hinckley is chairman of the subscription dinner dance tonight at the Saddle and Cycle club, to which two hundred and ten of the subdebutante crowd have been invited. The party starts at 7:30, half an hour earlier than the debutante affairs, but that is the only deviation from the usual procedure of the "grownup" parties.

The newly formed University Colony club is providing a gala season for the young men and women at home from college as well as those in school here. The club members entertained at a tea dance yesterday afternoon at the South Shore Country club. On Saturday evening Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey are receiving the club members, their sons and their daughters at a Twelfth Night party in Ida Noyes hall.

Mrs. Albert Koch is to be hostess to the undergraduates, alumnae and prospective Welles college girls today at a tea the Welles College club of Chicago and the North Shore club are giving in her home at 1412 Judson avenue, Evanston.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Story of State parkway are spending the holidays on a West Indies cruise.

Flying Swallow Forms Odd Theme of Quilt Pattern

Swallow's Flight.

BY NANCY CABOT.

A quilt of this pattern has the appearance of a flock of birds in flight. It might well be considered a modern quilt, so strikingly simple is the design. It is tremendously effective as a whole. "Swallow's Flight" may be pieced in prints or plain colors, or both. It is a type of pattern that allows every quiltmaker the opportunity of showing originality in color combinations and arrangement.

Experts Combine Modish Features in Tunic Pattern

JUNIOR GIRL'S TUNIC DRESS.

Tunic dresses have come back again and are deservedly popular. A novelty woolen and silk mixture in Chinese red, black for the scarf collar, and shiny metal buttons and belt buckle made the original dress. Velvet, silk crepe, and the hairy woolen weaves are other lovely materials.

The pattern, No. 3220, comes in sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19 years.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a weekly radio feature—will be presented tomorrow by Mary Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 11:10 o'clock for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Why not turn up with a Smörgasbord party for this New Year's eve? It's one of the best ways on record of starting the new calendar off with a whoop of glee and a most tantalizingly delightful tickle on the palate. You know what it will be like, don't you? Not a Dutch supper this time, although you'll recognize some of the favorites you might meet at your German buffet. And certainly the general aspect, stacks of plates, ranks of forks, platters of these, and bowls of those may remind you of the more ordinary help-yourself service. But truly this is quite different.

Nationally it belongs to Sweden. Actually it is their first or appetizer course, compares with hors d'œuvres in France, zakuska in Russia, antipasto in Italy, and good old appetizers in America. But the pleasant thing about it is that the array of appetizers themselves, plus Swedish bread, butter, and coffee, make as complete a meal as any celebrator could wish to handle with the new year about to be ushered in.

For the table a large one with an over-all linen cloth will be the thing. At the logical starting corner, if there is one, place a pile of good sized plates. The rest of the dishes may be placed in whatever order best balances the table.

As for what these dishes will be, that depends to a great extent upon the number of guests, the amount of time you are willing to devote to preparing supper, and a bit to your exchequer, although none of the foods are expensive. The typical Smörgasbord table, planned to serve quite a sizey party, will have on it some or all of the following, each in its own serving dish with serving spoon beside it. Little Swedish meat balls, pickled herring and sardines of one or more kinds, small slices of smoked ham, pickled calves' tongues, two or three sorts of aspic or gelatin molds imbedded with fish, fruits, or vegetables, each sporting its own dish of dressing; creamy cottage cheese dusted with paprika and sometimes mixed with chopped chives; sour cucumber slices and olives, smoked fish fillets, goat and other cheeses, cabbage salad, potato salad, even a fruit salad which tastes much like our Waldorf variety. Then always in addition on the Smörgasbord you will find plates stacked high with the famous Swedish bread and crackers. Arrange the forks toward the last of the table tour. Finally serve coffee to your guests when they are once more back in position.

Paris Now Uses Elastic Bands in Tweed Jackets

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Dilkusha, who introduced the new two way stretch fabric to Paris, has turned to ordinary elastic bands as the means of fitting the waistline of her tweed suits. She puts a wide band of elastic inside the tweed jacket shown in our sketch to hold it in around the waistline, though it is straight in cut. The jacket and the skirt are made of brown and gray mixed tweed, and the skirt has a tweed covered elastic band across the back below the top of the skirt.

A collarette of brown phoque gives warmth to the jacket of this suit, and it is fastened at the back of the neck. The jacket fastens on buttons made of deer horn.

A sweater blouse of royal blue cashmere wool goes with his suit. It is shown in the smaller sketches at the side. It also buttons up the front on deer horn buttons and has a scalloped, crocheted border around the neck. This sweater is barely waistlength and ends in a fitted ribbed band. This band is tucked under the high topped skirt.

The way in which elastics are used to pinch the waistline of this model indicates an intention to get away from the close fitting jacket, and also from the swagger jacket.

WEDDINGS

One of the interesting notes of the wedding last evening of Miss Edna Compton, daughter of the Frank E. Comptons of Glencoe, to William Lee Melcher, son of the Lee William Melchers of Waukesha, Wis., was the gold chatelaine that the bride carried for "something old." The chatelaine, which held the bride's handkerchief, has been worn for generations by the brides in the family. It was worn by a great-great-grandmother, Ann Adams, when she married James Wilson, father of the President, 125 years ago.

The ceremony was read by the Rev. Douglas Cornell in the Glencoe Union church at 8:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm J. Gillie of the Surf hotel announce the marriage of their daughter, Olive Gertrude, to Walter Rogge Leininger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Leininger of 1125 Park avenue, River Forest, which will take place this evening in the John Timothy Stone chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church.

Exercises Are the Latest in Parlor Tricks

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

When you and I were young, Maggie, a parlor trick was something preceded by a stiff little curtsey. A piece, spoken with gestures or without. A piano or vocal solo rendered with great pains [to the audience]. But today, my sisters, you may hie yourself off to the party with a couple of exercises, well rehearsed, and be the life of the occasion.

I've seen it illustrated frequently of late.

"Do you want to see the exercise that got me into this 16-size dress?" the last party stimulater inquired.

A chorus of YES-es. And pretty soon the floor resembled a gym in high tide of activity.

Healthy—I calls it! Better than exchanging diet talk or panning the absentees. Not that there's anything wrong with diet talk—except it's an awful bore. And the more talk about it the less dieting is known to be a demonstrated fact. But when girls get to talking exercise as an accomplishment and take pride in their ability to perform well—you may be sure that they're going to keep an eye on the diet. And a better, wider-awake, more determined eye on it, too. That's just exercise phychology. It furnishes the will to do.

Of course, I wouldn't advocate choosing any parlor occasion for exercise promotion. The hostess mightn't like having the chairs shoved back and the scene generally disarranged. But I like the keen exercise interest. And when you can make a diversion of it, you've got something.

What I really want to do today is to remind women again that a New Year's resolution applicable to exercise wouldn't be out of the way. I'm not one to urge you into any complicated group of daily set-up. Just pick two or three good ones and swear that you'll do them every a. m. for ten minutes' count by the clock—and I'll promise you a "fitter' year than you've known on a no-exercise one.

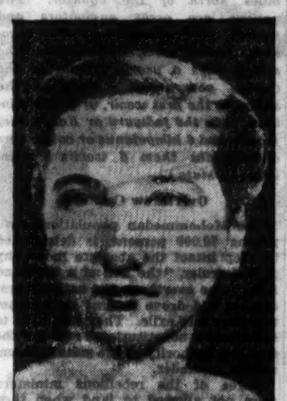
Bride



Miss Marjorie Isaacs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Isaacs of the Shoreland hotel, yesterday became the bride of Walter Robert Metz. The ceremony was held in the Standard club.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Roosevelt gave a party tonight as a part of the Christmas festivities in the White House. They had a dinner party followed by a program of music by the Aguilars' Spanish Lute quartet and dances by Miss Mayris Chaney and Edward Fox, to which a number of additional guests were asked.

Discipline Does Not Require a Scolding Way

Crossness Only Confuses, Puzzles Child.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

The boy was making a cage for a pet animal. He worked blissfully away in his room, amid shavings and tools.

He needed a piece of rock just a certain size for one corner and the one he had was too large. Lost to everything except his mind's eye picture of the way the cage would look, he placed the rock on his rug and began to pound away with his heavy hammer.

"John," he snapped. The boy jumped.

"You'll ruin the rug and the floor. That's being destructive," and he scolded and scolded.

"My, dad, you startled me. O, dear, I thought I was being so careful, putting the rock on the rug to save the floor. I'm always doing something wrong," and the lad wilted, his brightness and enthusiasm quite faded away.

You don't have to scold a child to correct him. You don't have to reproach him. You don't have to deliver a long harangue—or as the children themselves sometimes call it, a lecture—when he's done something wrong; that is to say, done something in the way you don't want him to.

Parents can easily fall into the habit of investing all their corrections with unpleasantness. And once you get started on that scolding or nagging or reproachful path in child management it soon becomes a rut. And after a while you don't realize how far you've strayed.

It doesn't need to be so. Children can be corrected in a simple, brief way, with an explaining or friendly manner. They don't need blame every time they're told not to do something or shown the error of their ways.

There are so many things they do thoughtlessly, so many things they don't even know they shouldn't do, so many things that are wrong only because they don't fit into a grownup world or a civilized one that we should have pity on them and try to be as dispassionate as possible in our corrections.

NEXT SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE

HUEY'S CHOICE BEATEN IN RUMP CONGRESS POLL

Foes of Kingfish Give Sanders Majority.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 27.—(AP)—With returns in tonight from approximately two-thirds of the precincts in the Sixth district independent congressional election J. Y. Sanders Jr., the only candidate, polled nearly three times as many votes as did Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp, who was declared elected Dec. 5 with the support of Senator Huey P. Long in a specially called election without a primary.

In 163 precincts of the 197 in the twelve parishes of the district Sanders received 13,588 votes, compared with 5,129 votes Mrs. Kemp received Dec. 5 in nine of the parishes, with three not voting under court injunction.

Mrs. Kemp's name was written in East Baton Rouge parish, where she received 16 votes today. John S. Nelson was given 3 votes, E. M. Whitman one, and "Amos and Andy" one vote. East Feliciana parish today also gave Mrs. Kemp one "written in" vote.

Borrow Ballot Boxes.

Ballot boxes were borrowed from the local authorities in the 12 parishes of the district by the revolting citizens who met Nov. 28 in Baton Rouge and set up their machinery by mass proclamation to protest the naming of Mrs. Kemp to the office by nomination of the Democratic executive committee and special election without a primary.

The name of Sanders, state senator, son of a former governor and veteran anti-Long leader in the state legislature, appeared alone on today's ballot. His backers appealed to the electorate "to rebuke" the administration and Senator Long by participating in the election.

They made a determined drive to get out a larger vote than the 5,129 total given Mrs. Kemp in the Dec. 5 voting. Voting was fairly brisk in most of the area, despite a cold, cloudy day.

Confers with Rainey.

As the district held its "protest election," Mrs. Kemp conferred in Washington with Speaker Rainey and other Democratic leaders on the matter of taking her seat next week, and Senator Long prepared to leave an embroiled political situation in New Orleans for Washington, ostensibly to aid her cause.

Sanders has already made plans to be in the national capital for the convening of congress to claim the Sixth district's seat.

SULTAN'S REALM

ONLY TWO JUDGES ELIGIBLE TO TRY TOUHY HOODLUMS

Roger Touhy and three henchmen, charged with kidnaping John Factor, wealthy speculator, were granted changes of venue yesterday when they appeared before Judge Harry B. Miller. The petitions were drawn by the gangsters with the aid of Attorney William Scott Stewart, who has represented Touhy in former trials, but who has not been retained in the kidnaping case. The petitions were presented by Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach.

Each defendant named two different judges of the Criminal court as prejudiced. Judges James F. Fardy and Michael Feinberg remain the only judges eligible to hear the case.

Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court announced that he would assign the case, which has been set for Jan. 2, to one of the two judges today. Judge Grover C. Niemeyer was disqualified because he was an assistant state's attorney at the time the kidnaping indictment was returned.

Besides Touhy the defendants are Edward [Father Tom] McFadden, Gustav [Gloomy Gus] Schafer, and Albert J. [Polly Nose] Kator. During the hearing Dr. Harry Hoffman of the Criminal court behavior clinic reported that he had examined McFadden and found him legally sane, but said that the gangster is a "border line case."

OUST CABINET TRYING TO CURB RULE OF SULTAN

Maldive Islanders Balk at Modern Ideas.

MALDIVE ISLANDS, Indian Ocean Archipelago, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Feeling ran high in this cluster of hundreds of Indian ocean islets today against zealous ministers who sought to modernize the ancient government of the archipelago and were forced to flee to Ceylon for the second time in less than a year.

(The Maldives lie about 400 miles southwest of Ceylon and about 250 miles north of the equator. The natives are great navigators and traders, their islands producing coconuts, fruits, nuts, and millet. The sultan pays a yearly tribute to the Ceylon government. Next to the sultan is the first wasir, or prime minister, then the fadiyaru or Kazi—chief judge—and 6 kilegefanus or councillors and besides them 6 wasirs or ministers of state.)

Overthrow Cabinet.

The Mohammedan population, comprising 79,000 persons, is determined to keep intact the absolute monarchy of their ruler, "the lord of a thousand isles," who overthrew the nation's first cabinet and drove four of the cabinet members into exile. They had tried to substitute a constitutional rule for the absolute authority of the sultan, Shamsudeen Iskander.

Three of the rebellious ministers were not allowed to land when they attempted to return aboard a government steamer. The fourth was permitted to visit his sick father, but was compelled to resign his office. They had brought with them the sultan's son, the Crown Prince Hassan Izzuden, who was permitted to land.

Election is Modern.

There is one modern feature of this strange, centuries old government—sultans are elected by popular vote although their candidacies are decided by hereditary right. The reformed code of the government, against which great opposition has been manifest, limits the scope of the ruler's powers.

KNITTING MANAGER IS FOUND GASSED TO DEATH IN A GARAGE

Beloit, Wis., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—John W. Amend, president and general manager of the Racine Feet Knitting company, was found dead in a garage adjoining his factory in South Beloit, Ill., this afternoon.

A doctor stated that death was caused by carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust of an automobile engine which was running at the time the body was found. The floor boards of the car had been removed. Resuscitation efforts of police and firemen failed.

Mr. Amend was born in Racine, Wis., July 21, 1875. After being connected with the Blake Knitting company of that city for some time, he came to Beloit as general manager of the Beloit branch. He became principal owner here 26 years ago.

Besides his home in South Beloit Mr. Amend owned a summer home at Lake Kegnosa and was a member of the Stoughton Country club, the Elks, and the Knights of Columbus. He gave liberally toward the building of St. Peter's Catholic church and parsonage in South Beloit and was chorister of that church for several years.

Survivors are the widow, a son, John Jr., who found the body when he went to the garage to ride home to lunch with his father; a daughter, Lillian, living at home, and a daughter, Mrs. Alfred Butz of Milwaukee; two sisters, Mrs. A. Anderson and Miss Lillian Amend of Racine, and two brothers, Albert of Detroit and Arthur of Racine.

OUIJA MURDER CHARGE TO BE FILED TODAY

St. Johns, Ariz., Dec. 27.—(AP)—The death of Ernest J. Turley, 47 year old retired naval officer, at the hands of his 15 year old daughter, will be charged by authorities to his attractive wife, who, they declared, influenced the girl to shoot her father so that "mother could marry a young cowboy."

J. Smith Gibbons, county attorney, prepared today a murder complaint against Mrs. Turley and said it would be filed tomorrow. He said a charge of first degree murder also may be filed against the daughter, Mattie, who declared she acted on command of an ouija board.

The girl testified that "the ouija board wrote out that I was to kill my father, and mother said the ouija board could not be denied."

BYRD BATTLES GALE; ICEBERGS SURROUND SHIP

ABOARD ADMIRAL BYRD'S FLAGSHIP OFF ANTARCTICA, Dec. 27.—(AP)—[Via Mackay radio.]—The flagship of the second Byrd antarctic expedition battled a northwest gale tonight in seas made treacherous by the presence of hundreds of icebergs.

So completely surrounded was the craft by bergs that visibility was often less than three miles, and every hundred yards gained into the wind brought to view another flotilla of ice mountains.

At noon the position of the flagship was put at latitude 66:18 south, longitude 140:23 west, or about 10 miles north of the main icepack. Since Saturday noon the ship had logged only 56 miles because of fog and gales. For nearly two hours this morning it lay all but drifting helplessly on a turbulent sea with scores of icebergs near it.

9 p. m.—Calumet vs. Hyde Park.

Eight more prep basketball teams, moving at a faster pace than the first eight, fought their way to the second round of the University of Chicago's holiday tournament yesterday. Two suburban teams, Blue Island and Bloom; two from the west section, McKinley and Marshall; three from the south, Parker, Calumet, and Hyde Park, and Roosevelt, representing the north division, survived the day's play.

The sixteen first round winners, from the upper bracket play of Tuesday and yesterday's concluding first round encounters, will meet today in eight second flight matches. The quarter-finalists will be determined by 10 p. m. The suburbs and the west section teams have shown to good advantage thus far. Five west section teams and four from the outskirts are in the second round. The critics pick La Grange, Morton, Bloom, and Roosevelt as outstanding. Three of last year's semi-finalists Roosevelt, McKinley, and Lane, are still in the running.

Hyde Park Lights to Rescue.

Marshall eliminated Lindblom in the first of the evening games with a clear superiority in floor play. Calumet upset Lake View, city heavyweight title holders last year, when George MacFarlane, coming into the game late, poked in two successive shots and then led another rally after Lake View had taken the lead in the third period on shots by Hans Kroeger.

Hyde Park's lightweight team, undefeated in eleven starts, came to the rescue of the heavies in the evening finale and outspeeded the Kelly quintet, which had built up an advantage over the Hyde Park big men. Kelly's defeat was the elimination of the last new senior high of five entered in the tournament.

Blue Island took a nip and tuck decision over Senn, 19 to 17, in the opening game of the day, when Haffner dropped in a long shot just before the timer's gun sounded. A tiny forward, Stone, kept Senn in the battle with six field goals.

Pignotti Leads Bloom.

The next game produced another diminutive sharpshooter in the person of Dino Pignotti of Bloom Township, who led his team to a convincing upset victory over the strong Riverside-Brookfield quintet, contributing six field goals and two free throws in the process. He was tied with Lynn Wimmer of Roosevelt for the day's scoring honors.

Parker staved off Waller's last half rush to win the third game and McKinley took a workmanlike routine decision over Fenger. Roosevelt, runnerup last year, but paced by Wimmer, a newcomer, used follow shots to

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The report of the stabilizing committee to the American Football Coaches' association yesterday at the Sherman hotel was one of the high points in the final session of the annual convention. Chairman H. J. Stegeman of the University of Georgia, using statistics from two southern intercollegiate conferences, first pointed out the brief tenure of football coaches and then offered a remedial program.

"The coaching profession," Mr. Stegeman said, "can never be made stable through legislation or propaganda. It must be made stable by being so worth while that the individuals become as indispensable to their institution as they are valuable to the football team."

Requirements to Be Met.

Educational requirements and salary limitations have been topics for agitation and discussion for several years, it was pointed out. As far as educational requirements, which last year became a part of the program of the North Central association of colleges, most coaches believe that these requirements will be met. No reference was made to the North Central in the report of the stabilizing committee.

In connection with Mr. Stegeman's report, the trustees of the coaches' association suggested that the president appoint a committee representative of the country as a whole, whose duty shall be to investigate through subcommittees all cases of dismissal of any of its members who feel that they have been dismissed unjustly, when requested by the dismissed coach.

The suggestion continues: "These reports shall be submitted to the whole committee for approval and when approved shall be submitted to the American Football Coaches' association for final approval. That full publicity shall be given in all cases to the findings of the committee when such findings indicate unfair treatment.

Association to Foot Bill.

"It is also suggested that a copy of the said findings shall be forwarded to the president of the college or university in question. The expense of these investigations shall be paid for by the association.

"Be it further resolved that the president of this association appoint a committee to communicate with the American Association of College and University Presidents with the purpose of raising the question of security and stability of the tenure of office of the football coach and all athletic coaches, and also of consideration of measures for elevating the whole field of athletics to a higher plane."

The trustees also recommended that Dana X. Bible of Nebraska, the incoming president of the association, appoint the investigation group.

The report of the honorary membership committee by Hugo Bezdek was voted on favorably by the trustees, and Dan McGugin of Vanderbilt, retiring president of the Coaches' association, was made honorary past president life member. The names of Maj. Frank Cavanaugh and Knute K. Rockne also were added to the honorary membership list.

Meet Again in December.

The 1934 convention of the coaches, according to action of the trustees, will be held Dec. 27 and 28 in the city selected by the National Collegiate Athletic association for its

HAWKS BATTLE TO KEEP HOME RECORD CLEAN

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago Blackhawks, feeling pretty pert as a result of having just completed their most successful trip in years, tonight will engage the Ottawa Senators on Stadium ice for the second time this season.

ART COULTER.

The Hawks haven't lost a National league game on their home ice this season. In fact, they have won six straight after being tied by the New York Americans in the season opener Nov. 9. Among their victories was that over the Senators, 2 to 1, on Nov. 19.

Three nights earlier, in Ottawa, the Hawks had trimmed the Senators, 2 to 1, and a week ago Tuesday they had the Senators beaten 2 to 1 during the overtime, but allowed a goal to slip through, the contest ending 2 to 2. Just for sentimental reasons the Hawks think it would be nice to win 2 to 1 tonight.

Lead U. S. Division.

By virtue of having marked up a total of six points out of a possible eight on their road trip which closed with a New York victory Tuesday night, the Hawks will go into tonight's contest leading the United States division of the National Hockey league by three points. Though they are three points out of second place, they are only five out of the cellar, which makes the situation very warm and one not likely to breed overconfidence.

The cast which Manager Frank Boucher will assign to the ice tonight will include Earl Roche, who is proving something of a miracle man. Early in the season the Senators asked waivers on Roche and nary a team claimed him, whereupon he was farmed to the Windsor Bulldogs. But not for long for Boucher recalled him after disposing of a star or two whom he accused of dogging it. The last official tabulations show Mr. Roche leading both divisions of the league in scoring, with a total of 17 points.

Coulter Ready for Action.

When the Blackhawks take the ice tonight, Art Coulter, fast defense man, will be back after a long absence made necessary by an injured knee. Duke Dutkowski, who subbed for Art, will go back to Syracuse.

Tonight's lineup:

BLACKHAWKS.		OTTAWA.

In the Wake of the News

WAKE LETTER BOX.

DEAR WAKE: In the publicizing of professional football much stress is being laid on the alleged greater scoring by the pros as compared to collegians.

In the Big Ten, or Western conference, scoring averaged 14 points per game. On the Pacific coast the average was 18 points. Taking the points scored against each other by Army, Princeton, Columbia, Pittsburgh, Harvard, Yale, Navy, Dartmouth, Cornell, and Pennsylvania, the total was 440 points in 29 games, an average of about 15 points.

Taking these 30 elevens, representative strong college teams, you find a total of 79 games for 1,213 points, average of 15 plus points. The pro figures, to which so much prominence was given, average 17 points. Not so much difference, is it?

These two points, in my opinion, can be attributed to the fact that the pro goal posts are at the goal lines instead of 10 yards farther back making the goals easier. Colleges moved back the goal posts to lessen danger of injuries from crashing into them from the field of play.

Now about attendance. In a Big Ten small college town this fall a game drew a gate of $150,000. The Bears-Giants championship pro final in the second largest city in the country drew slightly over $21,000 net.

I have no quarrel with pro football but it still has far to go to match college football in public interest.

Strictly Collegian.

I have not seen a record in football which surpasses that of Kirksville (Mo.) Teachers college. For the last two years our team has won 17 games, lost none and tied none. We scored 344 points to opponents' 40. In 1933 we won 9 straight, including a 26 to 6 victory over University of Missouri. We have won six M. I. A. A. championships in the last 6 years. Don Fourot, formerly of Missouri, is our coach. G. H. Jamison.

Happy Aftermath.

A shirt with a dearth of tail,
A lighter [???] with Aunty's kind regards,
And a fifth of synthetic ale.
'Kerchiefs and scarfs and sundry truck,
Heaped on the table there,
But I'll tell the world that I'm in luck—
I got a tie I can wear.

Out of the sheaf of gifts that came,
It shone like a happy light,
Setting my very pulse aflame
With the thought that the world is right.
All through the years I had hoped for this,
Hoped, alas, to despair;
What have I done to earn such bliss?

HELEN MOODY MAY BE ABLE TO COMPETE IN 1934

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, former queen of the tennis courts, is slowly conquering the back injury which forced her to give up the game and, it was learned today, her health is so much better she may be able to compete in 1934.

A displaced vertebrae caused her to default to Helen Jacobs in the national tournament last summer. Since her return home and subsequent discharge from a hospital she has adhered carefully to rules laid down by her physician-father, Dr. C. A. Wills.

"I am feeling much better and I am eager to get my hands on a racquet again," Mrs. Moody said. The doctor says I can't play tennis for a while, so I try to keep in condition by swimming almost every day. I'm not a good swimmer, but it is lots of fun and good exercise.

"I miss tennis. As soon as I can play again I am going to start conditioning myself for tournament play."

GOPHERS LOSE TO PITTSBURGH QUINTET, 28-23

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP)—A Big Ten basketball team from the University of Minnesota gave all it had tonight in an attempt to stop the Pitt Panthers, but finally went down in defeat. The score was 28 to 23.

Cribbs, Pitt center, and Norman, Minnesota's center, tied for scoring honors with eight points each. Cribbs made three goals and two free throws and Norman two goals and four free throws. Lineup:

DE PAUL MEETS GOPHERS

De Paul university's basketball team tonight will meet the University of Minnesota at the 132d Infantry armory, Madison and Rockwell streets.

In excellent condition for the contest, De Paul will seek its third straight victory of the season. The north siders had little trouble disposing of North Central and Nebraska in their first two games.

Although a regular last year and one of the biggest scorers on the squad, football injuries kept him from rounding into shape for the first two contests, in which he appeared in the rôle of substitute. Probable lineup:

Morgan was reported as completely recovered from his injury.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

ATTENDANCE at the second day of the National Coaches' association meeting was increased yesterday by a number of late arrivals, among them being Rip Miller of the Navy, Harry Stuhldreher of Villa Nova, Lieut. G. H. Davidson of the Army, Gus Dorais of Detroit, Harvey Harmon of Pennsylvania, and Jimmy Phelan of Washington. . . . Eddie Dooley, one of Dartmouth's greatest players, was around the lobby of the Sherman renewing acquaintances. . . . He now is a sports writer and radio announcer in Boston. . . . Harry Grabiner, vice president of the White Sox, and his family will leave today for three weeks' vacation at Miami Beach.

GAR DAVIDSON.

Fritz Crisler of Princeton and his aids, Tad Wieman and Earl Martineau, all former Big Ten players and coaches, were busy accepting congratulations from their Western conference friends yesterday. . . . They developed the only major football team in the country that was undefeated and untied this season. . . . John Heydler, president of the National league, and William Harridge, president of the American league, will meet with Tom Shibe, head of the A. J. Reach company, on Jan. 5 in Philadelphia to select a standard baseball for the major leagues. . . . They then will go to New York to draft the 1934 schdules . . Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic union, recently returned from a vacation in Panama.

George Huff, athletic director at Illinois, and W. O. Hunter, sports chief at Southern California, were together yesterday afternoon planning details of their football series which will open in 1935. . . . The biggest man on the Big Ten basketball floor is Chin Kamm, Illinois guard, who weighs 230 pounds and stands 6 feet 3 inches. . . . His twin brother, Jake, who weighs only 185 pounds, is his substitute. . . . Jimmy Crowley of Fordham and Elmer Layden of Notre Dame were riding down North Clark street last night when Jimmy spied an electric crab advertising a sea food restaurant. . . . "There, Elmer," said Mr. Crowley, "is one of your alumni." . . . Dr. Edward N. Anderson, football coach at Holy Cross, will do some medical research work at Harvard before returning to Chicago for the summer. . . . Ted Lyons, Sox pitcher, writes from Vinton, La., that he is nightly a listener to the W-G-N sports broadcasts. . . .

There will be quite a collection of football stars on the floor when Northwestern and Notre Dame basketball teams meet at Patten gym Saturday night. . . . Northwestern will have Manske, Kopecky, and Kawal, while Notre Dame will be represented by Krause, Elser, and Peters. . . . It will be homecoming for Culver Mills when the Illinois basketball team plays Knox at Galesburg tomorrow night. . . . That is his home town. . . . For the first time since he invaded Philadelphia in 1901 Connie Mack will not have a southpaw among his pitchers next year. . . . And he has had some great ones—Rube Waddell, Eddie Plank, Herb Pennock, Bob Grove, and Rube Walberg. . . . The Boston Red Sox will have five left handers—Grove, Walberg, Cestermueller, purchased from Rochester, Weiland and McLaughlin, recalled from Reading. . . .

Joe Guyon, former Carlisle star and now football coach at St. Xavier High school of Louisville, was telling a new story about Jim Thorpe at the coaches convention yesterday. . .This one was about a punt of Thorpe's that traveled 107 yards. . . It was made in a game between Canton, O., and the Chicago Bears in the early days of pro football. . . The ball was on Canton's one yard line and Thorpe dropped back into his end zone to punt. The footing where he had to kick was soggy, so he asked George Halas, captain of the Bears, if he could borrow ten yards to get firmer turf. . . Halas declined and Thorpe was thoroughly angered when he went back to kick. . . .Putting all the power of his 190 pounds into the effort, he sent the ball sailing through the air. . . It went over the heads of Sternaman, safety man, and rolled out of bounds on the Bears' three yard line.

Which led Charles W. Dunkley, news gatherer, to remark: "Now it's my turn to tell one."

BILL HAARLOW ELIGIBLE TO PLAY WITH MAROONS

University of Chicago basketball prospects rose to something like par last night when Bill Haarlow sophomore forward, was informed that he had attained eligibility. Haarlow passed a comprehensive examination covering a year's work in American history to complete the eligibility requirements.

An ambidextrous shooter, Haarlow established a Chicago prep record for scoring during his three years at Bowen. During that period he piled up more than 1,200 points in competition, averaging 23.5 points per game. In his final appearance for Bowen two years ago, with Morgan Park as opponent, he personally accounted for 52 points.

Haarlow was the star of the Maroon frosh last year, expert on general ball handling, as well as marksmanship. At Bowen he was captain of the baseball, golf, and fencing teams, and twice captain of basketball. He will play his first game for Chicago tomorrow night against Marquette.

STANFORD DRILLS FOR ROSE BOWL CUT TO ONE DAILY

Cripples Appear Likely to Get in Game.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Stanford football players left the two-a-day workouts behind them today and from now until the New Year's game with Columbia in the Rose Bowl will be content to practice once each day.

The morning workout was little more than tossing the ball around, but the drill gained momentum in the afternoon. Coach Tiny Thornhill seemed confident the Indians would be in tiptop shape next Monday. Some of the cripples may not be in the pink, but most of them should be able to play a part of the game.

Monk Moscrip's leg injury appeared slightly improved today and Lyle Smith, who probably will start at the other end, had a sore shoulder.

Bates May Replace Muller.

Two hurriedly reformed tackles were being made ready for emergency duty at the flanks and Ben Palamountain and Harry Carlson are likely to act in relief rôles. They may have to wait, however, until Alex Trompas, a light but fast player from San Diego, and Dave Packard from Pueblo, Colo., show what they can do.

The Stanford coaches were busy, too, warming up extra centers. With Wes Muller probably out of the line-up, it was possible Bill Bates might be called on to go through. Lee Blanchard, however, has shown himself a first class defensive center, and Alf Brandin, a big, fast Pasadena boy, can be used if necessary.

An ankle injury has kept Brandin out all year. If he plays New Year's day it will cost him a season of eligibility. Brandin is said to be one of the best men on the Stanford squad at breaking up passes.

LIONS TEST ALL PLAYS

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Columbia's football team cleared the last high hurdle today in its preparations for the battle with Stanford, New Year's day, driving vigorously through a final hard workout.

"Whatever can be done in the way of drilling football tactics into my boys has been done," Coach Lou Little announced. "From now on we are going to worry more about getting them to a fine mental and physical edge for the game Monday."

Columbia Works Late.

The Lions took to the gridiron late in the afternoon and worked through all their plays. The flood lights were shining on the goal posts of the University of Arizona field before they finished.

Much time was again given to defense work, especially rushing the kicker on both punts and quick kicks. Columbia has no idea of allowing the Indians to get the jump with Frank Alustiza's quick kicks.

Workout Time to Be Cut.

The remaining workouts will decrease in time and effort as the squad tapers off. Afternoon drills will be held tomorrow and Friday and the final practice here is scheduled for Saturday forenoon. On arrival at Pasadena the team will go to the Rose Bowl for a light, final workout, the main idea being to allow the players to orient themselves and get the feel of the turf.

Wagner Leads Mt. Pulaski to 36-24 Victory

Pontiac, Ill., Dec. 27.—[Special.]—The corn belt of Illinois was getting ready today to send another of its youths to star in the college ranks after the completion of the first day's play in the annual Pontiac holiday basketball tournament which attracts the high school quintets from the small towns surrounded by corn fields.

The potential collegiate star, John Wagner, 6 foot 6 inches, made eight field goals and two free throws into the hoops to lead Mount Pulaski to a 36 to 24 victory over Stanford, high scoring quintet which led at the half, 15 to 14. The strong Stanford team failed to stop the tall center as he swept down the court to score basket after basket.

The opening's day play also marked the defeat of Springfield, annually a strong contender. Springfield used its second team for three quarters and when Dwight rallied, the regulars went in only to be defeated, 14 to 13.

Today's hottest battles are likely to be those between Morton and Austin, at 3 p. m., and Parker and McKinley, at 7 p. m. Morton's quintet, with two men who played on the team which won the midwest tournament two years ago, is smooth and rugged. Austin is tall, fast, and spirited, and has a good 6 foot 5 inch center in Jack Drees. Parker, though it had trouble with Waller yesterday, has great height, particularly in the person of Leonard Rumpf, 6 foot 6 inch center, and appears promising. In facing McKinley, Parker will be matched today against one of the smallest and cleverest teams in the meet.

FORESTERS OPEN WEST DIVISION PLAY TONIGHT

The west division of the Catholic Order of Foresters basketball league will open play tonight at the west side clubhouse, 4711 Madison street, with three league games. It will be "Joseph Donovan Night" in honor of the State Chief Ranger of the Foresters. Many former college and prep stars will be in the lineups of the various teams, including Charles [Feed] Murphy, formerly of Loyola university, who will play center for the Holy Ghost quintet. The schedule:

7 p. m.—St. Patrick's vs. Monarchs.
8 p. m.—Amphion Girls vs. Kilmer Trees [exhibition.].
9 p. m.—Holy Ghost vs. S. Aloysius.
10 p. m.—Holy Family vs. St. Thomas Aquinas.

Badgers to Meet Canadian Hockey Team Tonight

Chicago will have its first view of international intercollegiate hockey tonight when the University of Wisconsin sextet meets the Queens university team of Kingston, Ont., at the Coliseum. Play will start at 8:30 o'clock.

The six from Kingston, where, it is said, ice hockey originated, includes on its roster some of the outstanding amateur athletes in the dominion. Paddy Patterson, brother of George Patterson of the New York Americans of the National Hockey league; Pete Peterson, Spider Wing, and Jimmy James are mainstays.

A comparison of the records gives the Canadians the edge over the Badgers, but the latter have been training diligently and have in Silvian one of the outstanding college goal tenders in the country. The Quinn, Maxwell, Muther forward line compares favorably with that of the visitors. Maxwell, the center, is a Canadian and the team's high scorer.

In a preliminary game the Litsingers will meet the Roosevelt Bluebirds. Both are members of the Community league. It will start at 7 o'clock.

SCHMELING ASKS SHOT AT WINNER OF STADIUM BOUT

Max May Have to Wait; Baer Has First Chance.

The international heavyweight boxing match between King Levinsky, Chicago, and Don McCorkindale, Great Britain, at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night was given additional importance yesterday.

Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, announced that the former champion is available for a bout with the winner of the Levinsky-McCorkindale ten rounder. Inasmuch as negotiations for a Schmeling-Tommy Loughran contest fell through, Max has postponed his arrival in this country from Europe until the middle of next month.

Although the announcement from New York cheered Stadium Operating company officials, Schmeling may have to await his turn, for Max Baer already has agreed to a match with Levinsky or McCorkindale.

Schmeling Fifth in List.

This is an unusual procedure in the case of Baer for he is the leading contender, being rated second to Champion Primo Carnera. A loss to Levinsky, who is listed fourth in the current ratings, or McCorkindale, who is seventh, would jeopardize his chances for a title contest.

With Schmeling it may be different. After his knockout by Baer at New York his standing was lowered and he is fifth. A victory over Friday's winner would place him right back among the elite of the heavyweight division.

When asked whether Levinsky would meet Schmeling or Baer, Mrs. Lena Levy, sister-manager of Levinsky, exclaimed: "Meet them? Sure, one right after the other!"

Hopes to Meet Primo Again.

McCorkindale's reason for visiting this country is no secret. He hopes to fight his way to another bout with Champion Carnera. Carnera was awarded a 15 round decision over Don last year at London.

Levinsky finished boxing yesterday by going three rounds, two with Larry Johnson and one with Ed Wills. He concentrated on infighting with Johnson, but against Wills unleashed swings all over the ring, most of them landing on the partner's head, back, and shoulders.

McCorkindale did only light exercises. He will rest today, while Levinsky will do bag punching, shadow boxing, rope skipping, and calisthenics. Don weighed 194 yesterday, one pound more than he expects to be against Levinsky. King was at 209, two more than his probable weight tomorrow.

Pacek Adds Weight.

John Pacek has put on nine pounds since he knocked out Pat Mulligan of Ireland in the International Golden Gloves bouts at Soldiers' field last July. He was at 176 against Mulligan. He may weigh 185 when he makes his professional debut in a preliminary match with Frank Ketter.

Grid Coaches Are Urged to Protect Jobs

Further action of the trustees empowered the secretary of the coaches' association to rearrange the districts of the association according to his best judgment. At present there are nine districts. The secretary also was given authority to print the 1934 membership booklet.

The seven suggestions made by Harry Kipke of Michigan, chairman of the committee on football rules and rules changes, which were announced Tuesday, were referred to a committee of fifteen college coaches and five allied members from high schools and prep schools, acting as advisory rules committee to the N. C. A. A. rules committee, of which Lou Little of Columbia is chairman. This committee will be appointed by Dana Bible.

Committee to O. K. Seven.

The seven suggestions will be considered by this committee and they will recommend or fail to recommend as they see fit these suggestions to the national football rules committee.

In the report of the stabilizing committee by Mr. Stegeman he pointed out six reasons why coaches lose their jobs. His summary follows:

"1. Coaches who did not join the college family. They did not become acquainted with the campus faculty so that when the crisis arrived the faculty committee could not or was not willing to pull them through.

"2. Coaches who failed to add anything to their communities. The college group was sympathetic, but the downtown crowd got them. They never spoke before a civic organization and were out of sympathy with all this because they called it small town stuff.

"3. Coaches who failed to see the advantage of placing themselves at the disposal of the university administration officials. In such matters as discipline, morale, class attendance, and general attitude toward work the football coach can be of tremendous value. The university president and the deans were forced to turn to the assistant coaches to handle these squad problems and the assistant now has the job.

"4. Coaches who suffered from specialization. To these men all other college sports were minor sports and all men coaching teams other than football were being paid too much and they received too little. Their players became specialists and were all opposed to intramural athletics. No football player ever was developed in this way, they said. Football money was paying for these unnecessary activities and they had earned all the money. These coaches crabbed their own act.

"5. Coaches who never were courteous to those who were associated with football. They insisted on secret practices and excluded those who later might have helped the coach, but wouldn't.

"6. Coaches who took themselves too seriously. They were a pain in the neck to every one. They built up a serious situation and every one became serious. They were too hard to live with to make it worth while."

Mr. Stegeman then proposed that football coaches should make themselves invaluable to their departments, so that it would be difficult to remove them. A coach enhances his position if he coaches more than one sport.

Coaches Select Stanford to Win Rose Bowl Game

Most of them agreed, however, with Fritz Crisler of Princeton, who looked for a close game during the first three periods and a victory for Stanford in the final.

"I think Stanford will wear Columbia down in the first three quarters and then go on to win easily in the fourth," Crisler said. "But it's a football game, you know, and anything may happen."

Coach Veenker was talking about blocking yesterday when he mentioned the ability of the Cornhuskers to take their man out.

"That's a tough team to play over at Nebraska," he sighed. "They've got everything year after year and can block like wizards, and if they do miss their man, along comes that wind and blows a couple down for 'em."

Dr. John Mohardt, one time famous Notre Dame half back, now practicing medicine in Chicago, was about the premises renewing acquaintances with former teammates now in the coaching profession.

D. O. McLaughry of Brown was chairman of a committee which took the prize for the longest title. It was a special committee to study ways and means of making the association more beneficial to its members.

Former Minnesota men who have risen to high positions in the football coaching profession threaten to rival the extensive Notre Dame group.

Among the ex-Minnesotans who assembled at yesterday's meeting were Ossie Solem, Iowa; Earl Martineau, Princeton; Clark Shaughnessy, Chicago, and Bernie Bierman and George Houser, Minnesota incumbents.

Only Don Miller was missing from the gathering of three of Notre Dame's Four Horsemen. Elmer Layden, new chief of the Irish; Harry Stuhldreher of Villa Nova, and Jim Crowley of Fordham exchanged greetings. Miller, now practicing law in Cleveland, is the only member of the celebrated quartet who is not in the coaching profession.

Hugo Bezdek of Penn State regaled members with stories of football's early days. He was one of the University of Chicago's early grid heroes.

Charlie Berry, former White Sox catcher, now with the Philadelphia Athletics, hobnobbed with his friends among the eastern coaches. Charlie was an all-American end at Lafayette college during his playing days a few years ago.

Col. Nelson Kellogg, former athletic director at Purdue and now director at Lehigh university, dropped in to exchange greetings with the authors in the press headquarters yesterday. He reported that he is enjoying his new surroundings in the east and is certain that his new football coach, Glen Harmeson of Purdue, will click at Lehigh.

The Big 6 conference was represented by four head coaches. Those present were Dana X. Bible, Missouri; George Veenker, Iowa State; Bo McMillan, Kansas State, and Ad Lindsey of Kansas.

How football can be speeded up, giving the game a greater thrill for both the players and the spectators, is the subject Coach D. O. [Tuss] McLaughry of Brown will discuss at a special football dinner to be held tonight at the Chicago Athletic association by the Brown University Club of Chicago. Motion pictures of the Brown-Yale game will illustrate the talk.

Benny Bass Beats Cool; Keeps Pennsylvania Title

McGugin Cites Classroom as Sports Basis

In his address yesterday before the American Football Coaches' association, D. E. McGugin of Vanderbilt university, retiring president, stressed two factors which he said would keep intercollegiate athletics "wholesome and sound."

"First," Mr. McGugin said, "is the proper preparation for college, as evidenced by ample and suitable scholastic entrance standards, and, secondly, full and proper scholastic performance after entrance. Most of the things for which football has been criticized will fade from the picture if these two regulations are observed."

Blames Board, Prexy.

The president of the coaches' association also placed the blame for recruiting and subsidizing of athletes and responsibility for proper conditions surrounding intercollegiate athletics on the administrative board of the college and its president.

"Nobody knows better than the coach where the responsibility for recruiting and subsidizing lies," Mr. McGugin said. "Where a coach has been active in recruiting it is because he has been employed by the college to do it. It is childish and foolish to blame the coach for it. Recruiting and subsidizing are on the wane. Perhaps the depression has had something to do with this, as it has made our men more earnest with fewer cases of ineligibility through scholastic deficiency, and probably it is being realized that these things do not pay.

Game Is Incidental.

"The primary function of a college is to help fit men to enter upon life with character, enthusiasm, knowledge and power—a capacity for honorable leadership. The game of football is, of course, merely an incident in college life. It is purely secondary. It is never to interfere with the class room duties and obligations of the student. During the past ten years the game has suffered in the respect of students and in public estimation because a few institutions have made the game primary and have deliberately set about it as something to be built up and made important.

"Football is a great game, vital in the lives of the lads of the nation. It is a laboratory where boys may develop and demonstrate physical and moral courage, unselfishness, enthusiasm, loyalty and self-effacement. It gives the boys a cause. Its field is the most democratic place in the world, where race, religion, politics, poverty or riches, cut no figure—where a boy is judged for what he does and for what he is."

Grid Coaches End Meeting with Banquet

The American Football Coaches' association ended its convention last night with the annual banquet. Harry G. Kipke of Michigan was the toastmaster and Nathaniel Leverone of Dartmouth introduced the guests at the speakers' table. Among these were L. W. St. John, Ohio State; Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics of the Western conference; William Bingham, Harvard; Hugo Bezdek, Pennsylvania State; William Cowell, New Hampshire; Bernie Bierman, Minnesota; Gil Dobie, Cornell; Jimmy Crowley, Fordham; James Weber Linn; Col. H. B. Hackett; Dr. James Marks, Fielding H. Yost, Michigan; Walter Okeson, chairman of the football rules committee; William Alexander, Georgia Tech; Dan McGugin, Vanderbilt, and Bill Stricklin, Huntington, W. Va.

Officers for the coming year in addition to Dana X. Bible of Nebraska, president, are: Bernie Bierman, first vice president; Eddie Casey, Harvard, second vice president; D. O. McLaughry, Brown, third vice president; William Cowell, secretary treasurer. The president of the coaches' association of the Pacific coast will be named the fourth vice president of the national association. The trustees for 1934 will be Harry Kipke, Harry Stuhldreher, Lou Little and Alvin N. (Bo) McMillan.

President Bible appointed a committee of four to meet with the rules committee at New York in February to present the coaches' suggestions for changes in the playing code. He named Noble Kizer, Purdue; Lou Little, Columbia; W. A. Alexander, Georgia Tech, and Orin E. Hollingberry, Washington State.

Baby Ruths End Classic Race with 2 Victories

The Baby Ruths last night finished their successful race for the first half championship of the Classic Bowling league by taking two games from the Budweiser team. The Ruths, with the help of a 1,100 game, totaled 3,117.

GUESTS SPEND $24,500,000 AT 72 HOTELS HERE

World's Fair Draws 1,478 Conventions.

Figures made public yesterday show a total of $24,500,000 in room and food sales in 72 Chicago hotels during the five months of A Century of Progress, an increase of 133 per cent over the corresponding period of 1932.

The information was contained in a survey submitted by Horwath & Horwath, hotel accountants, to William J. Hennessy, convention manager of the Chicago Association of Commerce. The 72 hotels cared for approximately 60,000 guests daily during the Fair period, the survey, prepared by Paul Simon, showed.

Better Than 1929.

"The pickup is general in hotels throughout the country," Mr. Simon said, "but, of course, Chicago led all other cities until November. The high months of the Fair showed a higher average room occupancy here than even 1929, the biggest hotel year in history. Chicago's record influenced the average of the country greatly."

Supplementing the survey, Mr. Hennessy estimated that a total of $95,338,200 had been brought to Chicago by the 1,596,000 visitors to the 1,478 conventions held in Chicago during the year. A total of 1,286 of the conventions were held during the Fair period.

800 Meetings Next Year.

Year—	Conventions.	Attendance.
1929	845	1,335,435
1930	811	1,175,103

NO CONSPIRACY SEEN IN PRODUCE DISTRICT SETUP

Master's Ruling Erases Reorganization Bars.

BY AL CHASE.

Master in Chancery Wirt Humphrey of the Superior court yesterday dismissed the bill of complaint brought some time ago by 23 of the 186 merchants in the Chicago Produce district charging conspiracy between the bondholders' protective committee, Melvin S. Straus, trustee for the bondholders, Hugh McLennan, Benedict K. Goodman and others. Master Humphrey declared that the complainants were not entitled to relief, that no conspiracy had been found and further that the complainants should pay the costs.

According to Bernard Nath of the law firm of Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson & Morse, who represented the bondholders' committee, the end of this litigation erases all objections to the reorganization plan already completed.

No Complaints for 7 Years.

The Chicago Produce district was financed by an $8,000,000 bond issue underwritten by S. W. Straus & Co. Master Humphrey in his decision calls attention to the fact that although the original contracts were entered into in 1925 by the merchants, they made no complaints as to their legality until 1932.

"In other words, they were all right for seven years and then these twenty-three merchants suddenly found they were all wrong," said Mr. Nath.

The bill of complaint filed by the 23 merchants declared that the property was bought for the benefit of all the merchants and that the promoters, Goodman and McLennan, were only agents and not acting for themselves. The master's finding states that Goodman and McLennan were not agents but principals and that no one of the merchants had any interest except those two.

Merchants in Arrears.

In addition to finding no basis for any kind of a conspiracy, the master states that he found all 23 of the complaining merchants are in arrears in payments on their contracts, ranging from a few thousands up to $15,000. He also found that with few exceptions the complaining merchants have failed to pay their taxes.

Mr. Nath stated that the suit was brought by only a small minority of the commission merchants and that a large majority of the merchants, including all the important commission houses, have cooperated with the bondholders and in return have been given new contracts calling for substantially lower payments.

LARD BUYING IS HEAVIER AND PRICES MOVE HIGHER

Buying orders for lard and bellies were more numerous and offerings were only moderate yesterday. The trade improved with a decidedly better tone on the part of holders, despite lower prices for hogs.

At the close old January lard was up 12½ cents, and May 15 cents. New contracts for lard were 10 to 22½ cents higher, July and September leading in strength.

Old style bellies were up 5 to 10 cents and new style 2½ to 15 cents, the latter on December.

Cash bellies were unchanged at 5.50 cents, with a better general trade in meats. Cash lard advanced 12½ cents, with regular 4.90 cents, loose 4.50 cents, and leaf 4.62½ cents.

Fresh pork loins were in better request at 8 to 10 cents.

In the Liverpool lard market prices were up 1s 3d to 1s 6d. Export clearances from New York were larger, 2,317,326 pounds, and of bacon 64,000 pounds. Prices:

SPAIN STRIKES AT U. S. EXPORTS; ADOPTS QUOTA

Explains Act as Move for Self-Protection.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Dec. 27.—Spain subscribed today to what is called "the economic madness of the age" and clapped the quota system on imports, which particularly hits the United States.

To the surprise of importers, the decree was signed by President Niceto Alcala Zamora and appeared in the official gazette, which states in the preamble that, because Spanish exports have fallen off by one-half and are sinking rapidly, Spain is obliged to abandon her "traditionally liberal theory" and adhere to the new doctrine of "I buy from whom buys from me," so as not to be swept entirely from international markets.

To Fix Quotas at Once.

The ministers of foreign affairs and commerce are authorized to fix quotas at once and enter immediately into negotiations with countries, "preferably those with which Spain had an adverse trade balance," and, by partial or total amendment of treaties or denunciation of them, exploit the trading possibilities of the quota system ruthlessly.

As it is with the United States that Spain has one of the biggest adverse balanaces, the decree will play havoc with American trade, which last year was $26,000,000, against $11,000,000 of Spanish products sold in America.

The move is an attempt to strengthen Madrid's hand in negotiations with Washington for a trade treaty to replace the modus vivendi. This is barely operative, but the new decree could sweep American products out entirely.

The system will be of "high discriminatory character," the decree warns. The most favored nation clauses that stand in the way will be denounced. Licenses will be issued to individual importers.

France Drops Tax on Britain.

PARIS, Dec. 27.—(AP)—France, under threat of reprisals by England, took off the 15 per cent exchange surtax on British goods today. The official reason given was that "English money can be considered stable."

It thereby became certain such a tax would not be imposed on American goods, as seemed probable several months ago, when a decree to that effect was prepared, but never signed.

A slash of three-fourths in French import quotas, giving the government a bargaining weapon in reciprocal trade negotiations for the withheld portion, was expected Jan. 1.

Tax Selling.

Investors' Guide: Kindly define the term "tax selling," its purpose, and when conducted — that is, what months.—D. A.

Answer: "Tax selling" is the term ordinarily applied to sale of securities at a loss in order to establish deductable losses for income tax purposes.

A trader, for instance, might, after a profitable year, be carrying a few stocks toward the close of the year at prices under his purchase price. He might sell these for the sole purpose of establishing a loss for income tax purposes to offset some of his other gains. That would be a "tax sale." He would have to sell them to establish such loss because the federal government does not recognize "paper profits" or "paper losses."

Although the income tax law provides that for a limited period of time he cannot repurchase in the securities in which he took his loss there is nothing to prevent him from reinvesting his funds in other securities.

EXPORT RECORD FOR NOVEMBER BEST IN 3 YEARS

1933 Total Trade in First Gain Since '29.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—A seasonal decline of about 5 per cent reduced the value of November exports to $184,000,000, or nearly $10,000,000 less than for October, while imports, valued at $128,000,000, declined nearly $23,000,000 during the same period, according to figures made public today by the commerce department.

Notwithstanding the decline, the month's exports were valued at 33 per cent, or $45,000,000, more and imports at 23 per cent or $23,000,000 more than for November, 1932. The resulting favorable balance of $56,000,000 was the largest for any month since January, 1931.

Best Record Since 1929.

In addition, the November trade brought the total of exports and imports for the first eleven months to a point higher than for the corresponding period last year and assured an increase over the preceding calendar year for the first time since the decline began in 1929.

The November export total of $184,050,000 compared with $193,734,000 for October, while last month's imports valued at $138,000,000 compared with $150,856,000 for the previous month.

For the first eleven months this year, exports totaled $1,482,764,000 as against $1,479,402,000 for the corresponding period last year, and $1,611,016,000 for the whole of 1932. Imports for the eleven months of 1933 reached $1,315,497,000 compared with $1,225,687,000 for the corresponding period last year and $1,322,774,000 for the calendar year 1932.

Loss Less Than Seasonal.

Seasonal declines in the exports of such commodities as cotton and tobacco usually result in a decline of about 6 per cent in the value of export trade between October and November and the decline this year was thus slightly less than seasonal. Imports, on the other hand, showed a much greater than seasonal falling off, the normal downward movement amounting to only about 2 per cent.

November marked the third consecutive month of advance in the seasonally adjusted index of export values prepared by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. For imports, however, it was the third consecutive month of decrease since the marked contraseasonal expansion during the summer. From its low point in February, March, and April of this year the seasonally adjusted index of export values has risen about 50 per cent and in November was at 42 per cent of its 1923-'25 average.

Bankers Fear RFC to Force Poor Investments in Rails

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Dispatches from Washington bringing word that Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, expects the banks to help finance railroad bond issues maturing during 1934 caused consternation in banking circles yesterday.

There are three ways in which a bank could aid a railroad in raising funds to meet bond maturities. It could underwrite a bond issue and sell the bonds to the public; buy the bonds itself for its own bond investment account or make a straight bank loan to the railroad company.

* *

The new federal securities law, the bankers say, has divorced investment banking from commercial banking. It has taken the commercial banks out of the bond business. Most of the big banks have either placed their bond selling affiliates in liquidation or confined their activities strictly to dealings in municipal bond issues. Thus the marketing of railroad bond issues by the banks is considered out of the question.

The possibility that the banks will buy railroad bonds in sufficient quantities to take care of the hundreds of millions of maturing issues is similarly remote. The banks have just undergone a drastic cleaning out process. National bank examiners were sent out this fall to write down all questionable or slow assets to the lowest possible figures. When this job was done such large additional reserves had to be set up by the banks to cover these enforced writedowns that capital funds in many cases were depleted and the Reconstruction Finance corporation was able to rush into the breach and force the banks to sell preferred stock or capital notes to the RFC to provide themselves with additional capital.

Most of the railroads which have maturing issues to meet in 1934 are not in a position to offer bonds that would enhance the quality of a bank's investment account. The bankers are inclined to reason, therefore, that if they are called upon to buy quantities of such bonds they might be merely loading up with some more questionable investments, against which they might, at some future date, again be called upon to set up reserves and sell some more preferred stock to the RFC.

Giving the railroads additional bank funds in the form of short term bank loans would, the bankers believe, create the same situation. Loans might be made to the railroads for 60 or 90 day periods, but there would be no assurance that when the loans matured the roads could pay them. Such loans, they say, would be like loans to Germany where short term loans have been made into long term loans because creditors had no other choice.

* *

Even the railroads in good financial condition would have difficulty in selling bonds to the investing public as long as the monetary outlook is uncertain and more inflation is a possibility.

The problem of what to do for the railroads with maturing bond issues, therefore, rests between the banks and the RFC. The RFC, according to Washington dispatches, is willing to advance part of the money, but looks to the banks to provide the rest.

The extent to which the banks may provide funds for needy railroads may depend upon the amount of pressure applied to them by the RFC. This pressure could be potent if the RFC should choose to exercise some of the power in banking affairs that it derives by its recent acquisition of part ownership in nearly one-third of the nation's banks.

Told that Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, had said in Washington yesterday that there was nothing for the First National Bank of Englewood to do but to go along with the government's deposit insurance plan, President J. M. Nichols said last night he "guessed Cummings was probably right."

"The government may be able to force us in," Mr. Nichols said, "but we shall let them come to us and make us get in. We feel there is a moral issue involved and we propose to fight.

"If the government gets too tough we have an alternative that it can't do anything about. We can shut up our bank and pay off our depositors dollar for dollar.

"If the government doesn't want good banks in this country we can't help it. We refuse to run a poor bank. When it comes to that I imagine the 17,000 depositors of this bank will have something to say. Our congressmen will find out how our people will feel."

Mr. Nichols caused a sensation with his announcement on Tuesday that he did not propose to participate in the government's plan to insure bank deposits unless he was "coerced into doing so."

POWER OUTPUT SHOWS FURTHER GAIN OVER 1932

The margin which national electricity production maintained last week over production for the like week of 1932 was increased to 6.6 per cent, from 5.2 for the preceding week.

The aggregate output amounted to 1,656,616,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 1,554,473,000 in the corresponding period of last year and 1,644,018,000 in the preceding week, the Edison Electric institute reports.

In every major district save New England, the comparison with output at the same time last year was improved.

CAPITAL BOOST BY AM. NATIONAL BANK REPORTED

The American National Bank and Trust company, 33 North La Salle street, will increase its present capital $1,000,000 to $1,750,000 through the issuance of preferred stock, it is understood. The increase will be made because of the recent substantial increase in the bank's deposits and will involve no writedown of the bank's assets, it is said.

The bank reported deposits of $13,015,000 at the last bank call on Oct. 25, giving a deposit-capital ratio of 13 to 1. The increase in deposits since then has widened this spread, and the contemplated increase in capital is being made in accordance with the policy favored by the Chicago clearing house.

Under the plan it is anticipated that the preferred stock which will be sold to the RFC will be retired out of earnings in three years. The bank has $400,000 of surplus and undivided profits.

STOCK PIVOTALS SPURT IN MORE ACTIVE TRADING

List Rallies Sharply in Heavy Trading.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 27.—With no more apparent reason for the faith within them than the common hope of a new business deal for the new year now only four days in the offing, traders switched over to the bull side of the stock market today. Buying was broad and active throughout the session, the largest number of issues in weeks being traded in and volume mounting to 3,075,000 shares, the biggest day's business since Sept. 22.

Price mark-ups of 1 and 2 points were generous enough to give the list a strong forward looking front all along the line. Some selling for tax loss purposes appeared at intervals to slow up the advance, but after the first hour the market as a whole was kept pretty steadily pointing toward higher ground. This was the last day on which deliveries on "tax sales" could be made in the regular way.

Pivotal Issues Strongest.

Most of today's selling for that account was, as on yesterday, in the second grade issues. As a result the most impressive show of strength appeared in such pivotal issues as American Can, Public Service, Johns-Manville, American Telephone, Atchison, Consolidated Gas, and the like.

By groups industrials, utilities, and specialty shares were the best performers, with railroads content to play runner-up in the recovery from yesterday's reaction. The power and light issues made their best showing in a long time. The gains of these issues were more pronounced even than appeared on the final prices as most of them had dipped to new lows for the year under the weight of tax selling during the first hour or so of business.

Motor Leaders Advance.

Chrysler and General Motors, the two big time pacemakers of the automobile division were bright spots in the list. The near approach of the annual automobile shows with improved new models is stirring up the customary year-end interest in automobile stocks.

Steel shares had their ups and downs, but most of them came out on top in appropriate recognition of the better times supposed to be coming the way of the industry. Big Steel sold above the 47 point level, but fell back to close behind a minus mark in the end.

The mining shares were mixed. Homestake took the count for six points, but U. S. Smelting and American Smelting registered gains.

Prince to Lead Group Ruling Armour & Co.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Conjecture over the attitude of the federal government toward the entrance of Frederick H. Prince, Boston financier and principal stockholder of the Union Stockyards, into the management of Armour & Co. is causing neither Mr. Prince nor his associates any anxiety.

Prince is slated to become either chairman of the company's finance committee or executive committee following the annual meeting of stockholders to be held Jan. 26. Such a step will put him in a dominant position in one of the biggest packing firms, while he will continue as the chief owner of the stockyards.

Operate Under Consent Decree.

The packers are still operating under the famous consent decree of 1920, by which they are forbidden to hold shares in stockyards. Repeated unsuccessful attempts have been made by the packers to upset the decree.

Prince's associates, however, declare that his election to the Armour post is clearly no violation of the decree. There is nothing in the decree, it is asserted, which forbids an individual to own stock in both the yards and a packing firm, or even to hold important positions with both enterprises.

It is assumed in financial quarters that the question has already been taken up with the department of justice and the Agricultural Adjustment administration, and has been decided in favor of Prince. Neither Prince nor his associates will admit this, however.

Expect Wiggin to Retire.

Eventual retirement of Albert H. Wiggin, former chairman of the board of the Chase National bank, as a member of the Armour finance committee is expected. The finance committee has in reality been the executive committee of the company since the post-war reorganization.

Under the new setup the executive committee, provided for by the company's bylaws, may again become an executive committee in fact. In any eventuality, Prince will become chairman of the committee, which actually runs the company.

T. George Lee, president, and rated as a topnotch operating executive, will continue in his present position, it is said.

Meanwhile, the reorganization of the company's unwieldy capital structure will be held in abeyance until the annual meeting is out of the way and the new board of directors is elected.

J. R. Thompson Dividend Meeting Postponed to Jan. 5

The meeting of the board of directors of John R. Thompson company, which was to consider the quarterly dividend on the capital stock yesterday, was postponed until Jan. 5 because a quorum was lacking.

Two of Lawndale's Banks to Be Consolidated Dec. 30

The Lawndale National bank, 3337 West 26th street, and the Lawndale State bank, 3205 West 22d street, will be consolidated as of Dec. 30, officials of the Lawndale announced yesterday.

OUTLYING BANKS GIVE FIGURES ON GUARANTY PLAN

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

With bank deposits up to $2,500 to be guaranteed after Jan. 1 through the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, the heads of a number of outlying banks yesterday expressed the belief that there will be a decided transfer of accounts from the postal savings bank to community institutions. Prior to and following the national bank holiday of last spring, the postal savings bank gained a considerable number of depositors.

Officials of the outlying banks say they expect that their deposits in general will show a substantial gain.

Following the publishing of reports submitted by a number of Chicago banks on their accounts to the deposit insurance corporation at Washington, other establishments disclosed their insurance deposit figures yesterday.

The insurance corporation will announce the names of the banks which will participate in the plan later.

REVEAL POWER OVER LOOP BANK GIVEN RESERVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—A change in the management of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company was demanded by the federal reserve board as a condition for allowing the bank to revamp its capital structure, it was learned today.

The RFC, which took over 50 million dollars' worth of the bank's preferred stock when the capital structure was revised some weeks ago, now has a controlling interest and can dictate the reorganization.

Expect Directorate Changes.

Reports here today indicated that several new directors would be chosen for the bank and several old directors retired when the stockholders meet Jan. 12.

Rumors that Walter J. Cummings, head of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, who expects to leave that post Jan. 15 or thereabouts, would become chairman of the bank were current here again today.

On the other hand, a group of the directors are understood to be backing George A. Ranney, vice chairman of Commonwealth Edison company and until recently vice president of International Harvester company, for the chairmanship and to have asked the federal reserve board to approve his selection.

Haven't Reached Decision.

No definite decision has been reached, it was learned. Officials of the RFC denied any intention of forcing Mr. Cummings on the bank.

The RFC's controlling interest, it is understood, will be voted by one of the present directors acting on behalf of the RFC. The RFC, it was believed, is endeavoring to work out a peaceful compromise.

DOLLAR RISES NEARLY A CENT; STERLING SAGS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 27.—The American dollar was buoyant in the foreign exchange market today regaining the ground lost yesterday while the London market was closed.

Against the franc the dollar moved up to an indicated gold worth of 64.22 cents, an advance of nearly a cent from yesterday's quotation of 63.34 cents. The closing figure on the franc here was 6.10 cents against 6.18½ yesterday. Against the pound the dollar was also strong with sterling slipping 5½ cents to close at $5.09¾. The Canadian slipped a quarter of a cent to close at even par.

GRAINS LEAD ALL COMMODITIES TO HIGHER LEVELS

Wheat Advances More Than Two Cents.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A marked change in speculative sentiment was apparent in commodity markets yesterday, apparently based on a belief constructive developments were to be witnessed at Washington shortly and that pressure from sellers for income tax purposes had run its course.

Practically all commodities scored fair net gains for the day, with a broadening in speculative operations on the buying side apparent. Wheat moved up 2¼ to 2⅜ cents and corn 1 to 1¼ cents. Silver gained as much as ½ cent per ounce; cotton around 75 cents per bale; hides, 50 to 60 points; sugar, 4 to 5 points, and coffee, 5 to 10 points. Belief was current that an announcement regarding the stabilization of the American dollar was imminent and it had much to do with changing sentiment.

Grains Close Near Top.

There was no material pressure on the grain markets at any time, and houses with eastern connections, as well as mills and local professionals, were on the buying side of wheat. The latter dipped fractionally early, only to advance around 3 cents from that low. The finish was within a fraction of the top. May was 86⅜ to 86⅛ cents and July 85⅜ to 85½ cents at the last, while May corn closed at 51⅜ to 51⅞ cents. Oats gained ⅜ to 1⅜ cents, with May 37½ to 37⅝ cents, and rye was 1⅜ to 1⅞ cents higher, with May closing at 59 cents.

Rumors were current that maltsters had sold as high as 7,000,000 bushels of malt to brewers in the last few days, and the barley market advanced. The closing was 2¼ to 2¼ cents higher, with May finishing at 52⅝ cents.

More Interest in Wheat.

Wheat traders in general paid more attention to supply and demand factors than has been the case for a number of days. The cold weather over the winter wheat belt, with prospects of another cold wave to follow, attracted considerable attention.

Some attention also was paid to the reduction of 23,000,000 bushels in the aggregate exportable surplus of wheat of Argentina and Australia, as compared with the 1932-'33 season. Liverpool closed ¼ to ⅝ cents higher than Friday and Winnipeg gained ⅞ to 1⅝ cents as compared with Saturday.

For nearly a week there has been no purchases of cash corn to arrive from the country by Chicago handlers, and only 14 cars were received here yesterday, the smallest movement for one day under normal conditions in some years. Only 4 cars of oats were received. Mills were reported as having bought December rye, and were said to want the grain delivered on their contracts.

STEEL MAKERS DRIVE TO FILL ORDERS BY JAN. 1

Operations Rise to 37%, Says Iron Age.

The tension in steel works activity, as specifications against expiring contracts accumulated, has persisted, and operations have risen one point to 37 per cent of capacity, reports the Iron Age.

"However, operations are likely to taper off as the year-end approaches and the time required for conversion into finished material precludes further production of raw steel against fourth quarter contracts," observes the review.

"The average ingot rate for the week may drop to 35 or 34 per cent, but there will not be a corresponding decline in rolling mill operations, which will be pushed until the closing day of the year to get out shipments.

Mills Work Against Time.

"While the tension under which the industry is working is fully as severe as a week ago, it now seems probable that virtually all the tonnage specified against contracts will be rolled and on cars before the deadline."

While aggregate shipments of sheet steel will probably surpass those of November or October, as well as those of any December in recent years, much of the tonnage has been stimulated by increases in prices effective Jan. 1 and "represents expansion of stocks rather than of consumption," according to the review.

Little of the tonnage may be traced to the automotive industry, to railroads, whose buying is still in the formative stage, or to public works, which are exempt from regulations on quarterly contracts under the "identified structure provision."

Expect Orders to Gain.

The Iron Age declares that "it is largely because of the excellent prospects for tonnage from the big three—automobiles, public works, and railroads—that the steel industry regards the first quarter as so favorable.

"Certain mills, such as tin plate plants, may enter January with scant backlogs and sharply reduced operations. Others, notably wire mills, will be able to maintain a fairly good rate of production for a time replenishing exhausted stocks. But regardless of whether steel output slumps in the early part of January, the industry is confident that there will be a strong rebound later."

The delay in deliveries of dies from shops located outside Michigan has hampered the operations of most manufacturers save Henry Ford.

U. S. Control of Security Trade Suggested.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—A plan for licensing stock brokers under the securities act and to enforce such a scheme through federal control of the mails has been laid before the senate banking and currency committee, according to Senator Fletcher, the committee chairman.

Under the proposal the federal government would control trading in securities, whether or not purchases and sales were handled in interstate commerce. The plan before the committee is based largely upon the contentions of Justice Brandeis, as outlined in his book, "Other People's Money."

"Practically no business in the United States can be conducted without use of the mails," Justice Brandeis said in his book, first published twenty years ago.

How Congress Acts.

"Thus, congress has no power directly to suppress lotteries, but it has indirectly suppressed them by denying, under heavy penalty, the use of the mail to lottery enterprises. Congress has no power to suppress directly business frauds, but it is constantly doing so indirectly by issuing fraud orders denying the mail privilege."

Senator Fletcher did not indicate any view of his own or of the committee regarding the proposal to extend the federal supervision indirectly over stock trading through control of the mails.

Tax Power as Club.

In the same publication, "Other People's Money," Justice Brandeis suggested that the taxing power might be used by congress in extending control over strictly intra-state business.

"Congress has no power to regulate the manufacture of matches or the use of oleomargarine," he said. "But it has suppressed the manufacture of 'white phosphorus' matches and has greatly lessened the use of oleomargarine by imposing heavy taxes upon them. Congress has no power to prohibit or to regulate directly the issue of bank notes by state banks, but it indirectly prohibited their issue by imposing a tax of 10 per cent upon any bank note issued by a state bank."
